Future of Mesquite to be studied by Coast Guard

by FRAN MARTIN

The decision regarding the future of the buoy tenders in the Great Lakes, including the U.S.C.G.C. Mesquite, will be made by Coast Guard Headquarters in Washington following completion of a feasibility study presently being made by the Ninth Coast Guard District, Cleveland; Captain F.A. Kelly of the Aids to Navigation office in Cleveland said, Friday in a telephone conversation.

He went on to say that the feasibility study was being made at the request of Headquarters in order that a determination could be made on how best to utilize the five 180 foot tenders that include the Mesquite presently homeported at Charlevoix, the Acacia at Grand Haven, the Bramble at Port Huron, the Sundew at Duluth and the Mariposa at Detroit. A smaller tender, the Buckthorn, is stationed at Sault Ste. Marie.

Regarding the Mesquite, now at the Island of Grenada off the coast of Venezuela, Kelly said he had received every indication that the ship would be returning to Charlevoix in March as announced earlier.

He did say, however, that there was a possibility that after the study now being made by the Ninth Coast Guard District was completed and forwarded to Washington within the month that the homeport of some of the ships may be changed. "They will be assigned where they are needed; where their services can best be utilized, he said. He went on to say that his office would study the areas of the lakes and what would be required of the tenders in those areas and then would be making their recommendations to headquarters "within the month." The final decision, he emphasized, would be made at the Coast Guard headquarters in Washington.

Will the Mesquite be back? The answer won't be known for certain until a survey of need is completed by the Coast Guard's Ninth District.

In recent years, the duties of the buoy tenders have changed radically. These have changed with the automation of light stations in the Great Lakes, with the fact that winter navigation by lake carriers, except for fuel tankers, has all but been closed down and with the advent of the 140 foot icebreaking tugs in the Great Lakes which, in conjunction with the icebreaker Mackinaw, stationed at Cheboygan, have taken over the duties once shared by the buoy tenders.

It will be remembered that when the C.G.C. Sundew was stationed here, it was involved in ice breaking duties throughout the winter months that navigation is being kept open on the lakes. This was from the 1960's until the early 1980's. Since the Mesquite was assigned to Charievoix to replace the Sundew, it has been called on for a minimum of icebreaking duty.

Because of these changes through the years, the feasibility study is being conducted at this time and recommendations being made as to how best to utilize the tenders, Capt. Kelly explained. He would state only that the final decision would be made at Coast Guard Headquarters in Washington.

The Aids to Navigation in northern Lake Michigan, the Straits of Mackinac and northern Lake Huron have been serviced by buoy tenders stationed here, first the Sundew which was transferred to Charlevoix from Sturgeon Bay in 1958, and more recently by the Mesquite which replaced the Sundew when it was re-assigned to Duluth. Prior to 1958 the Sundew, then stationed at Sturgeon Bay, was in charge of the aids which included lighthouses as well as buoys. As early aa the 1920's buoy tenders out of Milwaukee was charged with tending the aids in the area.

Pajtas sworn in as Circuit Judge

LAWYER PANTS

A crowded courtroom at the Charlevoix County Building, above, was the scene of swearing in ceremonies Thursday for Richard M. Pajtas, newly elected judge for the 33rd Circuit Court serving Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. State Court of Appeals Judge Barbara MacKenzie presided over the special session attended by about 100 including Pajtas's family and friends, fellow attorneys and other area judges. David Fershee, right, a former District Judge and former associate of Pajtas, jokingly presented the new judge with a pair of "lawyer's pants" to remind him of his days on the other side of the bench. Also making remarks at the ceremony were former District Judge Edward Fenlon, Probate Judge John T. Murphy and District Judge Harvey Varnum. Below, Judge MacKenzie presents the gavel to Pajtas who is accompanied by his wife Dana and two sons, Jason, left, and Zachary.

Chamber reviewing applicants

by FRAN MARTIN

"The deadline for application is Monday (Dec. 31). The Selection Committee has looked over those we have and after Monday will give all applications a serious look when we meet Thursday," Gary Gleason, chairman of the Selections Committee in the search for a director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, said Friday.

Gleason was hesitant to say how many applications had been received because he did not want to discourage others that he knew would be submitted by the deadline Monday, he said. He did say, however, that there were a number of very qualified people who have already applied. He said there are a number from out of state as well as others from Michigan and even in the area.

"We will be faced with giving all applications a serious look and then selecting several for interviews," Gleason added. He said the committee is hopeful that a selection can be made by January 15 so the position could be filled by February 1.

In the interim, Jacquie Merta who was director for 9½ years prior to her resignation December 15, is serving on a consulting basis.

Serving with Gleason on the Selections Committee is Jack Schmidt, Mike Greeley, Gordon VanWieren, Jim Mabee; Dr. David Strawbridge and Mrs. Merta.

The terms of Dr. F. James Stewart, Roy Hayes, Mabee and Dave Knight, currently serving as president, will expire at the time the board of directors meet January 10 for an organizational meeting. Deadline for voting for new directors was also December 31.

Beaver Island ferry ends season

The navigation system between Charlevoix and St. James on Beaver Island was closed out Christmas Eve when the 86-foot motorship, Beaver Islander made its final trip of the 1984 season.

The crew, captained by Russell Green, returned to vessel to its winter quarters at Charlevoix after spending the holiday on the island according to Edward B. Wojan, president of the Beaver Island Boat Co. which acquired the Beaver Islander and the motorship South Shore from the Beaver Island Navigation Co. on June 30.

Wojan said the Beaver Islander will be tied up at the municipal dock here. General maintenance such as overhauling the engines, painting and other work to prepare the motorship for the 1985 season will be done prior to the opening of the navigation season which is tentatively scheduled for April 15. Wojan said that there would be no major changes made on the ship this season.

The 65-foot motorship, the South Shore, also owned by the company, will be berthed at the company's dock at St. James this winter. Wojan said this vessel was at the shipyard at Sault Ste. Marie for its five year inspection as required by the U.S. Coast Guard and would require only regular maintenance during the winter. While in drydock, work was done on the hull along with the other repairs that could be done only when the vessel was on the ways. As a result, the motorship will require little work in preparation for the forthcoming season.

Other plans call for the improvement of dock at the island terminal and other equipment owned by the company Wojan added.

"We had a good year. Tourism was down a little but with the increase in the summer population on the island the traffic held up. Construction was also down a little compared to earlier years. This cut down on the amount of freight we carried. However, all in all, we had a good season," Wojan said of the firs six months the company was in operation.

It will be remembered that the new company, headed by a board composed of island residents, approached the officials of the Beaver Island Navigation Co. headed by John McGoff, with a proposal to purchase the company's holdings last January. An agreement was reached, the new company organized in March and stock to finance the purchase sold. The deal was closed June 30.

From June 30 until its final trip on Dec. 24, the motorship which carries passengera, mail and freight over the 32-mile route made 140 trips, Marilyn Hofbauer, manager at the Charlevoix terminal, said.

The company's board of directors is composed of Wojan as president; William McDonough, vice-president; Richard Speck, secretary-treasurer; Ronald L. Wojan, Richard L. Gillespie, Timothy J. McDonough and William J. Cashman.

From now until the surface navigation opens in mid-April all navigation to the island will be via air. The Island Airways Co. has taken over the mail contract to the island. Passengers and freight will be carried by Island Airways and a second company based on the island, Welke Aviation.

Beaver Island, located 32 miles northwest of Charlevoix in Lake Michigan, is a part of Charlevoix County. The island is 15 miles long and five miles wide at its greatest width. It is composed of two of the county's 15 townships, Peaine and St. James, and has a year-around population of approximately 300 residents.

Former resident has unique idea for promoting peace

by DAVE KNIGHT

"I wanted to let people see, in a personal, physical way, who we are talking about blowing up when we talk, sometimes so casually, about nuclear war."

That is how former Charlevoix resident Jim Terr explains a recently completed project that haa drawn accolades from a unusually broad variety of reviewers.

On a visit to the U.S.S.R. in 1982, Terr was able to tour six Soviet cities without government interference. He managed to shoot 30 rolls of film with an old 3-D camera, mostly of common Soviet citizens he met on the street.

When he returned to the United States, Terr reasoned that if the powers in Washington could have had the same experience he did, they might take a different attitude toward the nuclear arms race. The result was a slide show of Terr's photographs which he gave to many schools, churches and civic groups and sent to the White House, the State Department, the Central Intelligence Agency, legislators and many other agencies and individuals.

From the slide show, Terr selected several of the photos and Visible in the left foreground is the old swing bridge across the Pine River channel and in the right background, the railroad swing bridge demolished just last year. Commercial forest funds total $3,834

Charlevoix County has received $3,834.12 from the State of Michigan for the state's portion of taxes payable to local governments through the Commercial Forest Act.

Under Michigan law, private land enrolled under the Commercial Forest Act is not subject to general property taxes. Instead, the commercial forest landowners pay 30 cents per acre to the local governmental unit and the state pays the local government an additional 70 cents for each acre enrolled.

According to Jay Schafer of the Department of Natural Resources Lands Division, permits must first be obtained from the DNR in order to harvest timber on enrolled lands.

Following harvest of timber products from the land, the owner pays a "yield tax" equal to ten percent of the stumpage value, which the state then turns over to the township.

The DNR Forest Management Division administers the Commercial Forest Act and provides advice and technical assistance to the landowners. The law requires that all commercial forest lands enrolled - some 2,056,759 acres this year - be open to public hunting and fishing and managed solely for timber production.

In Charlevoix County, there are 5,477.31 acres enrolled in the program which, based on the 70 cents per acre formula, yields the state payment to the county of $3,834.12.

If the land is taken out of the program, said Schafer, the owner pays a withdrawal fee of ten percent of the value of the standing marketable forest products plus a penalty if the land has not been enrolled under the act for at least 20 years.

A NEW SNOWBLOWER recently purchased by the City of Charlevoix will be clearing sidewalks for schoolchildren and other pedestrians this winter. The 22-horsepower Yanmar diesel was purchased from Small Engine Unlimited of Charlevoix who submitted a low bid of $12,789 for the tractor which will also be equipped to mow grass at the Mt. McSauba Recreational Area during the summer. The primary job of the new snowblower this winter will be to clear sidewalks along the major routes used by students on their way to and from local schools. It will not be used in the downtown business district, however, where merchants are responsible for clearing their own sidewalks.

Childrens' diseases thrive in the wintertime

from District Health Department No. 3

Winter in Michigan is a time of natural beauty, with many types of indoor and outdoor activities. Unfortunately, it is also a time for awareness by parents of health problems that can affect their children.

Dr. Brian Youngs, Medical Director for District Health Department No. 3 reminds parents that "strept throat, influenza-like illnesses, chickenpox, and Fifth's Disease have all occurred in northern Michigan." A brief explaination of symptoms and basic suggestions for treatment of each condition follows:

An individual with strept throat may have any of the following basic symptoms: Fever, sore throat, enlarged and enflammed tonsils, and tender and swollen lymph nodes in the neck area. There may also be a minimum of symptoms. High fever, headache, nausea and vomiting may accompany sever infections. The individual may have a rash which is often mistaken for another childhood illness such as roseola or measles.

Untreated people may develop middle ear infections, mastoiditis, and throat and neck abscesses. Other potential problems are heart (rheumatic fever) and kidney (glomerulonephritis) disease.

Parents should be aware that strept throat is a treatable illness. Penicillin will prevent most complications. Therefore, the Health Department urges parents to contact their family doctor if they think their children may have strept throat.

Chickenpox and influenza has been associated with Reyes Syndrome. The syndrome is characterized by the sudden onset of repeated vomiting and behavioral changes such as extreme lethary or irritability, disorientation, confusion and delerium in a child who has, or who has recently recovered from chickenpox or influenza. Dr. Youngs also added that "Parents should contact their family physician if they have qustions concerning the treatment of ill family members." When the symptoms of Reye's Syndrome are present the child should be taken to a physician immediately. If the family doctor is not avaliable, go to the nearest hospital emergency department.

Aspirin or salicylate-containing medication should not be given to a child during flu-like illness or chickenpox, unless directed to do so by a physician. There is a reason to suspect an association between the taking of these medicines during viral illness and Reye's Syndrome. Low-grade fevers can often either be left untreated or treated by sponging the child with lukewarm water.

Fifth's Disease is an acute, mild, rash producing disease occurring commonly in children, although adults can be effected. The cause of the disease is thought to be a virus. The disease is spread by droplets of secretions from the nose and mouth of an ill person to another person.

The red rash often begins on the face giving the so-called "slapped cheek" appearance. However, the most characteristic feature is the rash on the body and limbs. Here, the rasb gives a reticular or lacy appearance with fading in the middle of the eruption. Thee are few, if any, severe syptoms. Joint pain, fever and malaise (don't feel well) may occur.

Parents should contact their family physician for advice and diagnosis because the illness can be confused with other rash causing illnesss. There is no special treatment for fifth's disese. Children do not need to be isolated, or activities restricted, if they are not ill with fever, headache or have other complaints. Good personal hygiene such as washing hands and covering the mouth and nose when sneezing is encouraged.

A parent's early detection of symptoms from any of these diseases could determine their child's good recovery. In all cases, questions should be directed to their family doctor, or nearest emergency department.

Opinion

Knight on the Town

Bus-ted

by Dave Knight

It is 5:30 a.m. and I am sitting in the Petoskey bus terminal.

My wife's parents are Chicago-bound and we decided to get them on the early morning departure from Petoskey. We could have slept a half hour more and caught the bus at Boyne Falls which is closer to our house but we were advised that we'd have to flag it down.

I opted for the drive to Petoskey. Beats standing by the highway at Boyne Falls at milking time woving a hanky.

It is now 6 a.m. and the bus is 15 minutes late.

The Petoskey bus station is a fascinating place. It is also a used book store. Shelves overflowing with books, magazines and comics are neatly labeled by genre. Hand lettered signs politely announce price ranges and terms of exchange. "Romances on this shelf may be exchanged for other romances only!"

A cardboard placard over a pile of paperbacks on one small table is concise: "El Cheapos - 25 cents apiece."

Nearby on the floor is a brown paper bag stapled shut. Written on it is "Take a chance! $1.50." Amost worth the money just to see what's inside. Maybe bundles of $100 bills. Maybe a Gutenberg Bible. Maybe somebody's lunch.

It is now almost 6:20 a.m. and still no sign of the bus.

People who have to get somewhere by a certain time are getting restless. There is a blind girl heading for Lansing with her golden retreiver seeiog eye dog. There is another girl who mut make a 3 p.m. wedding in Jackson. There is a woman bound for Williamsburg, Virginia after a holiday stay in Charlevoix.

This late bus is messing with a lot of peoples' lives.

My parents-in-law have to make a connection in Grand Rapids. "Don't worry," says the lady at the counter, "There will be other buses to Chicago from Grand Rapids. You might have to wait a few houra, though."

My father-in-law winces.

"Maybe you'll have enough time to tour the Grand Plaza," says the lady cheerfully.

I wince.

It is now almost 6:30 a.m. and the phone rings. "It's just leaving now?" the lady at the counter exclaims into the receiver. Waiting passengers groan. The bus just left St. Ignace. Oh well, I think...could have been worse. They could have been calling from Duluth.

It is about 7:30 a.m. and as I put down a 1944 Life magazine featuring a photo essay on landing craft, the bus pulls in.

As people clamor aboard, the phone rings again. A connecting bus in Cadillac will not wait. That means the one girl won't make the wedding in Jackson, neither the blind girl nor her dog will make it to Lansing and the lady from Williamsburg won't make it home without spending a night in Detroit.

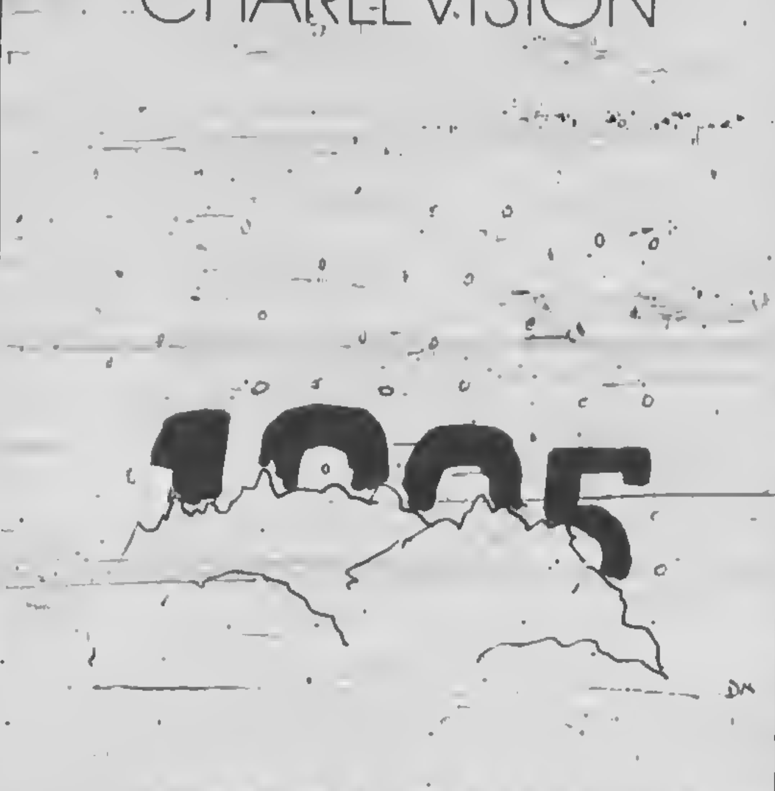
"Hope the rest of your day goes better than this," the blind girl says with a smile to the bus driver as she gets off the bus. Her dog yawns.

I offer to take the lady from Williamsburg back to her daughter and son-in-law's house in Charlevoix. "They will be surprised to see me again so soon!" she laughs.

My wife's parents decide to stay on the bus. Later, they ended up renting a car in Grand Rapids and driving to Chicago. Passed up the Grand Plaza tour, apparently.

It is 8:30 a.m. I'm home and exceedingly glad we didn't choose to wait for the bus by the highway in Boyne Falls.

CHARLEVISION



It's probably going to be a good year...as soon as we dig it out.

Clockwise

Heartening response

by Bob Clock

Few Clockwise columns in recent years have elicited as much response as a recent piece on drunk driving and the unprincipled louts who help kids obtain alcohol.

Which is encouraging. If enough folks get excited, a solution to the problem may be at hand.

My reasons for writing the column were largely personal.

In the past four years, I have lost three young cousins in highway accidents. All boys. All 18 years old. All recent high school graduates or about to graduate. Congenial. Smart. Handsome. Happy-go-lucky.

The last accident happened in November in Ohio. The young fellow was hitch-hiking and probably hadn't been drinking. But chances are good that the driver who hit him was three sheets to the wind. No one seems to know, since it was a hit-run.

The parents of all three are devastated and the hurt will last the rest of their lives. They will never stop thinking of what might have been.

SOMETIMES I think we take our government employees for granted.

Take the Christmas Day blizzard, for example.

I spent the day dreading the prospect of driving to Petoskey Wednesday morning over unplowed roads.

But by dusk Christmas evening the plows were out on Petoskey Road. At 2 a.m. I heard them rumbling down Dixon Avenue and saw their flashing lights dancing on the bedroom walls. By 6 a.m. virtually all of the streets in town had been plowed and U.S. 31 was in first-class condition.

It isn't easy to leave your fireside and fight a howling blizzard on Christmas night. But city and county road crews obviously take their jobs — and your safety — seriously.

WHO IS MAYOR of Charlevoix this week?

According to the 1978 city charter, the mayor elected in the November general election takes office at the first meeting of the city council the following January. Which means Ken Staley will remain mayor until 8 p.m. Monday, Jan. 7, when Hal Hill will be sworn in.

However the same charter specifies that council members take office the first day of January following the election.

Why the discrepancy?

As a former member of the charter commission, I should know the answer but I don't. It would seem only logical to have the mayor and council members take office at the same time.

I suspect the discrepancy is a simple oversight on the part of the commission which wrote and re-wrote the charter several times before it finally was adopted.

No problem. Hill will just have to wait a few more daya before his constituents may properly call him "Your Honor."

Great support

To: Louis J. Hollow, President
Charlevoix Area Hospital
Board of Directors

On behalf of the Charlevoix County Hospice Board of Directors, I want to expresss our gratitude to the Charlevoix Area Hospital for their generosity to us. We truly appreciate the support that is given to us, but even more we appreciate the fine working relationship we have with the hospital staff.

It is very gratifying to be able to use the hospital facilities during our volunteer training sessions; the conference room for our board meetings and Interdisciplinary Team Meetings, and the hopsital allowing their phone number to be our emergency number.

I have found the people I have worked with at the hospital to be most accommodating - honest, straight-forward - and I appreciate this! My special thanks goes to Diane Novotny (who always helps set up meetings and session, and William Jackson. Of course it is extremely nice to have Kathy Boss, Camille Green and Sara Gay Dammann on our board. Working with them is a professional delight.

We are also grateful to have the Charlevoix Area Doctors - Dr. Dennis Joy (Medical Director), Dr. Harry Custer, Dr. Reed Freidinger and Dr. James Stewart as our Medical Advisory Team. Without them we wouldn't be a functioning hospice.

The Charlevoix County Hospice has been in operation (taking care of patients) for a year now, and it has been a most rewarding year. One reason we can feel so good is because of our professional realtionship with the Charlevoix Area Hospital. I know the Board hopes that we will continue to always have this fine relationship - your support is very important to us!

Sinerely,

Cubs' Christmas

To the Editor:

Recently, over the Christmas holiday, the Charlevoix area Cub Scout pack had a Christmas party. As we do each year, we had a Christmas tree decorated with ornaments made by the boys and our "presents" under the tree were canned goods and foodstuffs for the needy in our area.

Our theme this year was "Do a good turn." As Cub Scouts, we encourag our boys to do their best to "Do a good turn" for someone during this special season.

However, our party this year was unique in that it was totally financed and supplied by local businesses and private citizens. They, we feel, gave a true and sincere demonstration of our theme to our boys by their donations and contributions. We, the Charlevoix chapter of Cub Scouts, would like to take this opportunity to express our heartfelt thanks to the following organizations and persons for making our Christmas pack meeting a success by their "Doing a good turn": Olesons Food Store, Kraft Company (Bill Phalan, Corwin DeRuiter), Rosenthals Orchards, McDonalds of Charlevoix, Elaine McDonald, Judy's Restaurant, Russ N' Us, Bonnie Webster, Medusa Cement Company, Parents of Cub Scouts.

Gift of life

To the Editor:

As you are aware, January is National Volunteer Blood Donor Month. It is a time to salute all those people who willingly donate the most precious gift of life so that those in need of blood shall not be without it.

Did you know that every minute, more than 25 units of blood or blood components are transfused? That's nearly 37,000 units each and every day. The need is constantly increasing, yet only five percent of those able to contribute blood do so.

Giving blood is a simple and relativley painless process. It takes less than one hour to complete. A one-pint donation comprises less than ten percent of the body's total blood supply and is restored in several hours. Yet that simple donation can have far reaching results. A single pint of blood can be broken down into as many as four components. These components can then be used to treat several patients suffering from diseases such as leukemia or hemophilia or patients who may have lost blood as a result of an accident or injury.

More than 95 percent of all Americans reaching age 72 will need blood or one of the products derived from blood in their lifetimes. Please answer the American Red Cross's call by going down to your local blood drive to donate blood. By giving up a small portion of your time, you can help to make certain that blood will be available when you or someone else needs it.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Ellsworth on Wednesday, January 9, 1:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Community Hall. No appointment is necessary. Give the gift of life, give blood.

Weddings

Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Blain Saunders

Sonnenberg-Saunders

St. Francis Catholic Church in Petoskey was the setting for the December 15 marriage of Dottie Jo Sonneoberg and Blain Saunders, both of Charlevoix. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sonnenberg of Pincherry Rd. and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Saunders of Sequanota Rd.

Father Nicholas presided over the double ring ceremony witnessed by 100 guests in the church decorated with baskets of red and white carnations and with red carnations, evergreens and white bows on the pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of sheer white polyester with stand up schiffli neckline and a bodice of chantilly lace and tiny seed pearls. The flowing shirt and chapel train were trimmed with a flounced hem of chantilly lace. The veil was a crown of tiny seed pearls with a fingertip length and rose lace appliques. She carried a bouquet of red and white carnations and evergreens.

Organist Marilyn Ross played Christmas carols before the ceremony and accompanied soloist Mae Charbeneau.

Maid of honor was Christine Wojan and bridesmaids were Laura Baldwin and Karen Winter. They wore gowns with wine velvet bodices and floor length taffeta dusty rose skirts and carried nosegays of wine and white carnations with wine and dusty rose trailing ribbons.

Best man was Les Lugibihl and groomsmen were Charles Metzger and Roger Michaud.

A reception dinner dance was held at North Central Michigan College and a rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at Victory Lanes on December 14.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Petoskey Beauty Academy and is currently employed by Expressions Unlimited. The groom is employed at Harbor Industries. They are now at home on West Lincoln St. in Charlevoix.

Wreath project ends Garden Club's year

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club concluded its fiscal year by making miniature grape vine wreaths for use on Christmas trays of Charlevoix Area Hospital patients. The December gathering was hosted at the home of Anna Belle Webb, with Lillian Swinton and Nancy Fowler assisting. Mrs. Fowler conducted the workshop in which each member decorated the wreaths.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mrs. Joseph Morris, outgoing President, thanked her Board members, and turned the gavel to Mrs. E.H. Leedy for use in 1985.

The first meeting of the New Year will be held at the Charlevoix Public Library, Tuesday, January 8 at 1:00 p.m. Hostesses will be Carol Dutcher and Jolyn Hall. The Club will welcome three new members: Mrs. Franklyn Curtis, Mrs. Russell Lewis, and Mrs. Wayne Woods.

The program is to be the first of a series of workshops in preparation for the Flower show to be held in August. "The Mechanics of Arranging", stressing assembling for stability will be demonstrated by Shirley Lusk, assisted by Derith Lane. Members are asked to bring a container, oasis, arranging tools, winter greens, and if available, silk flowers.

Rayders rule in T.C. St. Francis tournament

by ULF EVALDSSON

When the Christmas Tournament was settled in Traverse City Thursday and Saturday last week, Charlevoix Varsity reigned on the floor. Apart from the Rayders, Suttons Bay, Glen Lake and Traverse City St. Francis participated in the Tournament. Thursday, the Rayders beat Glen Lake 80-56, and St. Francis whipped Suttons Bay 95-46, which meant that Charlevoix had to deal with St. Francis Saturday in the final. In a close and exciting finale the Rayders posted a satisfying 67-58 win, and Glen Lake defeated Suttons Bay, taking the third place after the Rayders and the St. Francis Gladiators.

A Charlevoix player is rejected in weekend tournament action.

Thursday, Glen Lake started out very well, and much thanks to Ross Hazelton who scored 8 points in the first quarter, the Lakers reached a 14-8 lead going into the second stanza. Glen Lake's defense seemed to work very well in the beginning and their better rebounding was one of the reasons that the Rayders found it hard to score. In the second quarter Mike Zoyhofski and Mike Crinion helded the Lakers to a 28-15 lead, and this was the biggest lead the Lakers had in the game. Sean Ferguson, Brent Cole and John Pearl gave the Rayders another 10 points and made the score 30-25 at halftime. When the Rayders came out on the floor in the third quarter, they showed much more intensity, and their shot percentage became better. In the first minute of the quarter, Ferguson and Jody Putman added one field goal each, and when Cole scored two more buckets, all of a sudden, the Rayders found themselves in a 33-30 lead. The Lakers reached 35-34, but the Rayders didn't let go of the lead through the whole game. The quarter ended 42-40, and in the final stanza, Cole poured in a free throw, which mean 48-41, and a few minutes later, Mike Kerby of the Lakers brought it to 50-49 through a free throw, but the Rayders refused to give the lead away. In the last remaining seconds, Cole added a free throw settling the final score, 60-56; the Rayders had gone from a 13 point deficit in the second quarter to a convincing 60-56 win.

Doug Sloan fights off Glen Lake defenders under the basket.

"We started out too slowly, and our shot percentage was much too low", Coach Smith had to say about the Rayders' first half. "In the second half everything seemed to go much better; we grabbed more rebounds, we showed more intensity and above all, we scored more."

Jim Martin had a very good first half, and Putman and top scorer Cole fought well on the floor. Cole scored 29 points, Putman 12, Ferguson 11 and Pearl and Doug Sloan 4 each. Sloan had 5 fouls, Pearl, Ferguson and Putman 3 each, Cole 2 and Martin and Syvertsen 1 each. Altoghter, Glen Lake grabbed 42 rebounds, while Charlevoix had 39, 30 of them in the second half. Pearl and Putman had 11 rebounds each, Syvertsen 7 and Ferguson 6. Best scorers for the Lakers were Mike Crinion 16, Ross Hazelton 13, Mike Kerby 10 and Mike Zoyhofskl 7.

In the finals Saturday, Traverse City St. Francis Gladiators came out very strongly and had a 14-12 lead in the first quarter. In the middle of the second quarter, Pearl and Cole turned a 23-18 deficit to a 24-23 lead for the Rayders, and even if Gladiator Pat Cleland gave his team the lead by scoring a basket, Putman, Sloan and Cole fixed a 36-25 Rayder-lead at halftime.

Charlevoix' rebounding didn't work very well in the first half, but they soon began to hit the boat. When Mike Weatherholt made it 42-38 in the third quarter, Gladiators started to threaten Charlevoix, and by the end of the third stanza, St. Francis had shortened the Rayders' lead to 46-45. Steve Fewins brought it to 52-51, but the Gladiators never did manage to reach the lead. Rayders kept he distance through the final quarter, winning by a score of 67-58. Scorers for Charlevoix were Cole 17, Putman 14, Pearl and Ferguson 12 each, Syvertsen 7 and Sloan 5. Putman did an excellent job, and Will Syvertsen did some good rebounding when he came into the game. Top scorers for the Gladiators were Pat Cleland, Ken Kleinrichert and Rick Schmuckal.

JVs bow in finals at T.C.

After winning its first game in the junior varsity division of the Traverse City St. Francis boliday tournament last week by a 56-55 score, the Charlevoix Rayder JV's dropped their game in the finals to Traverse City St. Francis by a score of 52-49.

In the opening game of the tournament, the young Rayders took a 14-12 first period lead, increased it to 37-30 at halftime and saw it trimmed to 44-43 at the three quarter mark. In the final period each team scored 12 points, giving the game to Charlevoix by a one-point margin.

Charlevoix outscored the young Glen Lake five, 26-18 from the floor and had four of 14 free throws while collecting 26 fouls. The Lakers made up the difference from the free throw line, scoring on 14 of 26 attempts. The team had 18 personal fouls.

Jim Gibbs had 19 and Dan Drury 16 points for the game. Brad Fosmore and Todd Hazelton shared scoring honors with 22 each.

In the game with the young St. Francis Gladiators, the score was tied 17-all at the half after Charlevoix had overcome a 9-7 first period deficit. In the third period the Gladiators outscored the Rayders 13-11 for a two point advantage going into the final period when Charlevoix was outscored 22-21 to give the host team the tournament title.

The Rayders outscored Traverse City 20-17 from the floor and had nine of 19 from the charity line. The Rayders had 23 personal fouls. Traverse City connected on 18 of 27 and had 16 personal fouls.

Jim Ciuk came through with 14 points and Gibbs had 12 for the Rayders. Shawn O'Neill had 18, Brian Tschirhart, 12 and Shawn Klenrichart 10 for the victors.

Why Are These Men Smiling?

Meet Cecil Peterson. He's the smallish man with the newspaper. Cecil never misses a chance to check what's happening in his hometown.

Why? Just last week he found a bird cage for his pet gerbil in the Charlevoix Courier Classified section. The reason Cecil is reading while standing up in a crowd (he usually has better manners but he doesn't know any of these fellows anyway) is because he's reading a story about his nephew's basketball team.

Cecil never misses one single issue of his hometown newspaper because he knows that it's crammed full of stuff that the city dailies never touch. Stuff like local bargains at his favorite stores, those juicy classified ads, and what's happening at city hall.

There was even a story about Cecil the time he grew the largest squash he's ever seen. Or anyone else had ever seen for that matter. Cecil cut that picture out and put it in his scrapbook. He ate the squash.

Oh yes, why are those other fellows smiling?

Well, first they're on their way home and second they know their hometown newspaper will be waiting for them when they get there.

Don't miss an issue.

A Christmas Hymn

And some of the Pharisees from among the multitude said unto him, Master, rebuke thy disciples.

And he answered and said unto them, I tell you that, if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out.

A stable-lamp is lighted
Whose glow shall wake the sky;
The stars shall bend their voices,
And every stone shall cry.
And every stone shall cry,
And straw like gold shall shine;
A barn shall harbor heaven,
A stall become a shrine.

This child through David's city
Shall ride in triumph by;
The palm shall strew its branches,
And every stone shall cry.
And every stone shall cry,
Though heavy, dull, and dumb,
And lie within the roadway
To pave his kingdom come.

Yet he shall be forsaken,
And yielded up to die;
And sky shall groan and darken,
And every stone shall cry.
And every stone shall cry,
For stony hearts of men;
God's blood upon the spearhead,
God's love refused again.

But now, as at the ending,
The low is lifted high;
The stars shall bend their voices,
And every stone shall cry.
And every stone shall cry
In praises of the child
By whose descent among us
The worlds are reconciled.

-Richard Wilbur

Hospital discussion to cover various causes of chest pain

Chest pains signify heart attacks to most people. Chest pain can be caused, however, by other conditions including ulcers, hiatal hernias, angina, and certain types of traumas.

Chest pains will be discussed by James Gels, M.D., a specialist in Internal Medicine at Charlevoix Area Hospital, who will present a film and discussion session on the subject, Tuesday evening, January 15th at 7:00 p.m.

A 25-minute color film developed by the American College of Physicians follows a physician and his patients through the process of diagnosing and resolving conditions that cause chest pains.

The film covers the various conditions that cause chest pains and the recommended treatments. Diagnostic tests and procedurees that are featured in the film include echocradiograms, resting and exercise, ECGs, angiography, thallium stress tests and endoscopy.

The goal of the film and subsequent discussions to be led by Dr. Gels is to inform people and help people take an "increased responsibility for their own health care," according to Healthscope, the publication of the American College of Physicians.

Also important, the film and discussion will "reinforce the benefits of healthful habits in disease prevention."

This program on chest pains is part of the ongoing Community Education Series at Charlevoix Area Hospital. These programs are intended to promote good health and understanding of current health issues.

PCB levels in salmon below danger level

Great Lakes salmon analyzed in October and November 1984 for polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) are all below the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) action level of five parts per million (ppm) which was in effect prior to August 23, 1984, according to Dr. Paul E. Kindinger, director, Michigan Department of Agriculture. In addition, DDT, dieldrin and chlordane levels are below current FDA action levels.

On August 24, 1984, FDA lowered the PCB action level to two ppm. Of 56 salmon analyzed, only one was over the new action level. MDA's Laboratory Division analyzed samples of 20 coho, weighing from 3½ to 10 pounds, and 36 chinook weighing nine to 23 pounds. The 20 coho were analyzed with skin on. The 36 chinook were all analyzed with skin off, however, 12 of them were also analyzed with skin on. Previous testing has shown organic chemicals like PCB tend to accumulate in fatty deposits under the skin and along the belly and dorsal area of the fish. Samples of skinless fillets show dramatically reduced levels of PCB, DDT, dieldrin and chlordane. The 12 chinook samples were trimmed of all belly tissue and all darm meat along the lateral line. Total pesticide and chemical residue in skinless fillets of chinook were cut approximately in half compared to those with skin on. The fish samples were collected and the harvesting weir operated by DNR.

Charged by law with protecting the purity and wholesomeness of the public food supply, MDA has monitored Gret Lakes fish for various pollutants continuously since 1971, Kindinger said.

The FDA action levels are five ppm for DDT, two ppm for PCB, three-tenths of on ppm for dieldrin and chlordane.

Girls volleyball team to make season debut in tournament

The Charlevoix High School girls volleyball team will open its season Saturday at the Petoskey Invitational Volleyball Tournament, the first major event of the 1985 season, Coach Brenda Bryan has announced.

Coach Bryan said that she has a young team after losing many experienced players by graduation but, at this point, it looks like a good season." The girls are working hard, they're enthusiastic and I think we'll have a pretty good season," she said.

On the roster will be several veterans from last season and others who have had some experience. Among these will be:

Meg Fowler, a senior, and Lara Stargardt, a junior, experienced setters and Missy Sandahl, a senior spiker. Others returning from last season are two juniors, Stacey Way and Carol Holm; two seniors who played earlier but did not see action last year, Angela McClanaghan and Maureen Buday, are also candidates.

Other candidates up from JV ranks are Amy Antaya, who shows promise, Ann Boulton, Chaya Moore and Shannon Titsworth, juniors, and Jennifer Sell and Rhonda Brown, sophomores.

Tentative starters at Petoskey will likely be Fowler, Stargardt, Sandahl, Holm, McClanaghan and Buday, Bryan said, adding that most of the players will likely see some action.

"It's early, this will be our first real trial. I'll have to see how they play as a team," Bryan added.

There is also a full JV squad, Bryan said.

After playing in the tournament Saturday, the team will take to the road, traveling to East Jordan for a non-league game on Monday.

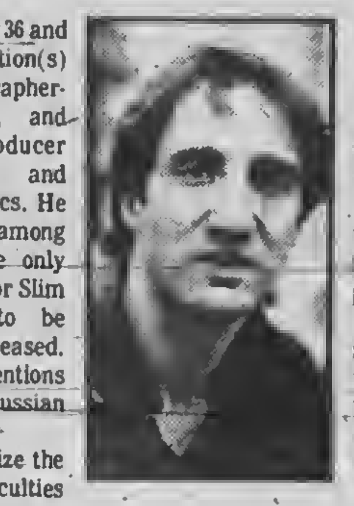
incorporated them, along with photos of American people, into a poster-sized 1985 calendar entitled "People in Important Places." He is now marketing the calendar through retail stores and mailorder.

Terr is the son of Dr. Isaac Terr who moved to Charlevoix with his wife Mildred shortly after World War II and operated his medical practice out of an office on Clinton St. where the parking lot next to the former Erber Auto building is now located. Dr. and Mrs. Terr and their five children made their home on Auld St. before moving to Las Vegas, New Mexico in 1958 when Jim was nine years old.

Jim Terr is now 36 and lists his occupation(s) as photographer-designer, actor, and singer-writer-producer of records and commercial jingles. He has produced, among other things, the only album by the actor Slim Pickens ever to be commercially released. He proudly mentions that he is of Russian descent.



Jim Terr

"I don't minimize the serious difficulties between the U.S. and the Soviet Union," he says, "But it is clear to me that war, or 'Cold War', dehumanizes the adversary and this makes things more difficult and dangerous and insoluble. I want to rehumanize the adversary, to allow people to experience a human connection with Soviet people and hopefully feel even more incentive for working out this big problem we have."

If the comments Terr has received from the many influential people he sent copies of his calendar are any indication, he has indeed attracted worthwhile attention to his cause.

Following are some of those comments as quoted by Terr in a press release:

"I thoroughly enjoyed seeing the pictures of what appears to be just plain people. I appreciate your efforts." Michael Deaver, assitant to the President.

"Most interesting and informative...congratulations on a nice job." Central Intelligence Agency.

"Extremely interesting. They indeed convey the human dimension you strove to achieve." U.S. State Department.

"Fine photos...a reminder that humanity is central to both countries and that in the name of humanity, both countries should attempt to resolve their differences." Hodding Carter, former aide to President Jimmy Carter.

"Removed from all the political disputes of both countries are the peoples of these lands and there they are in this calendar: alive and full of desire for more life." Author Norman Mailer.

"More than a calendar - a moving, exhilarating portrait of our time." Author Studs Terkel.

Points out an impressed Dwight Chapin, columnist for the San Francisco Examiner, "Anything the Central Intelligence Agency, the U.S. State Department, Studs Terkel and Norman Mailer all like bears a closer look."

Terr's calendar with a message.

Terr's calendar is 13" by 26" and printed on both sides. It is printed on heavy, glossy paper and even includes a 3-D picture of some Soviet people that can be viewed with an ordinary mirror. It can be obtained for $3 each, or two for $5, plus $1 postage and handling charge per order (not per calendar) from Blue Canyon Productions, Box 509, Las Vegas, New Mexico (not Nevada).

Terr is sensitive about being associated with the peace movement.

"I have specifically excluded from the calendar, as I have from the slide show and narration, any political or editorial comment - including even the word 'peace', which I feel can alienate the viewers on whom this could have the greatest impact," he said.

His next effort to establish more rapport between the superpowers figures to be even more ambitious. Terr has plans to tour the Soviet Union next year with a band.

Extension program changes name

As of January 1, 1985, Family Living Education (FLE) changed it's name to Extension Home Economics.

"We're reinstating the name Extension Home Economics as a result of a marketing survey that took place in April and May of 1984," said Doris Wetters, assistant director of Extension for Home Economics.

The survey showed that business and community leaders in all regions of the state reported a very low identification with the name Family Living Education, despite the fact that it's been in use for 25 years.

In 1959, the name of the program was changed to broaden the vision of work of the staff members as they responded to the major societal shift of the time — the rapid increase of outside-the-home employment for women.

"Reinstating the original title brings us in line with most other states. This has always been the title used in the Smith-Lever legislation," Wetters said. "Our professional staff members are called Extension Home Economists and the program title is now consistent with the position title."

"The name change does not indicate a change in philosophy or direction," said Janet Rathke, Charlevoix County Extension Home Economist. The Home Economics program will continue to be responsive to social and economic needs of Michigan residents, and to help families learn new skills and information for better living.

For more information on the Home Economics program, contact your county Cooperative Extension Service office at 319 B N. Lake Street or 582-6232.

LIKE SNOW? Those who do have gotten their wish as Charlevoix has been covered with well over a foot of snow since January 1. The white stuff marked a pleasant change of climate from a post-Christmas rainfall that washed away much of the base at local ski hills and made for some unseasonably swampy areas around town.

Reorganized United Way campaign finishes over goal

by DAVE KNIGHT

United Way of Charlevoix has written the final chapter of its amazing rebirth with the announcement this week that donations have topped the $30,000 mark.

That total has not only surpassed the 1984 goal by $5,000, according to United Way president James Marshall, but has earned recognition from the Michigan United Way as the most successful local campaign in the state in terms of dollars raised over the previous year's goal.

"We knew when we attended the achievement dinner in Lansing in early December that we were third in the state and the last gasp of the campaign produced $3,000," said Marshall, "One thousand-dollar check came to me at my home on Christmas Eve from a grateful Charlevoix resident."

The local United Way campaign bounced back this year from a state of inactivity the year before caused by the Board of Directors' terms all expiring at once. A new board was organized in February of 1984 and kicked off its campaign with a door-to-door drive the following October.

Because of the missed campaign in 1983, some agenciea benefiting from the United Way did not receive their full 1984 allotments, said Marshall, but the overwhelming success of the '84 fundraising will allow some of that shortfall to be made up.

"At the present time we have funds amounting to $26,000 in cash and we will make the first allocations after the board conducts two hearings in January on current agency needs," said Marshall who explained that $4,000 is still to be collected from pledges.

United Way of Charlevoix serves 12 agencies including United Way of Michigan which, Marshall pointed out, received $2,500 from the local drive last year but returned over $16,000 in services in return, mostly through the heart fund.

He also cited the low operational costs of the Charlevoix campaign which, at $1,200, was only five percent of the amount collected. The national average for United Way operational costs, said Marshall, is 7.2 percent.

No asbestos in Charlevoix schools, board told

By FRAN MARTIN

"We have been advised that there is "absolutely, positively no asbestos" anywhere in the Charlevoix schools," Vincent Olach told the Charlevoix Board of Education at its regular meeting Monday night.

The long anticipated report followed an inspection of the Charlevoix schools by an inspector from the Industrial Testing Laboratories in Grand Rapids licensed by the E.P.A. to do such inspections under E.P.A. laws and requirements. Olach explained that the inspections are required to locate any friable asbestos in a form that would crumble. The chief concern in the Charlevoix schools was the soffits in the gymnasium at the K-5 school. Upon examination these were found to contain no asbestos, Olach said.

"That's the best report we could have received," he said after reporting to the board.

Olach said he received the report via telephone call because the inspector was aware of the great concern regarding the results. He said a full report will be forthcoming.

In the only action taken at the meeting, Superintendent Gordon W. VanWieren was designated as the representative to apply for federal aid under Public Law 874 for the 1984-85 school year.

Snowmobiling in city okayed

by DAVE KNIGHT

A new ordinance which will allow snowmobiling in the City of Charlevoix on designated routes and with several regulations was approved unanimously by City Council at its regular meeting Monday night.

The revised policy had been pushed by local snowmobilers who pointed to successful snowmobile operation laws in neighboring cities such as East Jordan and Grayling.

Most of the language in the ordinance was worked out by council and snowmobilers at a previous work session so there was little discussion at Monday's meeting.

While City Treasurer James Brinker pointed out that, under procedure, the ordinance - and thus legal snowmobiling in the city - does not technically take effect until 30 days after passage by council.

Concerned snowmobilers in the audience were assured by City Manager Michael Wiesner, however, that city police will be instructed not to arrest snowmobilers operating in compliance with the new law. He did point out, though, that sheriff's deputies and state police were not under his direction.

Wiesner also said that signs to mark the designated routes have been ordered and that the posts have already been erected.

See page 3 for a Snowmobiler's Guide to the City developed by the Courier, complete with a map of designated routes and a list of regulations.

In other action, council:

-Postponed action on a request by Roger Peacock of Expressions Unlimited to rezone property at 306 Petoskey Ave. from R-1 to C-1 to accomodate a floral shop. Attorney David Fershee, representing Peacock, requested that the matter be turned back to the Planning Commission for study of "additional options".

-Approved a loan to the Downtown Development Authority of $16,176 to cover cost overruns on the walkway under the bridge on the north side of the Pine River Channel.

County salaries average 5% boost

by PEG OHLE

Employees of Charlevoix County are starting the new year with salary increases amounting to approximately five percent.

As approved by the County Board of Commissioners, the 1985 salary schedule of elected and appointed officials is:

County clerk, $19,900; treasurer, $19,900; register of deeds, $17,872; sheriff, $23,695; under-sheriff, $21,108; prosecuting attorney, $34,800; civil defense director, $15,160; equalization director, $22,525; planner, $20,446; building code official, $21,024; building maintenance man, $16,379; drain commissioner (part time) $4,263; veterans affairs counselor (21 hours a week), $8,430; medical examiner (as needed) $545 plus call fees of $52.50 in own area and $78.50 out of own area; and members of the County Road Commission, $1,260 a year for attending one meeting a month.

The Circuit Judge receives a supplement of $9,078 a year (his salary is paid by the State), and the District and Probate Judges, who are also State-paid, receive a supplement of $5,850 a year.

The manager of Whiting Park, a non-classified employee, receives $5,418 a year.

Technical, office, paraprofessional, and service personnel are paid on a grade and level basis beginning at $5.60 an hour ($10,199 a year) and progressing to $20.64 an hour ($37,558) a year.

Members of the Board of Commissioners this year gave themselves their first salary raise since 1978. They will now receive $165 a month for attending one day and one night meeting. This is an increase of 10 percent over last year's salary of $150 a month.

Commissioners also upped their per diem allowance for committee and liaison work from $60 to $65. Members of the County Board's Ways and Means Commitee will also receive this allowance.

Other per diem allowances were also increased, and now stand at:

Board of Canvassers and Plat Board, $65; County Road Commissioners for special meetings, $52.50; Welfare Commission, Elections Commission, Special Elections Commission, Building Authority, Economic Development Commission Board, Transit Committee, and Transportation Authority Board, $47.50; Planning Commission, $42.50; Jury Board, Parks Commission, Building Code Appeals Board, Commission on Aging, and Library Board, $35.

The Board of Commissionera stipulates that any per diem for any of its commitee meetings which last less than four hours including travel time shall be $45. Commissioners will recive $65 per diem and expenses when attending State and Regional Commissioners' meetings.

Elected officials and appointed department heads will receive not over $300 plus mileage when attending their annual State conventions.

Mileage allowances for all county employees and outside board or commission membera has been increased to 26 cents a mile, an increase of three cents over last year's allowance and six cents over the 1983 allowance. The explanation for this increase is that although the price of gasoline is decreasing, the cost of automobiles is not.

For those interested in comparisons, 1985 salaries for elected and appointed officials in Emmet County are:

Clerk, $24,689; treasurer, $25,418; register of deeds, $22,277; sheriff, $26,978; prosecutor, $49,500; civil defense, $11,825; equalization director, $21,787; planner, $32,531; building code official, $24,523; veterans' affairs counselor, $9,582.

Members of the Emmet County Board of Commissioners receive $166.66 a month salary for attending regular meetings. They are paid per diem at the rate of $35 for meetings lasting up to five hours and $60 for longer meetings. However, unlike Charlevoix County Commissioners, their per diem does not include traveling time.

Communication works

by Dave Knight

At his first City Council meeting as mayor Monday night, Hal Hill made a comment that I think would be a marvelous theme for his new administration.

"We've got to have more communication," he said, "Especially between groups and people working on the same things".

The context of his remarks was a discussion about the Downtown Development Authority's frustrated attempts to initiate an improvemeot program for East Park last year.

Indeed, this was a classic case of too many people going in too many different directions with the end result, to date, being a big, fat nothing.

It was about this time last year when the idea came up for a skating rink in East Park. Initially, many people - including me - thought it was a good idea. I still do. At any rate, as people started talking about where to put an ice rink, many other proposals for improvements to the park began to surface.

Then-city manager Bob Hunt recognized correctly that if anything were to be done with East Park, first, there had better be a comprehensive plan involved, and, second, that plan better enjoy a broad consensus.

The DDA took the nod and sponsored a series of public meetings at which scores of suggested unprovements were tossed around. There was good attendance at the meetings and after thorough sifting and winnowing, a plan was endorsed that addressed everything from redesigning the fish ponds to moving the dog runs.

It was a good plan and, amazingly, there was money on hand to get to work on it. Council had budgeted $25,000 for East Park improvements and a well-timed bequest from the Robert Bridge estate of $10,000 earmarked for the same purpose added to the coffer.

So what happened?

As it turned out, the DDA was not the only group with its mind on East Park. The city Parks and Recreation Commission - where the ice rink debate began in the first place - felt it should have been officially consulted or included, or both, during the planning process. The Chamber of Commerce wanted to be more involved because the planning involved significant changes to its quarters.

Eventually, the city council did go along with a program to add more bathrooms but opted to hire an architect rather than go along with a working design developed by Hunt and contractor Bo Boss. The project is apparently still on the drawing board.

The bulk of the East Park improvement plans remain in a sort of limbo because nobody seems to be able to agree on what portion should be phased in first.

Another example in the same vein is Hoffmann Park. The late Dr. Walter Hoffmann announced in December, 1983 that he was donating his property on the channel to the city for use as a park. He wanted until the following August, however, to empty the house standing on the lot. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful dutifully began a planning process, in which even Dr. Hoffmann took part, and produced a nicely drawn proposal well before the August deadline.

But the house - with its familiar white Christmas tree in the second floor window - still stands.

Somewhere between meetings of KCB, Parks and Recreation and council, the momentum got lost.

When Mayor Hill says we've got to talk to each other more about these things, he's exactly right.

Nothing wrong with getting everybody involved but the secret is to communicate with one another and pull together. That's how things get done.

Clockwise

Oh, deer!

by Bob Clock

The first week in January is long past the time that deer are supposed to be yarded up awaiting the spring thaw.

But take it from me, they aren't.

I was driving from Petoskey to Charlevoix the other night when I encountered an entire herd of deer starting to cross the highway. It was too late for me to stop, and one little fellow collided with my left front headlamp, which shattered.

He cntinued cross the road and disappeared.

So take heed. He's still out there — and so are thousands of his brothers and sisters.

ALTHOUGH I am knee-deep in middle-age, I cannot remember a time when the Soviet Union's Andrei Gromyko was not on center stage when it came to foreign affairs.

He and Secretary of State George Shultz were in Geneva this week, laying the groundworkfor future arms control talks.

Gromyko was born in 1909 and was little more than a schoolboy during the days of the Russian Revolution.

But he must have entered government service very young, because his has been a household name in the United States since the days of Joseph Stalin.

He strikes me a a man who does what has to be done, but he doesn't particularly enjoy it. He looks like he would rather be off in a corner reading a good book.

THE ONLY MEMBER of the Soviet hierarchy I have met personally was Anastas Mikoyan, the No. 2 man under Nikita Khrushchev a generation ago.

Mikoyan paid a visit to the United States in the mid-1950s and the Ford Rouge Plant was on his itinerary. As a reporter for the Ford Rouge News, I went along to ask pointed questions.

Mikoyan was not the gruff Russian I had expected and was very easy to please. Assembly lines and stamping plants apparently delighted him. He didn't speak any better English than I did Russian, which was zilch. Furthermore, it was virtually impossible to carry on any kind of intelligent conversation through translators, with heavy machinery clanging in our ears.

I ended up spending most of the day with Mikoyan's son, who spoke very fine English and was a real camera nut. He also was very fond of his dad, and took lots of pictures of him.

After the Mikoyans' visit, the Russian bear never again appeared terribly frightening.

Letters from readers:

Unwise demands

To the Editor:

A few years ago in my search for answers to the new attitude within the social and political fields of the USA, I came across a volume by one Dr. Gannon, PhD. entitled Dictionary of the Left which listed prominent Americans and organizations which appeared to have accepted a new doctrine. It was a revelation to me as it was so at variance with American thinking prior to WW II.

I found the name of one Sol Hurok, an immigrant from the Soviet state, who had become publicity agent for singer Marian Anderson. He was the individual who started the barefaced canard that the Daughters of the American Revolution had refused to allow his black artist the use of their Constitution Hall auditorium although he knew full well that former black artists had used the facility from time to time without hindrance. His lie netted Hurok a three-fold return: It increased sympathy and increased money at the school auditorium which he obtained for her concert. That increased his own take-home pay and he expressed his hatred for Historical Amercia at the expense of the victim, the DAR in as far as TV news broadcasters resurrect the lie and give credence to Hurok's lie.

I also found to my dismay that the World Council as well as the National Council of Churches were listed a decade before Reader's Digest printed their own expose of the organization. For the information of concerned citizens, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom was also listed.

Now the 64-dollar question is this: Is the Little Traverse International League for Peace and Freedom associated with the parent International organization or are they a separate entity? Without doubt even the members do not know. Their recent demand addressed to our Michigan legislators in Washington that America abandon all aid to our Central American neighbors makes loyal Americans question such an abandonment to allow the communists to secure their conquests on our own hemisphere in direct opposition to our own Monroe Doctrine. It doesn't seem possible that Americans who are smug and snug in freedom and creature comforts should wish such a fate or are they like the son of Adam "not their brother's keeper" in regard to our neighbors to our South.

It is to be hoped now that Communist China has disavowed the Marxist-Lenin idealogy as obsolete (according to a TV news broadcast on national American networks) that freedom loving people in a Christian nation under God could not consider the consequences of the LTILPF command at both Robert Davis and Carl Levin of Michigan. Perhaps we can hope for a group of philanthropists who will step forward to purchase copies of Dr. Gannon's book which may still be published by Belmont, Massachusetts Press and present the publication to Michigan libraries for the further edification of all loyal Americans.

Protect the lake

To the Editor:

Now that Charlevoix is getting ready to use Lake Michigan for its drinking water supply, it's time we stopped using Round Lake as our toilet.

The Sheriff's department, the Coast Guard, and the D.N.R. should work together to enforce the law which prohibits the dumping of sewage into our lakes.

1. All boats should have sealed holding tanks.

2. There should be adequate free sewage pump-out stations at all public and private multiple docks.

3. The courts should fine all violators who pollute the water supply with maximum penalties.

Snow piles

Dear Editor:

Myself and others are concerned about the snow piles on the sidewalks. For example: Down by the Kusina Motors and the old bakery. We'd appreciate being able to walk on the sidewalk and not have to go around the snow onto the road.

Sidewalks are to walk on, not pile snow on. Another place is by Oleson's Parking lot. They push the snow right onto the sidewalk then the people have to walk either on the road or in the parking lot. Both are dangerous for kids and the elderly folks as many are hard of hearing and may not see or hear a car pulling up behind them.

Thank-you,
A Concerned Citizen

Sturm's painted figures are from a fantasy world of dragons and wizards

by PEG OHLE

Matt Sturm of Horton Bay, a senior at the University of Michigan, has an unusual and interesting hobby.

Matt creates miniature figures, mostly of fantasy people and things, and he's so good at it that this past summer he won two first place prizes and one second place prize in a contest featuring this kind of creative work.

He says his interest in making fantasy figures goes back to playing "Dungeons and Dragons", a game he learned as a child, for which he painted his first figures.

At Ann Arbor, Matt, took a course in figure-painting, which heightened his interest and improved his skills.

His elves and dragons and monsters and other creatures of the imagination start with bare miniature figures without face or personality, and Matt molds them and brings them to life with his artist's brushes -- first an undercoat of lacquer, then enamel, and finally the delicate shadings of oil points.

At the Gen Con Game Fair in Kenosha, Wisconsin, where 400 of the Fourth Annual Miniature Open contest entrants' works were displayed and judged, Matt's three entries were enthusiastically received.

His entry in the "Monster" category, a Hal Partha Cloud Giant, was considered good enough for a first place award. His entry in the "Personality" category, a wizard dressed in a blue gown with red stars and moon slivers and an owl on his shoulder, was characterized in Dragon Magazine as "marvelous". It, too, won a first place award.

Matt's third entry, in the "Fantasy Diorama" category, was a Hal Partha Jabberwock in Combat. It won him a second-place award.

As might be imagined, this kind of artistic creativity is tedious and time-consuming. Matt says he has spent up to 20 hours working on a figure, a fact of life that makes it impossible to create these figures for sale. "The market is not there," he says, "even if I pay myself only $3 an hour."

Last summer's contest was the first one Matt has ever entered, but he is looking forward to worldwide competition later on.

Matt assisted his teacher, Darryl Carpenter, with his classes, and when Carpenter left, Matt took over the teaching duties. He says he is now working with more delicate figures which he likes to display on walnut bases.

Creating fantasy figures is in some ways like creating military figures, which have long been used for make-believe war games and which have become hobby collection items. Matt thinks he may someday do some of these.

In the meantime, this college senior is wondering what he will do after graduation. He is thinking about continuing his creative writing courses in graduate school, about traveling, and about getting a job. As he sees it, his best job opportunity may be in designing objects for a games company.

Parker Brothers, where are you?

A "Ral Partha Cloud Giant" walking in the woods, complete with a shield for belt buckle, was one of Matt Sturm's award winning works.

Sturm's "Wizard" captured a first place in the Personality category of the competition.

New children's choir to hold registration

Registration and the first rehearsal for a new children's choir in Charlevoix has been scheduled for Wednesday, January 16, 4 p.m. at the First Congregational Church.

Vocalists Fran Tollas and Joann Dannecker will be directing the proposed choir, for which there will be two age categories, kindergarten through second grade and third grade through sixth grade.

All local youngsters of these ages who like to sing are invited to participate.

For Saints and Sinners

by Fr. Gary Heniser Christ Episcopal Church

In the Christian church year we are now in the season of Epiphany (pronounced E-pif'-any). It is a word that means "to manifest, reveal, or make known." It has to do with the Messiah of God, Jesus the Christ, being made known to the gentile world. The Feast of Epiphany is celebrated always on the 6th of January, which is the day immediatley following the 12 days of Christmas.

In the Christmas creche, or manger scene, we find all of the figures which are a part of the story of the birth of Christ in Luke 2 and Matthew 1, including the wise men. It is probably incorrect for us to assume that the wise men were there at the manger scene with the newborn. We find evidence of this in Matthew 2 as the gentile wise men visit King Herod, seeking the One who had been born King of the the Jews. Herod asked them when the star had appeared, and we learn that it had been within the last two years by the fact that Herod had all the male children in Bethlehem two years of age and under massacred, in a attempt to kill the Messiah.

Nevertheless, God revealed to the gentile world that they too had a part in his redemption. Were it not for this manifestation of himself we would not be celebrating Christmas, or Epiphany, or Easter, or anything else which has to do with the Christ. God continues to manifest himself to us through the presence and power of the Holy Spirit, his holy Word (written and living), throughout our worship, and answered prayer. The blessings of his kingdom are poured out upon those of us who believe and accept Jesus as God the Son and Savior of the world.

The Feast of Epiphany on January 6th is followed by the Season of Epiphany which runs to Ash Wednesday, the beginning of the season of Lent. As we enter this season of Epiphany, let us do so with the words of the apostle John on our lips, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God and the Word was God, He was with God in the beginning. Through him all things were made, without him nothing was made that has been made. In him was life, that life was the light of men. The light shines in the darkness but the darkness has not understood it.... The Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us. We have seen his glory, the glory of the One and Only who came with the Father, full of grace and truth."

Wrestlers bow to St. Francis and the Soo

The Charlevoix Rayder mat men dropped two matches Thursday, the first to Traverse City St. Francis by a score of 63-18 and the second to the Soo by a 48-22 score.

This Thursday, Charlevoix will host Petoskey and Onaway in a triangular meet and travel to the Kalkaska Invitational meet the following Saturday.

Devastated by illness, injuries and mental lapses that resulted in the loss of 30 points to the Soo, in the match with St. Francis the team won points only by forfeits. Coach Greg Bryan said Derek Dutcher and Chris Roberts wrestled well and are improving steadily and are starting to acquire mat sense.

In the match with St. Francis, Chad Thorp (98), Chris Roberts (105) and Jim Roberts (112) won by forfeit; Charlevoix gave up the next three weight classes by forfeit to Mike Kalbfleisch (119), Bill McGee (126) and Bob Revett (132); neither team had a competitor in the 138 weight class; Bob Walters (145) won by forfeit for the visitors; Dan Kelly (155) lost to Kelly Powers by a pin in 3:25; Dutcher (167) lost to Jake Rossi in a pin in 1:11; Jim Tilton (185) lost to Todd Osterhouse in a pin in 1:45 Joe Connally (198) won by forfeit and heavyweight Bill Marquart lost to Todd McManus by a pin in :56.

In the match-up with the Soo, Thorp pinned Todd Hubbard in 1:44; Chris Roberts won by a 14-4 decision over Jim Miller; Jim Robert won by a pin in 1:30 over Doug Waukash.

The next five classes were lost by forfeit.

Kelly lost to Eric Pulfrey by a pin in 5:12; Dutcher lost to Ken Dale by a pin in 1:46; Tilton won by a pin in [illegible] over Mike Roush; there was a double forfeit in the 198 weight class and Marquardt won by a pin in :29 over Derek Madigan in the heavyweight class.

Experienced ski team debuts

The Charlevoix Rayder ski teams will open their season Wednesday with their most experienced teams in recent years, Coach Eric Lundteigen said of his squads who will travel to Nubs Nob for a five-way meet.

Lundteigen lists five letter winners among the candidates for starting assignments on the girls' team and six boys who earned letters last season. In addition he has many enthusiastic and competitive skiers working hard in the hopes of getting the nod.

"I'm optimistic about the season. The kids have had a lot of experience and this is a big plus. How we do will depend on how well we ski and live up to our potential," Lundteigen said of his skiers.

He is also excited about the three invitational meets at Manistee, Cadillac and Traverse City to which his team has been invited. "You get invited when they think you'll be good competition," he added.

Among the letter winners for the girls' team are Noni Pace who qualified for state competition as a sophomore, another junior, Sue Miller, and seniors Christie Pace, Cheryl Aull and Lenore Erber.

Coming on strong are juniors Julie Balmer and Wendy Voison with lots of competition from freshmen Lauren Pace, Allison Hall, Sheryl Miller, Julie Bickersteth, Monica Havens and Wendy Balmer.

Jason Brindel, Matt Lignell, Jim Morgridge and Brian Wilmot, juniors and Sam Supernaw and Mark Trimper seniors make up the list of lettermen among the boys.

Rayders bounce Devils for 8 in a row

By ULF EVALDSSON

The Red Rayders Varsity posted their eighth win in a row when they beat the Blue Devils 47-40 in Gaylord Friday.

It was a fast moving and exciting game and, much due to two good defenses and poor shooting from both squads, there weren't many points scored through the game.

After the first quarter, when Rayders had an 11-7 lead, they took off and reached a 33-16 lead at halftime.

The third quarter score of 42-29 finally became 47-40, the Rayders only scoring five points in the final quarter.

Jody Putman and Brent Cole started out by giving Rayders a 5-0 lead in the first minute, and about halfway into the first stanza, Will Syvertsen poured in a basket, making it 9-3. John Pearl extended the lead to 11-3, before the Devils made it 11-7 through two field goals by top scorer in the game, Gary Scott.

As the second quarter got underway the Rayders began to hit stride, and when Sean Ferguson brought it to 17-11, followed by Pearl's resolute dunk, the Rayders already started to chalk up the victory.

Just before halftime, Rayders really pointed out their superiority by forging from 25-16 ahead to a fair 33-16 lead. Syvertsen and Cole did a good job grabbing lots of rebounds caused by poor shots, that didn't go the right way. Overall, the shooting was rather poor for both parts, so rebounding became an important part, which Rayders seemed to dominate in the game.

In the third quarter the Devils snapped back a little from their deficit. Rick Gray hit a bucket making it 37-22, and when Todd Drzewiecki brought it to 41-28, Gaylord's fans on the stands realized that there still was a chance.

In the last quarter the Rayders really lost control, and Gary Scott and Jon Kestner helped Devils from a 42-30 deficit to 42-37. Rayders tried to score, but Gaylord's defense did a good job keeping their zone clean. Six minutes into the quarter, Syvertsen finally could make the score 44-37 through a free throw, and even if Gary Scott hit another basket bringing it to 44-40, Rayders managed to keep their lead, putting a 47-40 win out of the fire.

"I'm really pleased with our first half, and our better rebounding and more aggresive play helped us a lot in the win," Rayder coach Dava Smith remarked. "The unusually low score was due to the poor shooting in the game, and neither of the teams' offense worked as they should Friday. Scorers for the Rayders were Pearl and Putman 10 each, Syvertsen and Sloan eight each, Ferguson six and Cole five. Cole had 13 rebounds, Syvertsen 12 and Pearl nine. Top scorer in the game, Gary Scott, poured in no less than 18 points for the Devils. Each team had 15 fouls.

Guthrie is new on-site NRC inspector at Big Rock plant

by DAVE KNIGHT

The loneliest job in Charlevoix?

Stephen C. Guthrie thinks he might have it.

This past fall, Guthrie assumed the position of senior resident inspector for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission at the Big Rock nuclear plant. As the man responsible for maintaining a federal "regulatory presence" at the facility, Guthrie's objectivity, in the eyes of the NRC, is crucial to his mission.

"By law, I'm not allowed to socialize, fraternalize or have contact with any employees of the utility outside the plant," said Guthrie, "And in a town the size of Charlevoix, that eliminates a lot of people."

Guthrie found out how stringent the NRC's policy is toward its onsite inspectors when he took his first assignment in such a capacity at the LaSalle County Station plant in Illinois.

"I couldn't even use the employees' locker room to change after jogging," he remembers.

Lonely though it may be in his one-man office at the Big Rock plant, Guthrie understands completely why his total objectivity and his job is important.

"My function is to literally oversee every aspect of the licensee's operation," said Guthrie.

Under federal law, Consumers Power Company, as owner of the Big Rock facility, is licensed by the NRC to operate. Inspectors used to be deployed on a regional basis but, as Guthrie explained, "There is just no way that someone based 400 miles away from a plant can adequately monitor its day-to-day operations."

Under the resident inspector program, the NRC stations an individual at each licensed plant and mandates that the inspector have "unfettered access" to each and every phase of the plant's operation. That includes everything from observing the control room to climbing around among miles of pipes to sitting in on staff meetings.

"About the only things I consider off limits are personnel matters," said Guthrie who added that Big Rock plant superintendent David P. Hoffman and the rest of his staff have been "particularly cooperative" - moreso, in fact, than management of other utility companies he has been involved with as an NRC inspector.

Stephen C. Guthrie

Guthrie, 37, obtained his background in nuclear power from the U.S. Navy, in which he served after graduating from high school. In 1980, after a brief stint teaching school in the hills of Virginia, he decided a rural teacher's salary was not meant for him and returned to the nuclear engineering field as an overhaul control engineer for the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard in Bremerton, Washington.

A couple years later, he had a chance to join the NRC and is now in his second assignment as a senior resident inspector.

His move from the LaSalle County Station plant in Illinois to Big Rock represented an interesting switch: while the LaSalle plant is the newest and largest facility of its type, Big Rock is the oldest and second smallest boiling water reactor in operation.

Guthrie was asked his opinion, from what he has observed over the past four months, on whether the 21-year old Big Rock plant shows any signs of aging that might shorten its scheduled 40-year operating life.

"The technology is sound, the equipment is good, the manufacture was well done in the first place," he said, "With proper maintenance, there is no reason why the facility cannot complete its planned operating life."

Guthrie was also asked about the effect on Big Rock's continued operation by recent financial setbacks experienced by Consumers Power Company following the cancellation last year of its Midland nuclear plant.

"I have not been able to find anyplace where Consumers Power's financial position has affected the day-to-day operational safety of the plant," he said.

In such areas where a serious financial bind might make itself evident, such as in obtaining expensive parts and in preventing an exodus of qualified operators, Guthrie said he has observed no difficulties at Big Rock.

Guthrie, who now makes his home in Norwood and plays acoustic guitar in his spare time, takes his role as public servant seriously.

"The general public is entitled to access to my work and, with the exception of just a few documents, all of my reports and records are available to the public," he said and added that he makes a point to avoid confusing technical language as much as possible in his inspection reports so that they can be better understood by "people off the street."

Other NRC files, reports, deliberations and other documents pertaining to the Big Rock plant have recently been moved from the Charlevoix Public Library to the North Central Michigan College library in Petoskey.

Guthrie also said that part of his job is being available for information and education duties in the community and that he welcomes speaking engagements from local organizations. He can be reached during office hours at 547-4068.

Community Ed. to hold Trivial Pursuit tournament

by DAVE KNIGHT

Charlevoix has long had a broad offering of recreational outlets available during the winter. There's basketball for men, volleyball for men and women, aerobic dancing, weight training, skiing and bowling to name a few.

Trouble is, they all involve physical activity.

Ken Bartley, for one, thinks that the time has come to provide some weeknight adult recreation for the more sedentary among us.

Bartley, coordinator of the Community Education program at Charlevoix High School, wants to fill this niche by taking advantage of a recent craze that has swept the nation - and made millionaires out of a couple Canadian trivia buffs.

Among the course offerings in the Community Education catalog this term is a Trivial Pursuit tournament.

For a $10 entry fee, an individual can either play by himself or join with another to make a two-person team. Competition will be held at the high school study hall at 7 p.m. Wednesday nights.

According to Bartley, the tournament will involve double elimination play and will continue each week until a winning indivdual or team emerges. Under the double elimination format, said Bartley, each entry will be able to play at least three times.

Pairings will be done by computer. Although final details have yet to be worked out, Bartley said the first night's session will probably be a practice round to familiarize participants with the tournament setting.

Karen Kirschner, who serves as a Community Education faculty member for Bartley, will be running the competition. Special ground rules will include a two-minute time limit for answering the questions. Kirschner will be the final judge as to whether a question is answered correctly. The edition of Trivial Pursuit to be used in the tournament will be the "Genius" edition, the original version of the game.

So how does a faddish parlor game fit into an adult education curriculum?

"This is more or less an experiment," said Bartley who tried the same sort of concept two years ago when he offered a Community Education course on solving the then-popular Rubik's Cube.

"It's more recreational than educational but it is a very popular activity for people right now and it does involve some sense of knowledge," he said.

The duration of the tournament is open ended; it is difficult for Bartley to predict how many weeks of competition it will take to determine a winner until he knows how many people are going to participate.

Also up in the air is the matter of prizes.

"We haven't worked out the details on prizes yet but I imagine we'll have some kind of trophy for the winner," said Bartley.

Building permits in county were highest in four years

by PEG OHLE

The Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection issued 520 permits during 1984, up slightly over 1983, and the highest number of permits since 1980.

Scanning a report of annual number of permits issued since the Department was started in 1975 brings to light a roller coaster up and down trend.

In 1975, the number of permits issued was 483; in 1976, it was 649; in 1977 it was 677; in 1978 it was 673; and in 1979 it was 699.

Then the trend turned downward. In 1980, the number of permits issued was 579; in 1981 it was 500; and in 1982 it was 446.

Since then, the trend has been upward. In 1983, the number of permits issued was 493, and in 1984, the number was again up over 500, at 520.

The costs of construction covered by the permits also show a similar up and down history, beginning with approximately $4,800,000 in 1975, rising to over $15 million in 1979, and sliding downward to approximately $7,800,000 in 1982. In 1984, the figure rose to well over $9 million again.

Permits for new residences also show an interesting trend. The highest number issued in a year was 172 in 1979. Then the trend started downward until 1982, when only 87 permits were issued. Again, the trend was reversed, and 111 permits for new residences were issued in 1983 and 109 permits in 1984.

In citing figures for construction costs of projects covered by building permits, it should be noted that the costs do not cover plumbing, heating, electrical, or any other mechanical work, and of course not the value of the land on which the structure is built.

Keeping this in mind, it is interesting to note that construction costs for individual residences averaged $20,914 in 1975 and have risen to $51,390 in 1984. While new condominium units (which have been listed as new residences) and low income housing change the picture somewhat from year to year, the rise in construction costs has been steady.

Construction of new commercial buildings in the County has not yet shown an upward trend, although there have been some significant projects of adding to and remodeling old buildings.

Construction costs of new commercial buildings were listed at $547,608 in 1984, but there was also spent $929,435 for additions and $78,500 for remdeling. This compares with $1,188,073 worth of new commercial buildings in 1983, plus $710,180 in commercial additions, and $101,750 in commercial remodeling.

The biggest year for construction in the County since records have been kept was 1978, when permits were issued for $15,247,635 worth of work. This included the $6,700,000 remodeling project at Medusa Cement.

The biggest year without such a special project was 1979, when 699 permits were issued for $10,867,335 worth of construction.

Local native starts new career as engineer

Madelyn Harwood, former Charlevoix resident now living in Indianapolis, Ind., has been awarded a B.S. degree in Engineering from the Purdue University School of Engineering and Technology in Indianapolis.

She has accepted a position with Public Service Indiana at Plainfield, Ind. where she had served her internship in Station Design.

Mrs. Harwood is the former Madelyn Rabach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Rabach and the wife of Stanley Harwood, also a former Charlevoix resident.

Mrs. Harwood returned to the classroom through a grant program entitled T.A.S.C. (Target: Alternative Science Careers).

The T.A.S.C. program was a government grant program which became available in January 1982 and was concluded in December 1984 for women who had earned baccalaureate degrees in mathematics, physics, or closely related sciences no later than January of 1980. Participants in the program earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Engineering with a field of study in electrical engineering. Engineering internships were offered in the Indianapolis area.

Mrs. Harwood's mother, Mrs. Rabach, said Madelyn had always wanted to go into engineering but had gone through teaching because, at that time, it was not a field that offered many opportunities to women. Instead, she became a math instructor.

Mrs. Rabach said her daughter credits her love of math from the training she received as a student at the Charlevoix High School under Ray Kipke, who is now retired. She graduated from high school in 1958 and from Central Michigan University with a B.S. degree in Education in 1962.

Her first teaching experience was at Copper City in the Keewanaw peninsula while her husband was completing his studies at Michigan Technological University.

She later taught at Clio, at Longfield Junior High in Flint where was department chairperson from 1974-78 and, more recently, at the Plainfield Public Schools at Plainfield, Ind. from 1978-81.

Her husband is a Manufacturing Engineer with Indianapolis Truck and Bus, a subsidiary of the General Motors Corp. They have two children, Stanley II and Carolyn, both students of the Indianapolis campus of Purdue University.

Those needing more information may contact Ms. Crawford at 536-7452.

Cribbage tourney starts

The annual Mason-Oddfellow cribbage tournament got off to an excellent start Thursday with 8 tables in play Don Couse, tournament secretary, reports.

Richard Bergmann and Sims Baker, representing the defending champions, the Oddfellows, posted perfect scores of 968 to give the Oddfellows a 341 point lead. Ted Pennell Jr. had 928 for the Masons.

Play will move to the American Legion Post Home on East Garfield at 8 p.m. Thursday.

All cribbage players in the area are invited to play in the annual tournament which will run for a total of 10 weeks. Any questions relating to the tournament may be directed to Couse.

Bailey now heads L.T. Conservancy

Thomas C. Bailey, a former National Park Ranger, fishing guide, and citizen conservationist has taken over as the Executive Director for the Little Traverse Conservancy. He comes to the post from the state Department of Natural Resources, where he worked for over six years in hazardous waste managemment and water quality programs.

Bailey worked a part-time schedule in December, juggling his new responsibilities with the Conservancy with a phasing-out from his work in the DNR. Now, however, he is working full-time for the Coservancy. "In December I worked several days here and there to get started," he says. "Now I can devote full time efforts to the Conservancy - I feel like I'm really here."

The son of a life-long DNR Wildlife Biologist, Bailey says he learned about conservation and enjoyment of the outdoors at an early age. "I learned a lot from my dad," he says, "especially in the Marquette area where I did most of my growing up." Outdoor activities are things Bailey has enjoyed since he was old enough to pursue them. He also learned about working for conservation at an early age. "I learned that it's just as important to work for the outdoors as it is to enjoy it," he ways. As a result, Bailey has a long history of involvement in conservation issues.

During his high school years, Bailey was involved in working for passage of conservation legislation in Michigan, and began a seven-year effort that resulted in Wilderness Act protection for Isle Royale National Park. Summers of his college years were spent working as a National Park Ranger at Isle Royale, and Grand Portage, Minnesota. Bailey holds a Bachelor's Degree in Park and Recreation Resources from MSU, and pursued graduate studies in Resource Economics, Land Use, and Environmental Law.

When asked how he views his job with the Conservancy, Bailey says his main goal is to continue in the same direction the Conservancy has gone thusfar, making additional progress. "The Conservancy has done a good job of defining its role in the community," he says. "I see the Conservancy as playing a key part in assuring that the quality of life in northern Michigan is maintained. People who live in northern Michigan, and those who vacation here are attracted by the woods, the shoreline, the ridges, and the water. The Conservancy is helping to assure that green, open spaces will always be available to people. By looking after our tracts of wild land, we also assure that wildlife and water quality values will also be enhanced."

Recreation is also an important concern to Bailey. "One reason our preserves exist is for their own sake," he says, "for the plants, the birds, the water, the trees, but they're also there for people." The preserves can be enjoyed in many ways, he says, from quiet walks to search out rare birds and plant species to more intensive recreational uses such as the beach at Thorne Swift preserve just outside of Harbor Springs. "We want to encourage people to enjoy the preserves," Bailey says, "whether they're bird watchers, botanists, or people who just like to walk in the woods, cross-country ski, or use the beach."

Bailey's wife, Jane, is a special education teacher consultant and partner in the Lansing firm of Educational Strategies, Inc. Due to business commitments, she will remain in Lansing until June. In the meantime, Bailey says, "she'll be coming up for a lot of ski weekends, and to look for a new place to live." The Baileys are not new to the area, having lived on Walloon Lake when Jane taught English and Reading at Petoskey High School several years ago.

Raymond J. Cull

Former Beaver Islander ends career as captain

by FRAN MARTIN

A former Beaver Island resident, Raymond J. Cull, 62, of Bay City, has retired as captain with the American Steamship Co., most recently in command of the "American Mariner", a 730 foot diesel ship.

Joining the company in 1932, he advanced to third mate the following year. He said he then spent a good part of his sailing career as first mate, one of three people who continually stand watch and operate the ship under the captain's orders. He had been captain of ships owned by the American Steamship Company for the past eight years.

Cull, who has retired after more than 30 years experience on the Great Lakes, said in an interview with a Bay City newspaper, that he first gained experience on the water, working with his father aboard a fish tug as a youngster of 12 years. During World War II, he served three years in the U.S. Navy and, following his discharge, returned to work with his father. However, by 1950 commercial fishing had almost become a thing of the past, partially because of the lamprey eel. It was at this time he began his sailing career in earnest with the American Steamship Co.

The lake carriers on which he served and later skippered operated between Duluth, Minn., and Buffalo, N.Y., most of the time.

In the interview, Cull said that Great Lakes shipping diffes from ocean travel because it's a different sea on the lakes. The length of the swells and the crest of the waves are closer together and, as a result, it puts a lot more stress on the boat, he explained.

Great Lakes captains, he said, are paid more than ocean-going captains and must be licensed as pilots and masters.

He alsao told of numerous changes in the industry since he became a member of the merchant marine in 1952. He gives as an example the fact that one sailed from March until December, rarely past New Year's Day, moving from port to port with no time off. Now, one works 60 days and has 20 days off.

The new ships are much larger and, in some ways, easier to handle, especially on the open sea. However, they are still hard to handle when being "squeezed" through narrow bridge openings and narrow channels constructed for smaller vessels. He said that sophisticated radar and automatic navigation systems make sailing on open seas easier.

While captain of the American Mariner, Cull set a record by bringing the ship into the Saginaw River, making it the largest vessel to ever navigate the river. To accomplish this feat he was forced to back the 730 foot vessel which is 78 feet wide and draws 45 feet of water when loaded some 13 miles to reach the open water in Saginaw Bay.

Cull also said the new ships, being larger, carry heavier loads but, because of automation, require smaller crews. He said the ships once carried 10,000 tons and now they carry 60,000. Where once they required a crew of 40, the new diesels now require 28.

He also said that more sailors are attending the Maritime Academy at Traverse City and coming aboard better trained than in years past.

Cull is married to the former Claire Left also a Beaver Island native. They made their home on Beaver Island until moving to Bay City in 1956. The couple has 10 children, two of whom are following in their father's footsteps. Michael operaties a tug out of Saginaw and Muskegon and John is presently sailing with the American Steamship Co.

Now that he's retired, he plans to spend the winter months in Florida and the remainder of the year at a home they have owned on Beaver Island for some years.

His family and friends hosted a retirement party in his honor last weekend. Joining them from Charlevoix were his brother-in-law, Francis "Bud" Left, captain of the Medusa Challenger, his uncle, Gerald Left, who is now retired after 30 years as a Great Lakes sailor, and his aunt, Mrs. Henry Supernaw.

Volunteers sought for EMT training

During this season of giving, volunteers standout as a group of dedicated individuals. In a rural community, many services which we expect and rely on are available only because of volunteers. For a moment stop and think: if I needed an ambulance, who would come? If I was involved in a car accident and couldn't get out of the car, who would help?

In many rural communities, we have volunteers who are trained and licensed by the state of Michigan. Since 1981, any community providing an ambulance service is required to provide an emergency medical technician and an ambulance attendant 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. This is often difficult to accomplish. Licensing of ambulance attendants and basic EMTs requires State approved courses with regular on-going yearly refresher training. Training programs frequently are dificult to attend due to time, distance and cost.

Recognizing the importance of EMS training and coordination, the Board of Health for District Health Department No. 3 created an EMS Advisory Council. The council is composed of sixteen members from Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. The members are appointed to the council by their respective Board of Commissioners. The council is in the process of developing objectives to meet short and long term EMS goals.

The EMS Advisory Council realizing a need to help the community meet the very increasing demands of EMS Regulation has established a monthly ongoing continuing education program. The program is offered on a rotational basis around the district, with the next topic to be offered in the Central Lake area on spinal injuries, fractures and splinting, head and next injuries. (Saturday, January 26, 1985)

A basic EMT course will be offered in the Central Lake are starting in the end of January the EMT course will be two nights a week for 16 weeks.

If you or someone you know is interested in becoming an EMT or are currently an EMT in need of credits, call or write to John Lamont, District Health Dept. No. 3, 2233 Mitchell Court, Petoskey, Phone (616) 347-6014.

Developer sues Hayes Twp. over Oyster Bay project

by PEG OHLE

The former property of Camp Charlevoix, consisting of 338 acres of land and 2,800 feet of shoreline on Oyster Bay on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix, has become the subject of a lawsuit against Hayes Township by the present owners of the property.

The plaintiff, Fox Associates, Inc., a downstate Michigan Corporation, has filed suit in Charlevoix Circuit Court asking that the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance be delcared void and unenforceable, and that Fox Associates be permitted to build a Planned Unit Development on the property in accordance with plans submitted to the Township Planning Commission last year. The Township denied a permit on the basis of its Zoning Ordinance.

According to the brief, prepared by the law firm of Marco, Litzenburger and Smith of Petoskey and Thomas D. Pointner of Charlevoix, Section 513 of the Zoning Ordinance allows not more than "one slip or dock space for each 100 feet of lake frontage or lake access of more than one single family living unit for each 100 feet of lake frontage."

This Section, the Plaintiff contends, "limits and deprives the Plaintiff of its riparian rights in and to the navigable waters of Lake Charlevoix", and further, it is not written under the provisions of the Township Rural Zoning Act of 1943 as amended, so does not apply.

The brief notes also that Hayes Township takes up only part of the Lake Charlevoix shoreline, that there are five other townships and three cities on Lake Charlevoix, each having separate zoning ordinances. Therefore, the brief continues, the restrictions imposed by Hayes Township are "unreasonable, arbitrary, and capricious" because they deny equal protection of the law to residents of Hayes Township in comparison to the access to lake waters by other riparian owners in Charlevoix County.

Also, the brief states that the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance was not based on a Master Plan and thus does not comply with provisions of the Township Rural Zoning Act.

Snowmobile mishap claims life of Mark Koontz, 30

Mark Allen Koontz, 30, who was instrumental in recent efforts to allow regulated snowmobiling in the City of Charlevoix, died Friday, January 11 as the result of injuries from a snowmobile accident in South Arm Township.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department reports, the accident occurred on Flagg Rd. about 1½ miles west of Highway M-66. David Alan Boss, who was riding with Koontz on a separate machine, told deputies that Koontz apparently failed to make a curve in the roadway, went over a snowbank, plunged into a ditch and climbed the other side where he struck a tree.

The accident was reported by Boss at about 10:20 p.m. who went to a nearby residence to call for help. Transported to the Charlevoix Area Hospital via East Jordan ambulance, Koontz was pronounced dead by Dr. Reed Freidinger, Charlevoix County medical examiner.

It was Koontz and his father, Robert Koontz, who worked on behalf of local snowmobilers to change city policy regarding the use of snowmobiles within city limits. He helped draft an ordinance passed by City Council January 7 allowing snowmobilers to use specified routes in the city to make their way to outlying trails.

Young Koontz attended several council meetings and work sessions to discuss the snowmobile ordinance and worked closely with local law enforcement officials to draft a workable policy.

He had reportedly taken advantage of the new ordinance for only the second time at the time of Friday's accident. The fatality became the county's first of 1985.

Claudia Kenifeck named new Chamber of Commerce exec.

by FRAN MARTIN

Claudia C. Kenifeck, 35, a resident of Charlevoix for the past three years, has been named Executive Director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. She will assume the position February 4, Gary Gleason, president of the Chamber and chairman of the selection committee said.

Mrs. Kenifeck will succeed Jacquie Merta in the position which Mrs. Merta held for 9½ years.

Mrs. Kenifeck was among 23 applicants for the job and among seven interviewed, said Gleason.

"In selecting Mrs. Kenifeck, we felt that we have chosen the person best qualified to meet the needs of the Charlevoix Chamber. The candidates we interviewed were all very well qualified but Mrs. Kenifeck, we felt, met the criteria we had set as our guidelines. Finding someone to succeed Mrs. Merta has not been easy for she has left some big shoes to be filled. Basically, it comes down to who would do the best job, all things considered," Gleason said of the committee's decision.

In an interview after her appointment, Mrs. Kenifeck said, "All the positions I have held have been people and sales related. I think this position will follow this same pattern."

She has held positions as a salesperson for business machines, in the marketing of Visa cards for the Michigan National Bank of Detroit, three years as West Michigan territory manager for the Johnson Wax Co. headquartered in Grand Rapids and three years as territory manager for Industrial Chemical Sales.

Mrs. Kenifeck is no newcomer to Northern Michigan though she has lived here permanently for only three years. "We, that is my family and friends, have been coming to Northern Michigan for more than 20 years to enjoy the skiing, sailing and the many other attractions the area offers."

Since her marriage to William Kenifeck three years ago she has made her home on Lake Charlevoix.

Her most recent activities on a local level were as a member of the 1984 United Way fund campaign that met its goal and as a member of the Chamber's Ambassador's Club. During its sales campaign she was successful in bringing in eight new members.

"These are two things I'm really happy about, they were real challenges," she commented.

She is a member of the Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority and co-chairperson of the annual Home Tour sponsored by the chapter which raises money for the Charlevoix Area Hospital. She is also a member of the Charlevoix Yacht Club and has served on various committees and, as a member of the staff at the office of Dr. Robert Tollas, was public relations director for the Community Dental Health Committee sponsored by local dentists.

In addition, she has been a certified ski instructor since 1969 and enjoys not only skiing but all outdoor sports.

A native of Bloomfield Hills where she attended high school, she has an associate degree in Liberal Arts from Green Mountain College in Vermont.

City Council hears request from Hill for mayor's office

by DAVE KNIGHT

Should the mayor have his own office in City Hall?

That question sparked a lively debate at Monday night's City Council meeting as a committee of the whole. Mayor Hal Hill proposed to council that he be given space in City Hall on a part-time basis from which he could conduct the business of his office.

"I'm not going to be the city manager and I won't interfere with his work," said Hill, "I would just like a place to keep things and see people. It will be for public relations and communication. I'm here to promote Charlevoix."

Hill estimated that he would hold office hours "from 1 to 3 maybe two or three days a week."

Council members Shirley Roloff and Michael Greeley said they were "leery" of the request because of the precedent it would set.

Said Roloff, "I hate to start something right now. There's enough change going on at City Hall." She added that, as a council member for several years, she has tolerated phone calls and other city business without benefit of a City Hall office.

Council member Robert Timms also called the request "not necessary."

Three other council members, however, Raymond Wood, William Bellows and Earl Muma, went along with Hill's proposal creating a 3-3 division on the council, though no formal motion was involved.

Hill said he would direct the city attorney to review the position of the city charter on the matter and that it would be taken up at a later meeting.

In other business, council held a special meeting to revise the snowmobile ordinance passed January 7. At that meeting, a preliminary draft of the ordinance was mistakenly enacted instead of the final draft. The only substantive addition to the law is that snowmobile operators at least 12 years old but younger than 16 be "accompanied and supervised by a parent, legal guardian or person over 16 years of age with a automobile operator's license" as well as having a valid snowmobile safety certificate in his or her immediate possession.

Charlevoix Yesterday

In the early days of Charlevoix County there were many small communities, complete with their own post offices, located throughout the rural area.

Among these was Burgess, located in Hayes Township on what is now known as Old US 31 approximately 5½ miles northeast of Charlevoix.

Pictured is the last of the structures that marked Burgess as a settlement, Newson's store, operated for many years by Horace Newson, a Civil War veteran, and his son, Bernie, until the early 1940's. Pictured by the car is the late Ethel Newson Weldon, a grand-daughter of Horace Newson and the last owner of the store which was later razed.

Burgess was established in 1877 taking its name from a local farmer, E.H. Burgess. A post office was opened the same year in a small structure located across from the store on the north side of the highway. Elizabeth Mandeville was the first postmistress. There was also a lumber mill some distance from the store to the north toward Lake Michigan and several rental houses owned by the Newsons. The post office was closed July 14, 1904.

The store which also had living quarters for the owners was located a short distance west of the present intersection of Old US 31 and Burgess Road.

County offices to be computerized

by PEG OHLE

Members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week started 1985 with an up-to-date 1985 decision.

They voted to purchase a Burroughs computer system for the offices of the County Clerk, Treasurer, and Equalization Department.

The decision to buy the Burroughs equipment followed several months of consideration during which representatives of several computer companies made presentations explaining their systems.

The computer system was bought through the Manatron Corporation of Kalamazoo, which specializes in software for government offices. The Equalization Department has been using Manatron services for its tax rolls for some time.

The equipment, which cost $73,670, will be installed in the near future.

It is anticipated that records of the Friend of the Court will be added to the system at a later date.

Medicaid for Grandvue patients is reduced

Social Services Director Richard Tillen advised the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week that Medicaid reimbursements for patients at Grandvue Medical Care Facility will be cut by $2.02 per patient per day.

The cut, according to Tillen, follows an audit of Grandvue by Medicaid officials which resulted in a change in the re-imbursement formula.

In 1984, Grandvue was re-imbursed by $919,905 by Medicaid for 25,991 patient days of care for Medicaid-eligible patients.

The cut will result in Grandvue losing between $45,000 and $47,000 annually from Medicaire. This amount will have to be made up from other funds, probably from County resources.

Knight on the Town

"Wood Heat"

A drama in one act

by Dave Knight

As the curtain rises, the lights come up to reveal a bare stage except for a table and two chairs and a pot-bellied stove. Mary enters, yawning. She is wearing a bathrobe and carries a tray with coffee pot and two cups. She places the tray on the table, pours two cups of coffee and slumps into a chair. John enters wearing boots, a flannel shirt and knit cap. Across one arm is a heavy winter coat and in the other hand is a chain saw. He places the saw on the floor, hangs his coat on the chair, sits down and sips his coffee.

John: Thermos filled?
Mary: It's on the kitchen counter.
John: What's for lunch?
Mary: Baloney sandwich. It's in your coat pocket.
John: M&Ms, too?
Mary: Snickers. In your other pocket.

There is a pause as they drink their coffee and stare sleepily at nothing in particular.

Mary: Any message for the pastor when he asks why you're not in church again this morning?
John: Uh, no. Just tell him I'm sick.
Mary: He's getting quite concerned. You've been "sick" for five straight Sundays now.
John: One or two more loads should do it. The good reverend wouldn't want us to freeze, now, would he?
Mary: Freeze? John, honey, you've been cutting wood since September. And we've still got piles you stacked three years ago.
John: Good firewood should be seasoned.
Mary: Seasoned yes, but some of that wood is probably petrified by now.
John: Please, let's not get nasty about the wood again. Must I remind you once more that you were the one so anxious to get rid of the oil furnace? That you were the one who so loved the aroma of woodsmoke? That you were the one who spent an entire evening totaling the money we would save by heating with wood?
Mary: (Laughing) Oh yes, all that money. How else could we have paid for the hydraulic splitter last year? And there's no way we could have afforded the flat bed trailor. And what a drab Christmas it would have been without the wire chimney brush and a case of chain oil under the tree.
John: Sarcasm does not become you, dearest. I know many women who would be grateful for a husband who spends money on such practical things.
Mary: I know the same women. Most of them would be grateful for a husband, period.
John: Mary, I promise things will be different soon. By next week I'll be just about finished. In fact, to show you how sincere I am, I'll even quit early today and be home in time for supper.
Mary: (Turning away.) Oh, John, John. Has it come to this?
John: Mary, please. (He gulps the last of his coffee, stands and starts putting on his coat.)
Mary: (Starting to sob, she goes to him and grasps his sleeve.) God knows I've been patient. I've been understanding. I knew there would be sacrifices to make when we decided to heat with wood. But I just can't stand it anymore. I feel...I feel a hostile presence in this house. (She turns slowly toward the stove.) Something has come between us, John, and it's not even human. When we had the first 20 cords stacked, I thought "Fine, we're prepared." When we had the second 20 cords stacked, I thought, "Fine, our grandchildren will be prepared." When you stacked wood on my my petunias I was quiet. John, we used to have a view of the valley out the back window! Now there's wood stacked up to the eaves. I open the curtains and all I can see is annular rings! (Her voice rises.) Wood, wood! There's wood all over this place! Now you're going out to cut more wood! Go on! I don't care anymore!
John: Mary, settle down. I...
Mary: No, go on. I'll be okay. Get out to the woods while the trees are still there. you've deserted me every weekend for months - why should today be any different? I should have known you would forget.
John: Forget?
Mary: Yes, I knew all along you'd forget what day this is.
John: But, I...
Mary: Yes, John. I knew you'd forget that this is our anniversary. I know it means little to you. I know you'd rather spend a day with dead trees than with your own wife. Go on. I'll just sit here and watch the flue thermometer while you're gone.
John: Darling, you judge me too harshly. (He walks to the stove, reaches behind and picks up a nicely wrapped package. He walks to the table and hands it to Mary.) Here. I didn't forget.
Mary: Why, John. For me? I...I don't know what to say.
John: Go ahead. Open it. (She unwraps the package, lifts the lid and looks inside.)
Mary: Oh, oh... (She covers her face with her hands and runs from the room crying.)
John: (Smiling) I knew she'd love it. (He lifts a lavender canvas log carrier out of the box.) It's her favorite color.

Letters: Christmas Project was joyful success

To the Editor:

What a wonderfully caring community Charlevoix is! Literally hundreds of people, contributors and workers as well as recipients, found Christmas to be a little happier this year because of the Christmas project carried out by the Community Food Pantry and their many willing workers. (We have heard that we were by no means the only ones who reached out to their needy neighbors. God bless you all!)

One hundred ten households of 300 people, including 125 children, received food, household items and gifts. Ten churches as well as many people not church affiliated were involved in the contribution of materials, time and energy. Seventy-five people helped with the purchasing, packaging and delivery of the Christmas "baskets".

Countless numbers of others made it possible with their contributions of money, canned goods and other staples, candy, cookies, cheese, squash, navy beans (300 pounds!), turkeys, clothing, mittens, caps, scarves and toys.

There is no way we can list the names of individuals who were so generous but we would like to publicly thank the following organizations, who helped out: Eastern Star, American Legion, Knights of Columbus, Peace Education Network, Charlevoix Middle School, Charlevoix Elementary School faculty and third graders, Charlevoix Womens Club, Charlevoix Food for Folks, TOPS, VFW Auxiliary, Karl's Pastry Shop, the Seven-11 store, Lions Club ($750, $250 through the United Way) and the Community Christmas Concert proceeds.

A total of $2,428.85 was received in addition to all the material items. A total of $2,113.70 was spent. Some of the remaining $315.15 will be spent to replenish our shelves which stand ready to be used for the needy in the area throughout the year. The rest will be a cushion for future needs or "seed money" for next year.

Our sincere thanks to all of you who had any part in this rewarding experience.

Community Food Pantry Advisory Council

Clockwise

A tragic loss

by Bob Clock

The incredible snowmobile accident which resulted in the death of Mark Koontz, 30, last Friday night has stunned Charlevoix.

Koontz probably was Charlevoix's foremost advocate of the sport.

When you met him downtown — even in July — he always gave the impression that he was just biding his time until the next blizzard.

Mark and his dad, Bob, had a reputation of being safe snowmobilers.

When the city council decided last year that some way must be found to allow snowmobilers a way out of town without trailering their machines, Mark and Bob helped draw up the ordinance.

They attended every meeting at which the ordinance was discussed, and they were both on hand at last Monday's meeting when the ordinance finally was passed.

In fact, it was Mark's good-natured objection to the 30-day waiting period — particularly with winter weather starting in earnest — that caused the council to virtually waive the requirement, at least insofar as enforcement of the old law by city police was concerned.

Good natured. That's a pretty good description of Mark Koontz. He would have made a fine diplomat, since very few people or things riled him.

It was almost too much when it snowed the day of the funeral.

It was Mark's kind of weather.

HOW MUCH SNOW are we going to have this winter?

The late Jim Doherty of Petoskey spent a lot of time with weather statistics and come up with the observation that Jan. 15 is the mid-point of the season insofar as snowfall is concerned.

If we had 60 inches of snow up to Jan. 15, we could expect another 60 inches of snow after Jan. 15, for a total winter's snowfall of 120 inches — or 10 feet.

As of Monday, Jan. 14, Charlevoix had had 47.74 inches of snow for the season, meaning a total accumulation of 95.48 inches before spring arrives. That comes to just under 8 feet — a quite a respectable figure, particularly when you have shovel it by hand.

However, it falls far short of the 25-foot winters that are ralatively common in Michigan's Keweenaw Peninsula.

Developer sues Hayes Twp. over project presented two Planned Unit Development Plans to Hayes Township. The first, presented on April 17, called for 32 buildings containing 228 condominium units; 106 units on the lakefront and the rest offshore along a proposed 18-hole public golf course, amounting to a land density of seven-tenths units per acre. The plan also called for 66 boat slips.

The Township expressed concern over the number of buildings and units, so Fox Associates presented a revised plan May 15. This plan called for 27 buildings containing 168 condominium units for a land density of 48-hundredths units per acre. The number of boat slips remained the same at 66.

This revised plan was rejected by Hayes Township on June 12, at which time it cited Section 513 of the Zoning Ordinance, as noted above. The Township did state, however, that it would permit a Planned Unit Development with 126 units, 28 of which would have lake access (one per 100 feet of lake frontage) and 28 boat slips (again one per 100 feet of lake frontage).

This proposal did not meet with the acceptance of William R. Fox, president of Fox Associates, who is quoted as emphasizing both to the Township and its attorney, William McTaggart of Boyne City, that the economic feasibility of the Planned Unit Development Plan depended on condominium units having lake access.

The Plaintiff contends that the development plans he submitted incorporated lake set-backs and a shoreline green belt design as required by the Zoning Ordinance. He also notes that under the present zoning classification of Residential-1, a developer could build 169 single family detached homes as compared with the 168 condominium units under his Planned Unit Development Plan.

Further, the Plaintiff cites the "substantial costs" he has incurred in trying to promote a Planned Unit Development Plan satisfactory to the Hayes Township Planning Commission. These include complete surveys, architectural and engineering plans, and obtaining a verbal agreement from the City of Charlevoix to extend 16,000 feet of sewer line to the development as well as a verbal agreement from the City to provide municipal water to the development. These and other expenses amounted to over $125,000, for which the Plaintiff seeks judgement, according to the brief.

Charlevoix County Planner Larry Sullivan explains the difference between a Residential Zone Development and Planned Unit Development as follows:

Whereas, in a Residential Zone, development can consist only of living units and a few related units, a Planned Unit Development allows for innovative and unique land development without adhering to specific lot lines, set-backs, etc. It really allows for a variety of uses within a parcel of property such as living units, stores, gasoline stations, and other commercial buildings to serve the development.

Misdirected bitterness

To the Editor:

If there is to be bitterness about Vietnam, let it be bitterness toward the policy-makers who got us into that wretched war and who lied to us during those long years of fighting halfway around the world. And let it be bitterness toward the current policy-makers who seem far more concerned about funds for new weapons' systems than they are about the debts we owe to those who were drafted to serve their country in S.E. Asia, many of them barely old enough to shave at the time.

As for the M.I.A.'s, we must indeed have compassion for those whose loved ones are counted among the missing in a faraway land - a fate perhaps harder to bear than knowledge of certain death. But it must be remembered that in every war, especially one fought in dense jungles and over broad rivers, there are corpses which will never be found, bones which will turn to dust far from home and kinfolk.

And although there are several thousand American M.I.A.'s, there are doubtless tens of thousands of Vietnamese who will never be given proper internment in their family burial plots. That is one of the sad and ugly aspects of war - in the heat of battle, human life and human suffering and human death mean little to those who make the policies and give the orders. Waging and winning the war (and incidently there are huge profits for the weapons' dealers, win or lose) are what is all-important.

But, rather than harboring bitterness toward the policy makers of the past, it would be far more meaningful for us to "stand up" to the policy makers of the present and refuse to let them drag us into another orgy of killing in El Salvador, Nicaragua or anywhere else in the world. If the sacrifices of those who served in S.E. Asia are to have any positive effect, we must make certain that there are no more Vietnams, no more young lives cut short, no more M.I.A.'s; no more destruction of villages in order to save them.

Especially those of us who were spared from being called to serve or from having loved ones who served, must make sure that the living veterans of past wars are neglected, not thrown into the dust-bin of history once they are no longer useful as canon fodder.

Policy makers and national leaders have a way of staging media spectacles to honor the war dead while turning their backs on the problems of those who survived military action. It is far cheaper and much more impressive to put on a show in Arlington Cemetery with the mournful playing of taps, the clicking heels and the folding of the flag than it is to compensate the victims of Agent Orange or to cure the neuroses of those who are battle-scarred.

The pomp and ceremony at the burial of Jesse Carpenter is a case in point. He was a veteran of World War II during which he had won a bronze medal; and just as he had been concerned about his fellow human beings in wartime, he was concerned about them in peacetime. Because there were no provisions for wheelchair cripples in the shelters for the homeless in our nation's capitol, Jesse had chosen to sleep on the ground in Lafayette Park rather than abandon the old man he had befriended. So it was that during the recent holiday season, the War hero was found frozen to death within sight of the White House, blazing with tree lights and garlanded in greenery.

Not because he was caring for one of the many thousands of homeless people who spend their nights crouched in doorways or curled over steam grates in our big cities, but because he had been the recipient of the prestigious Bronze medal, Jesse Carpenter was laid to rest in Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors.

If Jesse could speak to us now from his newly dug grave among those of other war heroes, it is likely that he might be saying, "Mourn not for the dead but care for the living - the homeless, the helpless, and hopeless. Honor the memories of those who sleep here, not by floral wreaths and flowery eulogies, but by endeavoring to prevent future wars; join with the people of other nations to outlaw forever the weapons of mass destruction. And stand tall by demanding that the policy makers, who hold the fate of the world in their hands, sit down at the negotiating table and talk peace.

Beatrice Henshaw

NATURE TRAIL

Jim Smith at the head of the Fisherman's Island nature trail.

Jim Smith's project results in new hiking and skiing trail at state park

There is a new hiking and cross country skiing trail at Fisherman's Island State Park, thanks largely to the efforts of Jim Smith, a Charlevoix High School senior.

Smith, 18, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Smith of Charlevoix planned the construction of the trail as a Boy Scout project and oversaw the actual work this past summer done by the local Scout troop.

Smith first got the idea for the new trail when talking to some fellow cross country skiing enthusiasts last year about how it would be nice to have more adequate trails available.

Since he lives not far away from the state park just south of Charlevoix and was familiar with the existing trail system, he proposed a new route to the park's manager and was given tha okay to proceed with it.

Starting last spring with a work crew from Boy Scout Troop 11, Smith figures that a total of over 100 man-hours of work went into the project. The new trail is approximately one mile long and required the building of two bridges where it crosses creeks.

The clearing of small branches and brush was done with axes while larger limbs in the way were cleared with chain saws.

To locate the new trail, one starts at the entrance to the existing nature trail which is marked by a sign on the main park road. (The road is not plowed during the winter.) Smith's trail branches off to the right about 100 yards down the exisiting trail and then extends to the south toward the new campsite loop finished last year.

The new trail is marked by blue spray paint dots along the way and ends farther south on the park road.

AS A RESULT of a Christmas season art contest sponsored by Michigan National Bank of Charlevoix, three fifth grade students from Charlevoix Elementary Schoolare on their way to saving in the new year. Bank manager Joi Schwartzfisher, above, presented first prize winner Mark Hill with a $50 savings bond, second prize winner Jackie Brewster with a $10 savings account at the bank and third prize winner Kristin Browe with a $5 savings account.

Matmen place ninth

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers placed ninth among the 11 teams entered in the Kalkaska Invitational meet held Saturday Coach Greg Bryan reports. Kalkaska won the meet with Gaylord placing second.

Bryan said he had entries in only seven of the 13 weight classes because of illness and injuries. "With only seven wrestlers our goal for the meet was not to finish last" he said.

He went on to say that everyone wrestled well and that he was pleased with their maturation as wrestlers. Everyone managed to last through at least two rounds of wrestling, something they've been unable to do in a long time. "It is the first time this season that I can say we are no longer a greenhorn team" he commented.

"It was enjoyable to watch the team, to see them execute strategies and techniques for the first time this season," he added.

I was especially pleased with Matt Hull (138) who was unseeded in the meet and who came back to take a thrid, his first medal performance" he said of the wrestler.

Hull lost his first match to G. Baker of Reed City in :45 and then won four in a row In his last two matches he came from behind in the last seconds, displaying confidence and more "savvy" than at any time in the 2½ years he has been wrestling Bryan said. He won over Wyma of Glen Lake in a pin in 2:40; D. Peterman of Onaway in 2:44; J. Couture of Gaylord by an 8-7 decision and J. Beotgen of St. Ignace in a 5-4 decision.

Brian Anderson (98) and Jim Roberts (105) were double losers but did pick up a forfeit for the team. Robets finished fourth in the meet. In placing fourth, he won over G. Zelke of Kalkaska in :53 and A. Wayne of Mancelona of 3:58 and lost to D. Edwards of Reed City in 2:15 and, in the consolation finals, he lost to Horn of St. Ignace in 3:24.

Kevin Pearsall (145) won over M. Coven of Onaway on a pin in 4:38 and then lost the next two; Dan Kelly (155) lost twice, wrestling very much below his level; Jeff Mervyn (hvy.wt.) won two and lost two. His wins were over M. Richardson of Reed City in :45 and B. Ferguson of Frankfort in 2:44.

Rayders dispatch Cheboygan and Grayling

By ULF EVALDSSON

Two more victories for the Red Rayders last week put them at a 10-0 record for the season. Dealing with Cheboygan's tough team Tuesday, Rayders posted a 81-71 win on their home floor in a very good ballgame, and Friday, when Grayling traveled to Charlevoix, they didn't cause the Rayders much headache either. Rayders controlled the game and there were no problems for them beating the Vikings 67-48.

Cheboygan put up a good fight in Tuesday's battle. It was a very close and exciting game straight through, and both teams took turns being in the lead. Immediately, Cheboygan jumped to a 6-0 lead through three buckets by sharpshooters Tim Johnson, Dan LaHaie and Greg Hollstrom, before Jody Putman, John Pearl and Will Syvertsen could make it 6-6 halfway into the first quarter.

Later, Putman and Doug Sloan turned a 12-8 deficit to 13-12 lead for the Rayders. Hollstrom scored a free throw and Pete Shaw brought it to 16-13 for Cheboygan going into the second stanza. In the opening of the following quarter Sean Ferguson and Syvertsen regained the lead for the Rayders through one field goal each.

When the score was 22-all, Charlevoix missed some field goals, and soon the Cheboygan team could cling to a 27-22 lead thanks to LaHaie and Johnson. Brent Cole hit a bucket, but Hollstrom came back and made it 29-24 before Putman poured in a layup, decreasing Cheboygan's lead 29-26. Now, right, before halftime, the guests really hit their stride, forging from 29-26 to a 37-26 lead.

Putman and Ferguson hit two baskets, but Cheboygan managed to keep the lead, winning the first half 41-33. Rayders' shooting didn't go very well in the first half, and in addition, their antagonists played good defense, preventing the Rayders from breaking into their zone.

After halftime, Rayders' play improved both defensively and offensively, and right from the beginning of the third quarter, Rayders started to threaten Cheboygan in order to regain the lead. Ferguson and Cole helped Rayders from the 41-33 deficit to 41-39, but minutes later Hollstrom extended Cheboygan's lead to 49-41 lead. Ferguson and Sloan came back and made the score 49-47, and even if Cheboygan had a 55-51 lead after the third quarter, Cole had tied the score 51-all minutes before. The ceiling in the packed gym just about took off, when Cole, in the beginning of the final quarter, scored three quick field goals, bringing it to 57-55 and regaining the lead for the hungry Rayders. Rayders kept the lead through the whole quarter, and it was much thanks to Brent Cole, who scored 26 points in the second stanza, that Rayders could come back as they did. In the end Rayders went from a 71-67 lead to 79-67, before Cheboygan's top scorer, Hollstrom, scored. Syvertsen poured in a free throw, making it 81-69, and even if Stuart Hancock brought it to 81-71 in the last minute, Cheboygan's players couldn't do more about Rayders' lead.

"I'm really pleased with the second half, when we came out with a better defense and offense and also started to score much more," coach Dave Smith had to say about his Rayders. "Scoring 30 points for us, Brent Cole was a big lift, too," he added.

Apart from Cole's 30 points, Ferguson scored 14, Putman and Pearl 10 each, Sloan nine and Syvertsen eight. Pearl had eight rebounds Cole six and Sloan and Syversten five each. Cole and Pearl had six assists and Putman had five. Charlevoix caused only seven turnovers during the game, while Cheboygan had 17. Rayders scored 33 of 72 from the floor and 15 of 21 from the free throw line. Cheboyga hit 29 of 57 from the floor and 13 of 19 from the free throw line. Best scorer for Cheboygan was Greg Hollstrom, 27 points.

Rayders Doug Sloan, Jody Putman and Will Syvertsen tie up a Cheboygan player.

With a 9-0 record and with such a confident and strong team, Rayders' 67-48 win vs. Grayling Vikings, Friday, was rather expected. And Rayders really continued to play the way we have been seeing them in previous games. Much thanks to Rod Patterson who tipped in six points for the Vikings in the first quarter, and the quicker Viking team, the Rayders found it hard to get into the rythm in the beginning. Grayling had a 10-8 lead, before Cole and Pearl could make it 12-10 for the Raydes, and even if Jeff Branch knotted the score 12-all, Ferguson regained the lead for Charlevoix 14-12, ending the first quarter. Player number one in the game was John Pearl, who scored 12 of his 18 points in the second quarter. Brad Nightin tied Rayders' lead 14-14, but the quarter was in Pearl's hands. Pearl had scored three field goals and had poured in two free throws, making it 22-14 for the Rayders, and even if Rod Patterson decreased the lead 22-16, Pearl came back hitting another basket along with Cole's field goal, so Rayders had extended their lead to 26-16 in a couple of minutes. Halfway into the quarter, Branch and Greg Burns helped Vikinga to 26-21, but Sloan made sure that he didn't miss his following field goal and free throw, bringing it to 30-21. Jon Nicholas scored two more points for the Vikings, but soon the due Pearl/Cole emerged again in Grayling's zone, and with one field goal each, they helped Rayders to win the first half by a score of 34-23. After halftime, there wasn't much Grayling could do about Rayders, whose lead just grew bigger and bigger. Beginning the third stanza, Sloan, Pearl and Syvertsen extended the lead 40-23 through three field goals, and by the end of the quarter,

Middle Schoolers win

The Charlevoix Middle School boys basketball teams posted wins over Petoskey teams in games played at Petoskey Monday.

The eighth graders won by a 35-22 score and the seventh graders by a 27-24 margin.

JV squad beats Grayling

The Charlevoix Rayder JV squad chalked up a 67-53 victory over the visiting Grayling Vikings in a game played Friday.

The young Rayders took an early lead and were ahead 14-11 at the first period. However, a stubborn Viking five held on giving the Rayders only a two-point 31-29 advantage at halftime and 45-42 going into the final period when Charlevoix outscored their opponent 22-11 for the 14 point spread at the buzzer.

Charlevoix outscored Grayling 25-20 from the floor and hit on 17 of 29 from the free throw line and had 19 personal fouls. Grayling scored on 13 of 23 from the charity line and had 25 personal fouls.

Jim Gibbs led the Rayder scoring with 22 points with Dan Drury adding 16. Tim Bacon had 23 for the Vikings.

Frosh beat Harbor Springs

The Charlevoix Rayder freshmen posted a 55-51 win over the Harbor Springs Rams in a game played Thursday on the latter's floor.

This week the young Rayders will travel to St. Ignace on Thursday and to Central Lake on Monday.

In the game at Harbor Springs, the young Rayders found themselves trailing 11-8 at the quarter and 25-20 at the half before outscoring their hosts 23-14 as the second half got underway to take over 43-39 going into the final period.

Roger Smith with 18 points led the attack with Scott DeYoung adding 15 points. Mike Babcock had 18, Cory Battle 15 and Chris Beaudoin 11 for Harbor.

Wrestlers lose to Petoskey, Onaway

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers dropped matches to Petoskey and Onaway in action here Thursday night. The Rayders lost to Onaway 42-24 and to Petoskey by a score of 51-15.

Charlevoix forfeited six weight classes in the Onaway meet, giving up 36 points because of illness and injuries. Coach Greg Bryan said Dan Kelly (155) and Matt Hull (138) each won twice and were wrestling well, as well as showing better control and execution. In the Petoskey match, Chad Thorp (98) lost a close match to Mike Ketchman. Bryan said he wrestled well and if he improved his technical skills could be a contender for the conference title.

Next Thursday the Rayders will be at Grayling

Rayder basketball

Rayders still had the lead 47-31. Patterson, Branch and Nicholas responded by bringing it to 47-36, Tim Plagge tipped in a basket, making it 49-36, before Nicholas returned to Rayders' zone, pouring in a free throw for the Vikings. Syvertsen brought it to 51-38, and in a few minutes Rayders had worked themselves up to a safe 62-40 lead. In the end, Mark Himebauch made it 64-44 through a layup, and Grayling started to run out of time. The victors were too far ahead, coasting in an unthreatened 67-48 win; the tenth victory in a row for Charlevoix, which gives coach Smith a very good reason for being satisfied with his team:

"Our team really works well right now, and I hope that we can stay undefeated also after the coming games. Grayling is a short but quick team, and their quickness gave us some problems, but as a taller team we grabbed the most rebounds, which meant a lot for us in the game," Mr. Smith said after the struggle Friday. "We moved the ball better, and I had really expected us to win," he continued. Charlevoix grabbed 37 rebounds altogether and Grayling had 30. Having followed Rayders', this far, reigning season, Grayling's coach Warren Hayes knew that it was going to be a hard game.

"We, as everyone else, know that Charlevoix has a very good ball team, and I wasn't surprised that they came to dominate the game," he commented.

Top scorers in the game was John Pearl with 18 points, Cole scored 16, Sloan and Putman nine each, Syverstensix, Ferguson four, Himebauch three and Plagge two. Pearl had 12 rebounds, Syvertsen seven, Putman, Sloan and Cole five per capita and Plagge had two. Best scorers for the visiting Vikings were Nicholas, Patterson, Nightin, Branch, Burns and Mick Lovely.

For Saints and Sinners

by Rev. David W. Yingling
United Methodist Church

In all of life we see patterns, and we sense rhythms. We gain understanding through patterns. When we experience something new we understand it by putting a pattern behind it of something we already know.

Also, by remembering what happened last time and the time before we realize it will happen again. We can learn which patterns can be altered, need changing, which endure.

2nd Timothy I (RSV): "Follow the pattern of the sound words which you have heard from me, in the Faith and love which are in Christ, Jesus; guard the truth that has been entrusted to you by the Holy Spirit who dwells within us."

Listen to these words by Albert N. Minor on "Christian Living":

"Patterns of Christian living must as clearly mark our lives as the shapes of our ears and hands and smiles. Some patterns of our bodies must change over the years, but our basic frame does not. Our bone structure seems to receive its basic resolution in young adulthood and after that what happens to it is a matter of our care or abuse. The basic body pattern will not change in its maturity until our declining years arrive or until some disease or accident leaves a distorting mark upon us.

Spiritual living is very much the same. We grow through nuture and through exercise, not knowing quite how it will all turn out but at some point reaching that level of spiritual maturing in which our blindness is relieved by brilliant flashes of sight, insight into the kingdom.

The structures of our prayer, our worship, and our personal devotions serve as the living skeleton through which our wills mature to express, hy some miraculous provision, something of the will of God. Then our actions, as the extensions of our will and God's show, the incarnation again."

Council okays rezoning for north side rental units

Despite considerable opposition by several north side residents, City Council voted unanimously Monday night to rezone from R-1 to R-4 half a 2-acre parcel at 500 Petoskey Ave. next to the Chez Charlevoix condominiums.

The action accomodates plans by prospective developers of the property to construct 24 rental units on the lot which is now vacant. Council stopped short, however, of approving the preliminary site plan for the project, postponing that issue until a later meeting.

City Attorney Jeffrey Van Treese told council that he felt a mistake was made in the redrawing of the city's zoning map in 1978 which resulted in half the property designated R-4, multi-family housing, and half R-1, single family residential.

He also cited the position of City Planner Gerry Harsch that the R-4 zoning was compatible with the city's master plan and that such a designation would not be a case of spot-zoning as maintained by opponents of the rezoning.

At its January 14 meeting, the City Planning Commission voted unanimously to approve a preliminary site plan for the property presented by the East Lansing based Teklin Corporation. Teklin, a developer of several multi-family housing units throughout the state, proposes to purchase the parcel from present owners Dean Eby and Brighton Hospital and build a Farmers Home Administration-assisted rental complex with 24 units in two buildings.

Under the FHA arrangement, rental fees would be calculated on a sliding scale according to the renters' income. The projected minimum monthly rent for a one-bedroom unit is $225 which would include heat.

Beverly (Mrs. Dean) Eby, told council the project is aimed at renters within the income bracket of $10,750 to $22,500 and that to refer to the project as "low-income housing" is not accurate.

Attorney Roy C. Hayes, representing opponents to the rezoning, said that the property was rezoned R-4 in 1980 with the intent of building condomoniums with a view of the municipal golf course and that since that plan never materialized, the zoning should revert back to R-1.

He also cited the concerns of neighboring residents about the increased traffic a rental facility would generate, the ability of the existing sewer lines to handle the additional usage and the question of how snow removal from the development would affect adjoining property owners.

Attorney William R. McTaggart, representing the present owners of the property, answered Hayes saying that the half of the lot technically zoned R-1 has been taxed as R-4 and considered R-4 for all purposes since

No more three-year grads, says school board

By FRAN MARTIN

Effective after the 1984-85 school year, Charlevoix High School students will not be allowed to graduate in three years following action taken Monday at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education.

After months of study which included input from the student body at the high school, the policy committee headed by Ardeth Wieland presented the committee's recommendations at an earlier meeting. The same recommendations were adopted as a policy at Monday's meeting. Included in the recommendation was the continuation of dual enrollment with North Central Michigan College by seniors who meet the criteria for the program.

In adopting the requirement that a student complete a four year program in high school the board cited the unknown factor of whether a student is socially prepared for college after three years of high school and that said students would be unable to take such subjects as English IV, a fourth year of a foreign language, additional math such as trigonometry and additional sciences such as chemistry or physics.

Another factor was the fact that of the seven students who had been permitted an early graduation, four were academically unable to continue in college.

A large number of present seniors worked with the committee in preparing the policy and all felt that students needed the four years in high school in order to make the transition to a higher institution of learning, Mrs. Wieland told the board.

The dual enrollment program with North Central Michigan College will continue as it had for several years.

In the only other actions at the meeting, Holly J. Edger was granted permission for an early graduation, having met all the requirements for graduation.

Don Voisin, president of the Band Boosters, presented a check for $500 as a payment on the band shell financed last year by the board of education with the understanding that the Band Boosters would reimburse the school district.

The next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 4.

Peaine Twp. files appeal to tax tribunal

by PEG OHLE

Beaver Island's Peaine Township is not taking the State Tax Tribunal's decision on property assessments "lying down".

Last year, the Township filed a suit appealing the County's 1984 equalization of its residential and commercial property with the State Tax Tribunal. In the hearing, held during the week of July 23, the Township's arguments for residential assessment were dismissed and later on its arguments for commercial assessment were also dismissed.

In making its first appeal to the State Tax Tribunal, Peaine Township called the County's valuations as determined by the Equalization Department "improprerly equalized". The County Board had raised the 1984 Peaine Township Board of Review assessed value of residential property from $7,794,700 to $8,407,150 and the value of commercial property from $60,600 to $65,382.

Local pair prevents tragedy with timely rescue on thin ice

by DAVE KNIGHT

For Ken and Sue Brill, it's enough these days to just to exchange glances and know each other is still around.

Suffice it to say the Brills have had a rough couple weeks. But, thanks in part to the quick thinking of a couple Charlevoix men, the Brills' tribulations had a happy - though harrowing - ending.

Saturday, January 12, found the Brills on the mend at their lakeshore home on M-66 just north of East Jordan. While returning home from Traverse City the Sunday before, their van had struck a patch of ice on U.S. 31 near Elk Rapiuds, skidded and rolled into the woods. The accident left Sue, the director of the Charlevoix County Senior Center in East Jordan, with a broken collar bone and plenty of bumps and bruises. Ken, director of the Bergmann Center in Charlevoix, was intact but sore and still thoroughly shaken by the experience a week later.

"Why don't you go out and do some ice fishing," Sue said to Ken that Saturday afternoon, "Relax a little bit."

He followed her advice but it turned out to be something less than relaxing.

From the shoreline in back of their house, Brill walked about 80 feet out onto the lake and drilled through what appeared to be a safe three inches of ice. Ken recalls that there was a layer of slush under the snow, however, which made it difficult to tell for sure how much good ice there was.

After a few minutes of no action, Brill decided to use a bigger bobber and walked back to the house. He returned to his hole, located over approximately 16 feet of water, with a new bobber and baited up.

He had been standing over the hole for only ten minutes or so when the ice beneath him gave way. Brill was wearing a hooded snowmobile suit, hat and gloves but he stayed calm and was able to pull himself out of the water...only to have the ice give way again, plunging him back into the icy water.

Once more, Brill, 57, managed to crawl out but the ice failed again and he was back in the water for the third time.

Brill figures he had been in the water about 15 minutes at this point. There was little point in calling for help since there were no other ice fishermen in sight, all the neighboring homes were seasonal cottages vacant for the winter and his wife Sue was napping in the house.

"I really thought it was all over," he says.

It may well have all over for Brill had not Jim Hamilton of the Dubuque, Iowa area been out of work.

Hamilton was in the area for three days to visit his good friend Ray LaVoie of Charlevoix and to look for a job. Hamilton, 31, and LaVoie, 32, who teaches sixth grade at St. Francis Xavier Catholic School in Petoskey, are both originally from Iowa and have been friends for many years.

Saturday afternoon they decided

Charlevoix Yesterday

As the conference-leading Rayder basketball team looks forward to tournament time, some old-timers may remember this Charlevoix High School team of 1928-29. Under Coach Ray Kipke, the team beat Harbor Springs twice during the season but was knocked out of the Class C tournament by Boyne City and had to stay home while Harbor Springs went on to win the state championship. Members of the team included, from left, Bill Supernaw, Max Novak, Ilo Helms, Bill Novak, Rex Supernaw, George Bergmann, Dick Marshal, Bob. McCall and Coach Kipke. The team will also be remembered as the first to play in the gym completed in the former high school building in 1928 and which is now the Middle School. Interestingly, Bill Supernaw's son Sam played in the last high school game played in that gym before the present high school was completed in 1961. (Photo courtesy of Genevieve Smith.)

Friends of McSauba formed to support popular rec area

The newly-organized Friends of Mt. McSauba, a support group for the day camp operated by the city's Recreation Department, received a major contribution last week, a check for $5,437 raised through a Las Vegas Nite in 1983 under the sponsorship of the Father Pierre Charlevoix, Knights of Columbus Council.

These funds, combined with the proceds from the Lions Club sponsored 1984 Las Vegas Night, will be used to construct a restroom expansion at the lodge at Mt. McSauba, utilized as a camp-base by Camp McSauba, a summer day camp operated under the Charlevoix Recreation Department on city-owned property in Charlevoix Township.

by FRAN MARTIN

The formation and incorporation of the organization of a group to be known as Friends of Camp McSauba, a support organization for the non-profit day camp about to begin its tenth year of operation, has been announced.

The organization of the group, which was incorporated in August 1984, follows nine years of successful operation of the camp, located at Mt. McSauba from where it takes its name. Camp McSauba is a non-profit day camp operated by the Charlevoix Recreation Department with funding coming from weekly camper fees and donations from local individuals, service, social, fraternal and community groups. During this time it has steadily gained support from the community which resulted in the recent organization of Friends of Camp McSauba, Inc.

Sheila Bogart will serve as the group's first president. She will be assisted by Dawn Fletcher as vice president; Cheri Whippo as secretary; Florence Wojan, treasurer and directors, Louis Orlowski, Dwight Boss representing the Charlevoix Recreation Department, Toni Felter representing the Charlevoix Recreation Commission, Michael Greeley representing the Charlevoix City Council, and Jack Gebott, camp director, ex-officio member representing Camp McSauba.

According to the group's Articles of Incorporation the purpose for which Friends of Mt. McSauba, Inc., was organized was "to promote and encourage the activities of Camp McSauba, a summer camp operating for the benefit of the community's youth which provides activities designed to train children in various sporting techniques-skills, to educate children in an awareness of the science of nature and the preservation, conservation and the prudent use of same."

The group is organized on a non-stock directorship basis and is to be financed under a general plan of contributions from individuals and various fund-raising events. The group was officially recognized by the state of Michigan on August 6, 1984.

The group has both short and long range goals. For example, prior to Camp McSuaba's 1985 June opening, Friends of Camp McSauba hope to have the restroom addition of the present lodge ready for use by campers. Plans for the expansion are presently being drawn up by Orlowski, retired architect, and the work started at the earliest possible date.

Funding for the first major project has come from the 1983 Knights of Columbus and the 1984 Charlevoix Lions Club sponsored Las Vegas Nights during which over $10,000 was raised.

The planning and construction of this project is expected to require the major efforts of the group until the 1985 Las Vegas fund-raiser, a spokesman for the group said.

Other long range plans include building of a nature lodge and investigating the feasibility of constructing a small in-ground swimming pool on the Mt. McSauba property for camper use.

The Friends of Camp McSauba meet at 7 p.m. the first Tuesday on every month in the lower level at Village Inn Pizza in downtown Charlevoix.

Camp McSauba is operated on acreage located north of Charlevoix in Charlevoix Township. The lodge, utilized as a ski lodge during the winter months, serves as the base for the camp whose activities utilized the fields, wooded areas, sand dunes, and expanse of Lake Michigan beach found at the site.

In 1984, the camp served 324 campers from late June until the last week of August. This number does not include those children who attended camp by the day. The camp operated on a five-day week with a full day of activities Monday through Thursday, an overnight Thursday night which extended until noon on Friday.

Information relating to the camp may be obtained by writing to the Charlevoix Recreation Department, City Hall, Charlevoix 49720.

Knight on the Town

Start of something big

by Dave Knight

The prosperity we all foresaw when the Department of Natural Resources committed itself to a major restocking of the sports fishery in this area is not going to be just plunked in our laps like a Lotto jackpot.

Such things need enthused and dedicated people to follow through. That is how Manistee capitalized, and Frankfort, and Ludington, and Alpena, and many other nearby coastal communities.

Charlevoix now has the fishery to rival these other places. But what does Charlevoix not have that they do? A fishing tournament.

Charter captain Jim Withers and master fisherman Dave Juilleret are out to change that. Withers, Juilleret and Mayor Hal Hill, who eagerly supports the concept, traveled last week to Alpena where they met with Ed Retherford and Lanny Kingsbury, organizers of the Michigan Brown Trout Festival. The festival is a nine-day affair which will be held in Alpena for the tenth time this summer.

What Withers and Juilleret have in mind is a brown trout fishing tournament to be held this spring, probably in mid to late May. From what Retherford and Kingsbury told them, they are convinced that such an event could be the start of something big.

"Ed and Lanny were real excited about the possibility of Charlevoix starting a tournament," said Withers, "They even talked about setting it up in a series with Alpena, Rogers City and some other tournaments as a grand slam type of event."

Retherford and Kingsbury told the Charlevoixians that Alpena's tournament now involves a budget of about $37,000 and features such top prizes as a $4,000 savings bond. The festival is set up as its own corporate entity comprised of representatives of a number of the area's service clubs.

They recommend avoiding the complexities of forming a separate body, however, and suggest alligning with the Chamber of Commerce...which Withers and Juilleret have already started to do.

Juilleret remembers the last time a large scale fishing tournament was attempted in Charlevoix. It was held about ten years ago when he served on the Chamber board but never quite got off the ground. Now, he feels, the time is ripe to try again.

"The fishery is there," he said, "But to to persuade the DNR to maintain it, we need to increase the fishing pressure."

This is a point stressed by both Withers and Juilleret. It's no secret that the DNR pays close attention to the economic impact and public acceptance of its fish planting programs. To put it briefly, the state isn't going to stock fish where they aren't wanted. Therefore, the communities that make best use of the resource - by staging such events as the Brown Trout Festival - are most likely going to enjoy high priority when decisions are made where to allocate future stock.

While Alpena's is a nine-day affair, Withers and Juilleret want to start on a smaller scale this year. They envision a weekend tournament with modest cash prizes and gifts for the intitial edition. But, as far as they are concerned, as the tournament matures, the sky's the limit.

"The great thing about this type of event is that we can hold it in the spring when everything's opening up around town but there is not much traffic yet," said Withers, who did not discount the idea of also mounting a fall fishing event at some point in the future.

It should also be remembered that Charlevoix provides many attractive gift shops and other venues for the land-loving fishermen's wives who might want to accompany their mates on a tournament trip, for a chaage.

Want to help make the first annual Charlevoix Sport Fishing Tournament a reality? Contact Withers at Village Inn Pizza or Juilleret at Juilleret's Restaurant. They'll be eager for your support.

A note from Incline Village

Dear Dove,

In beginning this letter, we are reminded of other letters we have read in the Courier, penned by home town students, summering in foreign lands in exchange programs. In some ways, Karen and I feel like these exchange students, still quite tied to Charlevoix, although learning fast the ways of a new culture.

We managed a few notes to Michigan over the holidays, but we'll never be able to keep in touch individually with the many people we still care about in the Charlevoix area. We still keep a close eye on what's happening about town, through the weekly edition of the Courier appearing in our mailbox. We are offering this letter in return, to let folks in Charlevoix know what's become of us, since our move to Nevada.

Although the media image of Lake Tahoe is one of fast action and gambling, we have found Incline Village warm and family oriented. Like small towns everywhere, the schools are a focus of attention, although the local athletic teams have not earned the notoriety of the Rayders. Incline Village is coping with the same concerns about teenage drug and alcohol use, and seems headed toward similar solutions.

Our Brian is a bit young to instill these worries, although his mobility as of late has caught us off guard. He recently began sleeping through the night (Karen is overjoyed), resting up for boundless bursts of energy during the days. He still has no fear, so trouble is never more than seconds away. Wherever his head fits, his body follows.

Karen has been working at the local liberal arts college, which is rather conveniently located less than a block from our home. Although it is a four year institution, the college is still in its infancy, and welcomes Karen - or anyone else - who offers creativity and higher education experience. Karen has been putting together a community education program for the spring term, which, when combined with tending to Brian, is more than a full time job.

A generous amount of deja vu has greeted my few months on the job as manager. I had only been here a few weeks when a major controversy erupted over the quality of our drinking water. Fears of cancer were rampant, although the culprit in this instance was asbestos, not TCE. Fortunately, this problem appear easier to resolve, than the situation in Charlevoix. The experience in Charlevoix nontheless proved vaulable in Incline's attempts to address the concerns.

Like Charlevoix, Incline Village is nestled in an idyllic setting, with more than its fair share of natural amenities. Because it is relatively young - now looking forward to its twenty-fifth birthday - it has little of the charm of sense of history that graces Charlevoix. Although Incline residents share a deep concern for the Village's character, they lack the instincts which Charlevoixans have developed over the past century, and the Village is therefore more vulnerable to change.

We have been pleased to read about the development of a plan for Lake Charlevoix; it mirrors the Lake Tahoe plan which has been put in place here over the past four years. Unfortunately, due to a lack of local initiative, the Lake Tahoe venture was largely imposed upon the basin by the federal government and State of California. As a consequence, it lacks the sensitivity of a locally based effort, and it therefore seems destined to aggravate, rather than balance, the tensions between economic and environmental health. By developing the Lake Charlevoix plan at the local level, you should avoid this pitfall, and improve the chances for success.

Still another parallel which we have found striking is the development of the local government. Although the improvement district I now manage in Incline has three times the budget and five times the personnel as the City of Charlevoix - and all the modern technology to match - it is in a similar state of transition today, in terms of role definiton among the elected body, management, and staff, as Charlevoix was in, during the early 1980's. Several of the tools we developed in Charlevoix - including the personnel management policy - have now become part of standard practice in Incline Village. Which just goes to show that the influence of Charlevoix extends well beyond Michigan - or even the Midwest.

Well, I better be signing off, lest this letter become equivalent in scope to some of my more famous memorandums. Support Mike Weisner - from what we can tell he certainly seems to be doing a fine job - and let us know the date for the 1985 Venetian. We may have left town, but the town has not left us!

Keep in touch,
Karen and Bob Hunt

Letters from readers:

Why not an office?

To the Editor:

Mayor Hal Hill would like to have a parttime office in the city hall where he could talk to people that have problems in the city. Maybe 1 to 3 hours a day, 2 to 3 days a week.

This will not be taking over the city managers job, but doing things the city manager does not have time to do, and then he can report to the city manager.

I know the last city manager asked for more help in the summer months and you could not get to see him, as he was on the long distance phone for hours. Now here is the mayor agreeing to help with the problems of the people and relaying them to him when he isn't busy, and at no extra charge for more office help.

Why are Shirley Roloff and Michael Greeley "leery" of the request? Roloff hates to start something new, as there is enough going on now at City Hall.

I think we need this office so people who wanted various documents signed would not have to have the mayor run down if he had regular office hours.

The City of Charlevoix residents voted Mr. Hill in as mayor and he promised to have an office, so they could come and talk over their problems. You voted him in, now let's help him keep his promise. Call or write the Courier so they can tell city hall how the people feel.

John Sharrow.

Plenty of room

To the Editor:

"Cheers" to our new Mayor, who obviously sees the big picture of cooperation and communication as the necessary heartbeat for our unique community. And yes, there is "room in City Hall" for a new, dedicated professional who is available to the people full time. We need all the truly professional help we can get.

Maybe Mayor Hal Hill can move us beyond planning and into uplifting, cooperative accomplishments. For, Charlevoix is yet a diamond in the rough.

Clockwise

Remembering Bobby Burns

by Bob Clock

Why is the birthday of the Scottish poet Bobby Burns still celebrated today in various parts of the world when so many of his coatemporaries are scarcely remembered, much less mourned?

A good question and I'm glad you asked it, because as of Saturday, Jan. 26, Charlevoix will become one of dozens of pockets of culture on both sides of the Atlantic to mark the natal day of the Scottish bard with an authentic Scots dinner at 218 Bridge Street and a program of Scottish music, Scottish dances, sing-along Scottish music by Charlotte Ross Lee and a few samples of Burns' poetry by Clockwise.

The world, of course, admires Shakespeare, William Wordsworth, Thomas Gray, Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, Rebelais and Dante.

But I can't tell you how long it has been since I have been invited to a banquet honoring the birthday of Thomas Gray. Or even a high tea at which William Wordsworth was the patron saint.

BUT BURNS IS something different. The son of a farmer and a farmer himself, Burns drew on a philosophy that was so elemental that he captivated the imagination of the common man. Furthermore, although Burns was deeply schooled in the English tongue, he wrote in the broad Scots dialect spoken by his friends and neighbors.

You would almost think that the dialect would serve as a barrier between the poet and the rest of the English speaking world, but that hasn't proved to be the case. In fact his dialect poems remain far more popular than anything he wrote in standard English.

Just read Burns aloud and his meaning usually comes through loud and clear.

The real secret to Burns' survival down through the ages is that he makes people feel good about themselves, which is no mean task.

"The rank is but the guinea's stamp,
"The man's the gowd for a' that."

What a powerful sentiment in a land and at a time when the average man was a tenant farmer who did not own the land he tilled, the farm implements he used or even the roof over his head. Can you imagine how warmly the working class embraced Burns when he told them that they were just as good as Lord So-and-So or the Earl of Such-and-Such. "The man's the gold for all that." Rank and title don't count.

Pretty heady stuff in a world still reeling from the American Revolution, with the French Revolution just beginning to fester.

Probably just as important was the fact that Burns shared the strengths and weaknesses of his fellow men and didn't hesitate to write about them. His amorous exploits were legion and his capacity and affection for John Barleycorn was prodigious.

Tom Warth, owner of 218 Bridge Street, and his head chef, Richard Kent, a native of Edinburgh, are planning the Burns dinner. Reservations are required.

City Council...

the 1978 zoning map was drawn.

He also stressed that unless the city acts to consolidate the R-4 designation for the entire lot, another developer may propose a multi-family project for just the half of the property already zoned R-4.

On a motion by council member Shirley Roloff to rezone the half of the parcel now mapped as R-1 to R-4, all five council members present voted in favor. Second Ward representative William Bellows was absent.

Council also gave unanimous approval to an ordinance establishing a residency requirement for city employees. Under the new ordinance, all "full time officers, employees and other personnel" of the city must live within the city. Those not living in the city at the time of their hiring will have 90 days to move into the city. The city manager has the authority to grant an additional 90 days in special circumstances.

Not affected by the policy are part-time employees, those employees whose union contracts are inconsistent with the requirement and seasonal employees.

In other action, council:

-Approved a fiscal 1984-85 budget of $42,900 for the Downtown Development Authority.

-Appointed as city clerk Mrs. Laurel Butcher, 26, who has had experience as assistant manager of a finance agency in Chicago.

-Approved summer 50 percent tax collection as requested by the Charlevoix Public Schools.

-Approved a fire and ambulance contract with Norwood Township.

Reported by Danielle Johnson.

Peaine Township pursues appeal

Now, Peaine Township has filed an appeal from the Tax Tribunal's decision in the Court of Appeals. In effect, the appeal is a continuation of the Township's suit against Charlevoix County.

In another action, Peaine Township has filed suit against the State Tax Commission for assuming jurisdiction over the Townships's tax rolls last spring. This was brought about when a Township taxpayer objected to the way the Township Board of Review rolled back 1984 assessments in the residential classification.

The Tax Commission convened another Board of Review on last November 20 and re-instated the 1984 assessments. This delayed action resulted in a late mailing of 1985 tax bills, which Peaine Township property owners did not receive until January 2.

Peaine Township has a State Equalized Valuation (SEV) of $10,506,932, and, based on a rate of 7.2878 mills, a total tax bill of $76,572.

It has the fourth lowest SEV in the County, after Chandler, St. James, and Norwood Townships.

Taking matters of its tax assessments to court has been an expensive proposition for Peaine Township, which is now asking other townships in the County for financial help in its legal batties.

Peaine Township Supervisor Richard Burris was in Mexico last week and could not be reached for comment.

Childrens choir aided by art grant

The first rehearsal was held Thursday of the newly-formed Charlevoix Community Children's Choir, one phase of a continuing music outreach program sponsored by Chip Counseling Center, the Michigan Council for the Arts and several local benefactors.

Fran Tollas, who originated the concept three years ago, haa titled the 1985 edition "Sing Your Song."

Mrs. Tollas, a vocal music instructor with extensive performance and music education background, successfully received a grant last month from the Michigan Council for the Arts to continue the program. The $500 grant, sought under the auspice of Chip Counseling Center, is matched with funds generated locally through contributions.

For the Children's Choir, the grant funds will provide "seed money" to get the project off the ground, said Mrs. Tollas.

Local youngsters wishing to participate may still register through January by attending, with a parent, one of the weekly rehearsal sessions. Sessions are held at 3:45 p.m. Wednesdays at the First Congregational Church Fellowship Hall.

There are actually two choirs, one for kindergarten through second grade directed by Joann Dannecker, and one for third grade and older directed by Ms. Tollas. Since matching funds were provided by the First Congregational Church, said Mrs. Tollas, the choir will be performing there at least twice.

The choir project will culminate in the spring with a musical, she added.

In addition to the Children's Choir, the "Sing Your Song" program will feature six other activities in the coming months. They include the following:

-Classes in basic vocal technique for the Charlevoix High School speech classes.

-Group vocal lessons for soloists from the Boyne City High School Drama Club.

-Teaching tapes for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District's Developmental Needs Primary Class.

-Workshop on singing and teaching lullabies for Mary Blagini's program for high school-aged expectant mothers (to include tapes of lullabies at cost.)

-Performances of a senior citizen choir from the Friendship Center in Petoskey.

-Recital-performance in late spring with all participants.

Peace forum set

January 24 marks the beginning of the East Jordan Ecumenical Forum of Peacemaking. Planned and led by members of the East Jordan Ministerial Association, the Forum will involve a discussion of the Roman Catholic Bishops' "The Challenge of Peace: God's Promise and Our Response".

The Forum will be held on four consecutive Thursday nights at 7:30 pm at the Evangelical Lutheran Church, located at the corner of 3rd and Nichols in East Jordan. The dates for the four sessions are January 24 and 31, February 7 and 14.

According to Rev. Brian W. Secor, one of the membersz of the Ministerial Association, "The Bishop's letter on war and peace is one attempt to assist all people of faith in wrestling with the implications of the Gospel of Jesus Christ for our day. Having participated in a discussion of this document about a year ago, I found it to be very helpful in clarifying my own understanding of how my faith interacts with one of the crucial issues of today - how we people can live in our local, state and national communities in peace and respect life."

The document, first released in 1983, has provided opportunities for numerous persons of all denominations to discuss peace and related issues. Persons from the community and those of surrounding communities who would be interested in participating are requested to contact one of the following ministers in East Jordan for a copy of the book that will be discussed: Rev. Robert Herbon 536-7566; Rev. James Duncan 536-7824; Dr. Donald Ferguson 536-2941; Rev. Secor 536-2161.

Road Comm. sets 1985 budget

by PEG OHLE

This time of year, when the work of the Charlevoix County Road Commission is most visible, it is a good time to talk about road and highway expenses.

Last week, the Road Commission adopted its proposed 1985 budget, amounting to $2,041,800. While its expenses can be pretty well estimated, the Road Commission never knows how much money it will receive during the year, according to Engineer-Director Fred Welch, so the budget may have to be amended later.

In 1984, the Road Commission started out with a proposed budget of $1,760,550, revised it to $2,000,011, and ended up with an actual budget of $1,964,836.

This year's proposed budget anticipates revenues of $1,170,000 for engineering and maintenance of primary and local roads, $200,000 in Federal funds, $230,000 for trunkline maintenance, $50,000 for snow removal, and $125,000 in township contributions. Except as otherwise indicated, all monies listed come from the State, including about $1 million from taxes on gasoline and diesel fuel and costs of license plates. Property tax money is not spent for road building or maintenance, except contributions from townships, which are generated from property taxes.

The sales tax on gasoline is the largest single source of Road Commission funds. It is a set figure and is not affected by the rising and lowering costs of gasoline. However, when gasoline prices are high, fewer gallons are sold, so the amount of tax money drops.

After various State agencies receive their share of gasoline tax money – including public transportation – about 34 percent is left to be shared by the 83 County Road Commissions in the State. It is allocated on the basis of population and road mileage, among other factors.

When snowfall in the County measures over 80 inches in the course of the year, the Road Commission receives additional snow removal funds the next year. As of last week, snowfall in Charlevoix County was approaching 60 inches.

The Road Commission figures it will spend about $275,000 on construction of primary and local roads in 1985. Because of cuts in funds recently, road construction has not had a high priority. Also, the Road Commission has budgeted $760,000 for primary and local road maintenance, $325,000 for primary and local road winter maintenace, and $230,000 for State trunk line maintenance. Other expenditures include $350,000 for equipment, $30,000 for primary and local traffic controls, and $165,000 in administration, as well as miscellaneous expenses.

High school accredited

The Charlevoix High School has been fully accredited for the 1984-85 school year Vane H. Smith, high school principal, was advised in a communication from the Michigan North Central Association committee.

"We have completed our review of the 1984-85 Annual Report of your school to the North Central Association. The data presented in the report indicates that the school is in compliance with all current association policies and standards. Your careful attention to the requirements of NCA membership and the continuing effort of your superintendent and board of education to maintain sound school standards is recognzied by the association."

The letter also advised that of the 403 Michigan Schools accredited by the NCA last year, only 167 or 41.4 per cent were accredited without deviations for the association policies and standards.

Every seven years, a team of administrators and educators visit a school and study not only its curriculum, teaching staff and operation but its buildings and how the community at large rates its school system. Early in 1984, a 19-member team spent a week at the Charlevoix High School and, at that time, fully accredited the institution. During the ensuing years, the school system is expected to meet certain criteria set forth by the NCA in order to maintain its accreditation. The Charlevoix High School has maintained its accreditation since 1923.

"March" starts Feb. 4

This year's Mothers March to raise funds to continue the March of Dimes battle against birth defects is scheduled to take place in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties on February 4 through 16. Local volunteer marchers will call at homes in the area in this annual nationwide campaign to improve the health of America's children.

"The Mothers March is the March of Dimes special and personalized way of reaching into every neighborhood to ask for help in our efforts," according to Marion Parker, Coordinator of Chapter Services for the Northwest Chapter of March of Dimes. "Great progress has been made since the March of Dimes started the fight against birth defects in 1955," she said, adding, "and every year brings more knowledge, more help for the unborn and newborn."

Money collected during the Mothers March helps support programs in birth defects research, medical services and education programs. Locally, March of Dimes has belped fund genetic field clinics, childbirth classes at Charlevoix Area Hospital, Haalth Career Awards at NCMC, and a Nutrition Aide at Char-Em Alternative School for Teenage Parents.

Anyone interested in joining the Mothers March should call the chairperson in their area. In Charlevoix the Section Leaders are Barbara MacArthur, Ann Hanna, Sally Ochs, Charlene Spencely, Mary Browe and Joann Patrick.

Got the Chills? Be alert to "hypothermia."

For millions of Americans, the chilling winds of winter mean more than snow and icy roads. They also bring the danger of "hypothermia." That's a fancy word for the condition in which the body loses heat to a cold or cool environment faster than the heat is replaced.

Most vulnerable to hypothermia are the chronically ill, infants and the very old — in other words, those whose systems are generally not strong enough to conserve body heat when the temperature drops. If undetected, hypothermia can quickly prove fatal.

Fortunately, awareness of the condition and its symptoms plus some commonsense precautions can prevent "the worst" from happening.

Hypothermia means low body temperature, typically 95 F. or lower. And temperatures in the immediate surroundings do not have to fall below freezing for hypothermia to occur. Even household temperatures close to 70° can lower body temperature below the normal 98.6.

Early detection is vital.

Loss of body heat dulls the brain so that the victim is unaware of the condition and is dependent on the alertness, knowledge and action of others.

Common warning signals are: confusion and reduced alertness, trembling on one side of the body or in one arm or leg, shivering in the early stages, but absence of shivering as the condition worsens, cold and stiff muscles, cold abdomen and back, difficulty in speaking, slow breathing, bloated face, pale and waxy skin, forgetfulness, drowsiness, unconsciousness, low body temperatures.

Anyone displaying these symptoms should be gently wrapped in a warm blanket and emergency help should be summoned immediately.

Staying warm involves more than throwing another log on the fire. To guard against hypothermia, older persons should maintain a good diet because food provides necessary fuel and heat for the body. They should also drink plenty of liquids, but refrain from alcohol, which speeds up heat loss and makes it very hard to keep warm. Rest is also important, balanced by a moderate amount of exercise.

Indoors, loosely layered, dry clothing will help trap heat around the body. Outdoors, a hat and scarf will cut down on heat loss.

Take cold weather seriously – use caution and common sense.

Quick — thinking pair prevents ice fishing tragedy to check out the employment situation in Boyne City. They were returning to Charlevoix via East Jordan at about 2:30 p.m. when they crossed the bridge over the Jordan River and saw ice fishermen on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix not far from open water where the river enters the lake.

"Those guys are crazy fishing that close to the water," said Hamilton.

As they drove north on M-66, LaVoie caught a brief glance through the trees of another ice fisherman on the lake. What struck LaVoie as unusual was the fact that the fisherman he thought he saw appeared to be only a foot or two tall.

"Gee," said LaVoie, "That guy's really short!"

But as they drove a little farther and got a clear view of the scene, both LaVoie and Hamilton suddenly realized what was going on.

"That guy's not short," said LaVoie, "That guy's in the water!"

Running down to the shoreline, they told Brill not to move and asked if he had a rope in the house. Brill told them to look in a crawl space under the house but when they ran up to look for it, they couldn't see anything in the dark.

Sue was awakened from her nap by "these two men on the porch yelling and pounding on the door."

"I was still sleepy when I answered the door but when I saw the looks on their faces, I panicked," she said.

While LaVoie and Hamilton went back to look for the rope, Sue called the East Jordan Fire Department. The two rescuers eventually located a light in the crawl space storage area and found two lengths of lightweight nylon rope.

The rope was tied together. Hamilton, who is lighter than LaVoie, linked himself by rope to LaVoie on the shore, ventured out to within about 15 feet of the fractured ice and started tossing the lifeline to Brill.

Brill caught the fourth throw. As he hung on, LaVoie and Hamilton slowly pulled him out. They rushed him into the house and started stripping off the wet clothing. Brill was shivering uncontrollably but it was his hands, which were turning colors and giving Brill considerable pain, that caused the most alarm.

The phone rang and Hamilton answered. It was the East Jordan rescue squad. They couldn't find the house.

By the time the rescue squad arrived a few minutes later, Brill's condition had stabilized sufficiently to not require an ambulance run to the hospital.

Later, Brill was driven by family members to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was examined by Dr. Mitch Carey and given a clean bill of health.

Says Brill in retrospect, "There's no way I would be here if these two guys (Hamilton and LaVoie) hadn't come along and seen me.

No way."

Hypothermia: Winter's quiet killer

Hypothermia, a subnormal body temperature condition, may occur in anyone who is exposed to cold temperatures. The elderly are especially vulnerable because they have difficulty producing and conserving body heat.

A cold environoment causes the body to lose heat. If body heat is lost faster than it can be replaced, body temperature drops from its normal of 98.6 degrees F. A body temperature reading of 96 degrees F and under is diagosed as hypothermia, a condition in which the body cannot function properly. Body processes are slowed and body functions are often disrupted. Complications increase as the body temperature falls lower. While exposure to very cold temperatures causes hypothermia to develop quickly, prolonged exposure to relatively mild temperatures may take a few days to a week bebore symptoms appear.

A person suffering with hypothermia will have symptoms ranging from shivering and loss of firm muscle coordination in mild hypothermia to unconsciousness and heat failure in severe hypothermia.

Chances of recovery from hypothermia depend upon a number of factors. An early detection is of particular importance. The victim's age and general health, the degree of internal chilling, the duration of hypothermia, and the methods of treatment have a bearing upon the victim's ability to survive.

Although most deaths from hypothermia occur in very cold environments (30-50 degrees F), temperatures do not have to be below freezing for death to result. Low room temperatures are dangerous to vulnerable older persons.

The most vulnerable to hypothermia are the chronically ill, the frail, those taking certain prescription drugs, and the mentally ill. Those suffering from heart disease, diabetes, arthritis, and Parkinson's disese are particularly at risk. Persons with strokes or nervous disorders have a reduced temperature sense and a decreased ability to conserve body heat. Many older people take prescription drugs, such as barbiturates, sedatives, tranquilizers, antihypertensives, vasodilators, and antidepressants which interfere with the body's natural temperature-regulating processes.

No home treatment of the victim should be attempted. The victim should never be placed in a hot bath or shower, should not be give food or drink, should not be moved suddenly or handled roughly, and should not be allowed to walk or move around. The only safe measure family or friends can take is to cover the victim with warm blankets until professional help is available.

Warns of open water at Northwest Marine

The harbormaster of the Northwest Marine yacht basin on Lake Charlevoix has issued a warning to ice fishermen and snowmobilers that open water is being maintained thorughout the winter in the harbor area and from 75 to 100 yards out into the lake.

Those using the ice in that vicinity are requested to take special care.

Out on the ice? Be careful, says DNR from the Dept. of Natural Resources

This is the time of year when anyone who ventures out on the ice should be thinking about ice safety stresses Department of Natural Resources Law Enforcement personnel.

Early winter freezes and thaws render ice unsafe for any type of traffic, particularly in December and January, and as temperatures rise, in March and April. "In 1983 alone," says Frank Opolka, Chief of DNR's Law Enforcement Division, "12 Michigan residents lost their lives in ice accidents; in 1984, DNR reports show six fatal ice accidents occured in Michigan."

What constitutes a safe depth of ice is difficult to state. While three inches of ice on a farm pond may hold a person with little danger, that same three inches on a moving stream or a lake with springs, stumps and currents, could be very dangerous. On the great lakes, one step from three foot thick ice may lead the next step to nothing more than skim ice.

The following measures are suggested to reduce the risk of ice accidents:

1. Do not drive on ice.
2. Test the ice continually with an ice spud or similarly heavy bar or staff, especially for ice skating and ice fishing.
3. Stay away from stream mouths and lake inlets and outlets.
4. Be suspicious of gray or dark spots in the ice, these may be soft areas. Note: ice deteriorates along shoreline and around pilings and docks first.
5. Rescue gear should be available. A ladder is a good tool and at least 50 feet of good line, a tree limb or even an article of clothing can save.
6. If you work on ice, two large spikes carried on the body can be used as a hand hold on the ice when crawling from a hole.

Those who can avoid ice travel, should do so, says Opolka, particularly snowmobilers, cross country skiers and showshoers who can enjoy these sports on solid ground. In 1982, four snowmobilers traveling on a lake and unfamiliar with the conditions, crashed through the ice and drowned.

If travel over ice is unavoidable, as in ice fishing or is work-related, some of the factors that should be weighed are: type of ice, recent weather, a person's own knowledge of conditions and area, and the body of water you are crossing.

What do you do when you do through the ice? Opolka offers these suggestions:

1. Turn on your back and kick to work your way out of the hole; your clothes will offer some flotation.
2. Get out of the ice in the direction you walked on.
3. Do not stand, rather, roll away from the hole until you feel you can safely stand.
4. Work fast, you have just minutes before the cold water will affect your reasoning.
5. Your clothes will soon freeze; walk to safety quickly. If you are going to your car, remove your keys before they freeze in your pocket.

What do you do when assisting someone who has fallen through the ice? Stay on solid ground; avoid getting on the ice if possibla. If a person must assist from the ice, they should lay flat and spread their weight as much as possible. Rescue gear (ladder, rope tied around victim; etc.) should be utilized.

LEE "BUD" SNEATHEN was honored by family, friends and fellow Hayes Township officials Saturday night at a surprise party held at the Hayes Township Hall for the former township supervisor. Sneathen served as supervisor for over 30 years before being defeated in last year's general election by Paul Hoadley. Hoadley and the township board came up with the idea for the party and presented the longtime supervisor with a commemmorative plaque and a specially decorated cake to top off the potluck dinner. Rayders, 12-0, ranked 3rd after two more wins

By Ulf Evaldsson

Visiting Rogers City, Tuesday, Red Rayders posted another victory, whipping the Hurons 66-51 in a game totally dominated by Charlevoix, now ranked third in Class C. When St. Ignace came to Charlevoix Friday, the Rayders extended their record to 12-0 for this season, by defeating the Saints 78-61.

In Rogers City, Rayders set the pace right from the beginning, jumping to a 12-4 lead in the first couple of minutes on four buckets by Doug Sloan. Jef Getzinger and Max Felax poured in two baskets for the Hurons, but soon Jody Putman, John Pearl, Sean Ferguson and Brent Cole helped the Rayders with three baskets to a 24-8 lead, ending the first quarter.

Having problems with the taller and more technical opponents, there wasn't much the Hurons could do but watch the Rayders' offense pouring in one basket after another.

After the Rayders' opening rally, Krajnik made the score 24-10 before Cole could bring it to 28-12, scoring two free throws. In the middle of the second stanza, Sloan showed up again and extended the lead to 32-12 hitting two buckets.

Through the whole game, the cat kept on playing with the mouse and when Tim Plagge tipped in a basket, bringing it to 39-17, followed by Cole's field goal, there was no doubt that Rayders were going to travel home with another win under their belt. Before halftime, Getzinger had time to snap back, making it 41-21 through two field goals.

Rogers City kept on trying to reach the Rayders' lead, but mostly the Hurons offense was sent packing by a solid and strong Rayder defense, who managed to keep their zone clean. Charlevoix actually almost put the game away before halftime through the 24-8 and 41-21 leads at the quarters.

Even if the Hurons never managed to reach the lead after halftime, their play seemed to improve a little bit and they started to find their way to the basket better.

Halfway into the third quarter, Felax scored a free throw making it 52-31 and by the end of the quarter, after Cole had hit a field goal, Getzinger provided his team with two baskets, bringing it to 54-35. Earlier, Ferguson had turned a 48-28 lead into 52-28.

Beginning the final quarter, Getzinger hit another basket for the Hurons, followed by Sloan's field goal. Felax brought it to 56-39, and Spome and Miller helped Rogers City to 56-43, before Pearl tipped in two buckets, making sure that Rayders would keep the lead. Hurons responded with a basket, and halfway into the quarter, Fleming made it 60-47. At the end Putman brought it to 64-49, before Blake poured in a basket for the Hurons. Marc Himebauch grabbed a rebound and settled the final score, 66-51, through a layup. Cole packed the scoring with his 24 points, Sloan had 14, Pearl 8, Ferguson 6, Syvertsen and Putman 4 each and Packy LaBlance, Himebauch and Plagge 2 each. Best scorer for the Hurons was Max Felax, 14 points.

The Rayders' game vs. St. Ignace, Friday, turned out almost the same way as when the teams met in the U.P. in December, when Rayders won 82-60. Ferguson and Sloan stayed out by giving the Rayders a 4-0 lead, before Jeff Carmean could knot the score 4-all through two fieldgoals. The first quarter was relatively close and halfway into it, when the score was 8-8, Cole hit two baskets along with Putman's field goal and Rayders reached a 14-8 lead. Saint Andy Brown, the leading scorer for St. Ignace with 18 points, scored two buckets and one free throw, snapping back to make it 14-13 going into the second quarter.

Cole and Sloan brought it to 20-13 and later Rayders got a 23-15 lead, before Clyde O'Rourke made it 23-17, decreasing Rayders' lead, at least for a while. When the score was 25-19, Rayders took off and scored a couple of quick field gials, clinging to a comfortable 33-19 lead, which was to become 37-24 after the third quarter. Going into the second half, Clyde O'Rourke and John Belonga helped the Saints to 37-28, but the Rayders didn't let them get any closer. Pearl, Sloan and Cole increased the lead to 43-28, and later, Cole hit a bucket making it to 49-30. The Saints caught up a little but by bringing it to 49-38, and when Brown scored again, it showed 51-40 on the score-board.

To protect the lead Rayders jumped to a 55-40 lead, and, ending the third stanza, Ferguson poured in a layup bringing it to 59-42. Tim Plagge started out the final quarter by making it 61-42 followed by Putman's field goal, before Carmean and Brown hit one bucket each. In the end the Saints packed on all their sails, but the Rayders wouldn't let go of their lead, cruising in the safe 78-61 win; the twelfth in a row for the unbeatable Charlevoix Rayders.

"Our defense worked better than it did in the last meet, but Charlevoix has a very good offense, and we still couldn't stop them", Rick Ledy, coach for the Saints, said Friday night.

"The team is really in good shape right now, and I hope we can continue playing as well as we did tonight", Rayder-coach Dave Smith remarked. "Sloan had some good rebounding, and I'm also pleased with Putman and Jim Martin, who did a good effort," he continued.

Top scorer for the Rayders was Brent Cole with 26 points, Sloan had 16, Putman 14, Pearl 8, Ferguson and Martin 4 each, and Joe Hayes, Packy LaBlance and Plagge two each. Sloan grabbed 12 rebounds, Cole and Putman 7 each, Pearl 6 and Plagge 5. Apart from Andy Brown's 18 points in the game, Carmean had 14, O'Rourke 10 and Belonga 8 for St. Ignace.

Junior varsity swamps St. Ignace, loses squeaker to Rogers City

The Charlevoix Rayder JV basketball team won over St. Ignace by a 51-23 margin Friday night and dropped their game with Rogers City by a score of 43-41 in a game played earlier in the week.

In the game with the Saints, the young Rayders jumped to a 12-4 first period lead, made it 23-12 at halftime and more than doubled it to 40-18 going into the final period.

Coach Don Carey emptied the bench as the Rayders scored 18 field goals and 15 of 37 from the line while committing 13 personal fouls. The visitors committed a total of 28 personal fouls and connected on nine from the floor and five of 11 from the charity line.

Dan Drury led the scoring with 20 points and Jim Gibbs added 10 for the Rayders. Mark Gustafson had eight for the Saints.

In the game at Rogers City, the game was lost on the free throw line where the young Hurons were successful on nine of 15 attempts while being outscored 18 to 17 from the floor. Charlevoix scored on seven of 14 free throw attempts. Charlevoix had 11 and the Hurons nine personal fouls.

Rogers City outscored the Rayders 15-10, 26-24 and 35-34 at the quarters before taking the game by a two point margin.

Drury had 14 and Gibbs 10 for the Rayders. Sellke had 17 and Chrzan 16 for the victors.

Frosh beat Saints 61-45

The Charlevoix freshmen basketball team, playing at St. Ignace Thursday night, won over the Saints by a score of 81-45.

The Rayder five jumped to a 21-10 first period lead, increased it to 40 to 19 at halftime and 53-27 going into the final period before Coach Barry Anderson emptied the bench and the visitors outscored Charlevoix 18-8.

Scott DeYoung dumped in 19 points and Mark LaBlance 12 for the young Rayders. Billy Green had 10 for the Saints.

Charlevoix will be at Boyne City Thursday and at Cheboygan Monday, Jan. 28, for a game postponed from Jan. 8.

Why Are These Men Smiling?

Meet Cecil Peterson. He's the smallish man with the newspaper. Cecil never misses a chance to check what's happening in his hometown.

Why? Just last week he found a bird cage for his pet gerbil in the Charlevoix Courier Classified section. The reason Cecil is reading while standing up in a crowd (he usually has better manners but he doesn't know any of these fellows anyway) is because he's reading a story about his nephew's basketball team.

Cecil never misses one single issue of his hometown newspaper because he knows that it's crammed full of stuff that the city dailies never touch. Stuff like local bargains at his favorite stores, those juicy classified ads, and what's happening at city hall.

There was even a story about Cecil the time he grew the largest squash he's ever seen. Or anyone else had ever seen for that matter. Cecil cut that picture out and put it in his scrapbook. He ate the squash.

Oh yes, why are those other fellows smiling?

Well, first they're on their way home and second they know their hometown newspaper will be waiting for them when they get there.

Don't miss an issue

Kindergarten screening set

There will be a Developmental Screening Clinic for all children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall of 1986. These clinics are sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. The purpose of these clinics is to provide parents information regarding normal child development, an opportunity to interact with parents of other three year old children, and to have your child informally screened in order to identify any potential learning difficulties which may arise during the school year. These are a free service with appointments made on a first come, first served basis.

The clinics will be held in Charlevoix on February 13 and March 13 at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District Service Center.

Those interested in attending the above clinics are asked to contact Pat Gauthier, 547-9947, at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District for an appointment or for further information.

Mrs. Carlton Ikens is general chairman of the supper.

Tickets will be $3.00 for adults; $2.00 for children under 12 and $12.00 for a family.

4-H seeks donors

Charlevoix County 4-H participants can benefit from contributions recently made to the Michigan 4-H Foundation by First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Leah Green, Charlevoix County 4-H Youth Programs reports that private sector contributors provide essential resources for maintaining high quality Michigan 4-H educational programs.

According to Green, the Michigan 4-H Foundation focuses most resources on the essential training of the state's 30,000 volunteer 4-H leaders, who guide nearly 250,000 youth members.

In addition, contributions support innovative programs, some grants to county programs, and various special projects.

Any group or business wishing to contribute to Michigan 4-H or directly to the Charlevoix County 4-H program may contact Green at 582-6232. Throughout each year a number of local county projects require some funding and some young people require partial scholarshipping to various 4-H events. These experiences broaden personal horizons and bring new skills back to benefit Charlevoix county.

WRC plans 8-part series on parenting

Improving parent-child relationships will be the focus of a series of discussion sessions beginning Monday, February 4th from 12:30 to 2:30 (and running for 8 consecutive Monday afternoons) at the Women's Resource Center, Room 52, North Central Michigan College.

Gail Parr, counselor for the WRC, will be the group leader for the discussions. The discussions will be based on Systematic Training for Effective Parenting (STEP), the most widely used parenting education program in the country. STEP encourages mutual respect between parent and child, increased cooperation, more effective communication, and a more responsible, self-reliant attitude among children.

Interest in parenting education is part of a nationwide trend. A recent nationwide survey conducted by AGS (American Guidance Service which introduced STEP in 1976) showed that parenting education is a growing phenomenon, sponsored by hundreds of diverse groups and organizations and conducted by thousands of individuals throughout the country. This trend in parenting education is a result of many social changes in the U.S. These include changing roles for mothers, a shift away from the autocratic "Father Knows Best" value system to a more democratic viewpoint, and the increasing mobility of families.

The cost of the workshop is $25 for members and $30 for non-members. (A special rate of $40 is being charged for interested couples.) For more information and to pre-register for the class, contact the WRC office at 347-0067.

Lake Chx. committee sets first meeting

by PEG OHLE

The first meeting of the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee will be held this (Wednesday) evening at 7:30 p.m. in the County Building Annex.

Appointed last month, by the County Planning Commission, the 15 persons on the Committee will undertake a pioneering job of studying all aspects of the lake and contiguous lands. They have received a Charge explaining the purpose of the Committee and its major functions, which reads:

"The purpose of the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Committee shall be to develop a plan that details methods of managing the use, growth, and quality of Lake Charlevoix and its adjacent lands.

"The Committee, with help of staff and outside special interest and technical expertise, using historical and current data on lake water quality, land use, existing zoning regulations, and other information obtained as needed, shall develop, through thoughtful deliberations and compromises, a plan for the future use of Lake Charlevoix and its adjacent lands, including types of development from intensive to preserve. The plan should not be limited to political boundaries which are arbitrary.

"The Committee shall develop a philosophy that revolves around the idea that we are basically renters of property, rather than owners, as determined by the fact that our use of land and water is so minute as to the length of time that the lake and property will exist, and it is our duty to leave the land in better condition than when we came."

Listed as major functions of the Advisory Committee are:

1–Serve as a vehicle for communication between the County Planning Commission and groups that each committee member represents.

2–Provide recommendations to the Planning Commission as to the desires of the citizens of the county, regarding the types, quanitites, and location of development around Lake Charlevoix.

3–Assist in developing the attitude survey to be used in the gathering of information regarding community attitudes.

4–Recommend a specific work program to the Planning Commission.

5–Development of, discussion of, and recommendation of alternatives for usage of the lake and adjacent lands, but not limited by political boundaries. Recommend various options, with the rationale as to why the specific options were selected.

6–Recommend changes in federal, state, and local laws, rules and regulations that will serve to further the objectives and implementation of the Lake Management Plan.

Members of the Advisory Committee are Dr. John Hall, a physician and member of the board of directors of the Lake Charlevoix Association; Jerry Puhl, a school teacher and member of WATCH, a Charlevoix environmentalist group; J. Richard Smith, a real estate developer (The Harborage in Boyne City and Wildwood on Walloon); Irvin Sturm an engineer with Site Planning Development, representing Bay Township; Clarence Goldstick, a retiree and chairman of the Charlevoix Township Zoning Board, representing that township; William Wasylewski, an employee of the Boyne City Cooperative and zoning administrator for Evangeline Township, representing that Township, Alan Siblnic, a veterinarian and Eveline Township Planning Commission member, representing that Township.

Also, Leah Green, an employee of Charlevoix County and Hayes Township Trustee, representing that Township; John Frey, a farmer and Marion Township Planning Commission member, representing that Township, Robert (Bud) Cummins, an employee of DCI in Charlevoix and a South Arm Township Trustee and member of the Planning Commission, representing that Township; William Grimm, retired head of the Charlevoix County Soil Conservation Service and a Boyne City Commissioner, representing that City; John Friedly, a computer salesman and member of the City of Charlevoix Planning Commission, representing that City; Carl Beck, a real estate salesman and member of the East Jordan City Council, representing that City; and Larry Levengood and Tom Wieland representing the County Planning Commission.

Dr. Hall is serving as temporary chairman of the Committee and Puhl as temporary secretary.

'Music Man' will advance to state competition

"The Music Man", presented by the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts Class in district competition Saturday, received a II rating (a I rating is highest) but will still be elgible for regional state competition, according to Connie Ford, director of the program.

Meredith Willson's popular musical was selected by the class as its presentation this season.

Only one individual award was presented, an excellence to Ann Wagner for her portrayal of Mrs. Paroo, the Irish mother of the female lead in the show, Marion.

Receiving excellence awards for costume execution were Tim Noirot, Dianna Loder, Shawn Elliot and Jennifer Clock and for state management, Brian Noirot and his crew.

Mrs. Ford said she was very proud of her cast and its support group. "The Music Man" is not the easiest show to do and I think they did an excellent job, missing a II by one point. When you see the show you will see what I mean," she said.

Local residents will be able to see the production in the near future. Because the show had to be cut to 45 minutes for presentation in competition, it was necessary to cut some of the dance routines. Mrs. Ford plans to return these to the show for presentation locally.

It will be presented presented at Charlevoix High School February 9 and will compete at state February 15-16.

Mrs. Ford added that she and the cast as well as the support group appreciated the fine support from parents and interested people during the performance. "It always gives you a boost when you see that your community is behind you when you look over the audience. Charlevoix has always been supportive of our program," Mrs. Ford commented.

Wetlands protection act explained to area realtors

by PEG OHLE

Its official name is "Goemaere-Anderson Wetland Protection Act", Act 203 of 1979, which became effective October 1, 1980.

Its purpose, as stated in the preamble to the Act, is "to provide for the preservation, management, protection, and use of wetlands; to require permits to alter certain wetlands; to provide for a plan for the preservation, management, protection, and use of wetlands; and to provide remedies and penalties."

The Act, popularly known as the "Wetlands Act", was the subject of lively discussion at last week's meeting of the Antrim-Charlevoix Board of Realtors.

With an estimated 80 percent of the shoreline of Lake Charlevoix tentatively classified as wetlands, the problems of securing permits to alter the wetlands for purposes of building are uppermost in the minds of Realtors and those they serve.

Ron Brown of the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR), whose title is "Land Resources Program Supervisor - Wetlands Act", fielded many questions about the Act, how it is being enforced, and the rights of landowners:

–A general rule for those wanting to buy a parcel of land that might be a wetland – if it is wooded with cedar and shows standing water – is to apply for a permit to fill a housing spot before buying. The application must indicate how the area will be altered by the building project. If the DNR decides the wetlands will not be unduly disturbed, it will issue a permit.

If the project is questionable, the DNR could suggest an alternative plan or deny the permit. This procedure could take up to three months.

–On parcels of land where there is an upland area away from the lake and questionable wetlands, landowners should build on the upland and have access to the lake by a foot path or board walk.

–The DNR will not buy wetlands for which it has denied a permit. However, the landowner may apply to his local unit of government to have his taxes reduced because a permit was denied.

–The soil in a questionable wetland area is the key identification.

–The Soil Erosion officer in the County (Ron Geer in Charlevoix County) has general knowledge of the wetland areas.

–Although the Wetlands Act became effective in 1980, the DNR has had a problem letting people know of its applications. Enforcement began in fits and starts but is now moving forward. (Several parcels have been inspected in Charlevoix County with most of the permits being denied but alternatives offered).

–The DNR will always try to find an alternative plan if the one submitted by the landowner is not permissable.

–People who buy near water look at the lake or stream as something to enjoy. If that is destroyed, no one has anything.

–In line with the above, wetlands filter nutrients out of their water and prevent them from reaching lakes and streams.

–Although there has been much general criticism of the Wetlands Act and rumors of lawsuits because of its restrictions, no lawsuits have yet been filed.

–Complete maps indicating wetlands areas are not yet available, but the State Association of Realtors will be working with the DNR to make them available as soon as possible.

–Landowners who are concerned about whether or not they can sell their wetlands property might do

Wiesner, council butt heads over purchase of new street sweeper

City Manager Michael Wiesner and some members of the city council butted heads Monday night over the question of whether Charlevoix needs a new street sweeper.

Having recommended at a previous council meeting that the city's existing street sweeper be replaced with a new model at a cost of about $51,500, Wiesner was instructed by council at that time to further study the feasibility of rebuilding the city's present sweeper, a 1974 model.

Wiesner reported to council Monday night that refurbishing the sweeper on hand would cost a minimum of $9,000 initially and probably more in replacement parts as the season wore on.

He also advised council that replacement parts for the city's existing machine, a Wayne model, will no longer be available one year from now and will have to be custom made.

"In summary," reported Wiesner, "Rebuilding our machine would definitely cost more money in the long run and surely would result in a unit with much more down time than a new unit."

Council member Earl Muma, who had examined the city's existing machine as did Council member Robert Timms, differed with Wiesner's conclusion, however, saying that he felt the existing sweeper can be rebuilt at a savings.

Council member Michael Greeley also initially favored rebuilding the sweeper on hand. He suggested that a used 1968 Elgin sweeper, listed as surplus for $2,500, be purchased from the K.I. Sawyer airbase for spare parts.

Greeley later agreed with Wiesner's position citing the city manager's report to council of at least three larger cities where rebuilding of sweepers had proven uneconomical.

In his written report to council, Wiesner cited his communications with the street departments of Denver, Colorado, the Port Authority of New York City and Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan. These three agencies with extensive experience in snow removal equipment all advised against rebuilding th city's 10-year old Wayne sweeper, Wiesner told the council.

He further reported that the American Public Works Association knew of no other municipality than the Port Authority of New York that had attempted to rebuild mechanical sweepers and that the New York agency no longer rebuilds them since "the best they felt they did was break even."

Wiesner told council that he attempted to find a city that had rebuilt a street sweeper with good results but could not. He adamantly stressed that "experts in the world of street sweeping" agree that rebuilding is not cost effective.

In an informal poll by Mayor Hal Hill of the council, which was meeting as a committee of the whole, only members Shirley Roloff and Greeley went along with Wiesner's recommendation to purchase a new sweeper. Council members William Bellows and Raymond Wood went along with Muma's and Timms' opinion that the existing sweeper be rebuilt.

Wiesner, an engineer by background who was public works director for the City of Cadillac before coming to Charlevoix last Septmber, took strong exception to council's action saying, "I was hired for my public works expertise. Now the first major item that comes up I am overruled on...I am wondering why I was hired. What will the future be like if you (council) are doing this now?"

Mayor Hill responded to Wiesner with some "fatherly advice" that council was only expressing its opinions and told him "not to get discouraged."

The issue was put on this coming Monday's regular council meeting agenda for final action.

"God's Prison Gang" to be shown Sunday

"God's Prison Gang" a newly released film featuring Al Capone's getaway driver, the last member of Bonnie and Clyde's gang and two other notorious criminals who have become Christians will be shown at First Baptist Church, Hwy. M-66 at the edge of town, on Sunday, February 3. The showing is scheduled to begin at 7:00 p.m.

This film, shot behind the walls of New York's Attica prison, is hosted by Art Linkletter. It tells the story of how the work of International Prison Ministry is accomplishing what more guards, higher prison walls and greater financial expenditures have failed to do · keep released inmates from returning to lives of crime.

Telling their stories in the 44 minute film are George Meyer, Al Capone's favorite driver; Floyd Hamilton, (Public Enemy No. 1) the last of the Bonnie and Clyde Gang; Jerry Graham, the "robber-king" of California; and Ted Jefferson, convicted of crimes form drugs and robbery to murder.

Also featured is "Chaplain Ray", whose Dallas-based International Prison Ministry has changed the lives of thousands of inmates over the past 18 years.

The Reverend Thomas Black, pastor of First Baptist Church, said he hopes all citizens concerned about the problem of rising crime will attend the free screening of the film.

New city clerk appointed

by DAVE KNIGHT

Laurel Butcher took over last week as Charlevoix's third city clerk in a little more than a year. The job is now a part-time position, having been downscaled from full-time in a cost saving measure in late 1983.

The appointment of Mrs. Butcher, 26, was approved unanimously by City Council at its January 21 meeting. Council followed the recommendation of a committee comprised of council members Shirely Roloff, Robert Timms and Raymond Wood and City Manager Michael Wiesner. A total of seven applicants were reviewed.

Although Mrs. Butcher was appointed by council to fill a vacancy created when James Brinker resigned, the city clerk's job remains an elected position. City voters turned down a charter amendment last November that would have changed the clerk's position from elected to appointed.

The two-year term being completed by Mrs. Butcher comes up for election this year under the staggered schedule implemented in 1981 in which the mayoral and city clerk elections alternate years.

Brinker had held the dual role of clerk-treasurer since the resignation of Deanne Balch shortly after her election in November, 1983. Mrs. Balch was the last elected clerk to hold the position.

The new city clerk is a native of the Chicago area. She moved with her family to Charlevoix in May, 1984, when her husband, Thomas, took a position as a pharmacist at Dockside Pharmacy. The Butchers have three children, twins Gita and Patrick, 7, and Erik, 3.

Avid cross country skiers, the Butcher family was attracted to the Northwest Michigan area after Thomas competed in the popular VASA event last year at Traverse City.

Mrs. Butcher's background includes extensive experience in business. She has worked for a collection agency and was assistant manager for a finance company in the Chicago area. She also has two years of college education, having attended Aurora College in Chicago and other junior colleges.

"I handled a lot of legal documents in my former jobs," she said. "That experience will probably help me in this new position since I am responsible for handling many city documents."

Since the shifting of many financial chores to the city treasurer in the 1983 reallignment, the city clerk's position has been completely redefined.

Duties now include the posting of notices for and taking minutes of City Council meetings, maintaining records of ordinances, resolutions, fees, rates, policies, contracts and other city documents, and election work. The city clerk also serves as clerk to the Board of Review.

The position has an annual salary of $6,000, with no fringe benefits, plus $9 an hour for certain other duties such as elections. According to City Manager Wiesner, the hourly supplement to the base salary is budgeted to not exceed $1,000 a year.

Mrs. Butcher plans to work from 2½ to 3 days a week although she was hesitant last week to set her specific work schedule until she becomes more familiar with the job.

She also said that, until she has more experience as city clerk, she will not decide on whether she will run for another term this fall.

Joint Commission awards 3-year accreditation to hospital

Charlevoix Area Hospital has been awarded a full Three Year Accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH), Administrator Richard Krueger announced this week.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals is a voluntary organization which assigns a survey team — usually a physician, a hospital administrator, a nurse and a laboratory technologist to vigorously inspect member hospitals. The commission members survey every hospital department, using the highest standards of performance against which to judge the work of each department.

JCAH accreditation is vital to hospitals which wishes to be a part of Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement programs.

During the inspection process, last summer, a Charlevoix Area Hospital, the JCAH team members and the hospital staff worked closely, not only to determine appropriate accreditation for the 44-bed community hospital, but to offer any recommendations for further improvements and developments of service further improvements and developments of service at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"Charlevoix Area Hospital has been continually accredited since 1963," reports Administrator Richard Krueger. "It's a fact of which we are proud. Charlevoix Area Hospital wants its patients to know that it has established and achieved the highest standards of medical care."

New sex ed program set

During April 1985, Charlevoix teenagers and their parents will have the opportunity to participate in a new approach to sex education. The new approach is the "How to Say No" Project, made possible by a one-year grant from the Michigan Department of Social Services.

The program is sponsored locally by Northern Michigan Planned Parenthood of Petoskey and is being presented in schools, churches, the youth groups throughout northern Michigan during 1985. Presentations are currently scheduled in 12 locations, ranging from Traverse City to Mackinaw City.

Eighth graders at the Charlevoix Middle School will participate in the four-part "saying no" series April 8-29, 1985, said Toni Felter, Charlevoix Middle School teacher.

"How to Say No" Project Coordinator Scott Blanchard of Petoskey explained how the program differs from traditional sex education programs.

"First of all, we don't discuss human biology or birth control," Blanchard said. "Instead, we talk about pressures which push young teens toward early sexual involvement."

The pressures take a wide variety of forms, including advertisements that use sex to sell products, sexual themes in TV, videos, and popular songs.

"What these pressures all have in common," Blanchard points out, "is that they push teens toward involvement they admittedly aren't ready for and often don't even want." The "How to Say No" series teaches 12 to 14 year olds assertiveness skills to help them resist such pressures.

"In other words, we help teens stand up for their rights and say 'no'," he said.

A second difference between the "saying no" series and traditional sex education is that the teen portion of the "saying no" program is taught by specially-trained teen leaders, young adults with whom 8th graders can identify. Students meet with the teen leaders for four one-hour sessions to discuss social pressures, peer pressures, problem solving and assertiveness skills.

A third difference is the emphasis the "How to Say No" Project places on family involvement. As part of the "saying no" program, Blanchard will present a special parents workshop to help parents better understand the pressures their children face and to help them support their teen's decision to say "no" to teenage sex. The date of the parents workshop will be announced in February, said Felter.

Knight on the Town

Rude introduction

by Dave Knight

"Michael Wiesner, meet the Charlevoix City Council."

That introduction, four months after Wiesner assumed the position of Charlevoix's city manager, finally took place, in a sense, Monday night.

Somewhere on a ski slope in Nevada, Bob Hunt must have felt a twinge. It was former city manager Hunt who fought for four years to establish the relationship between council and manager outlined in the city's eight-year-old charter.

Now Wiesner is experiencing something of the same feeling that forced Hunt to resign in frustration at one point early in his tenure, a move later rescinded.

In short, the majority of council does not want to spend over $50,000 on a new street sweeper as recommended by Wiesner. The sentiment expressed by four council members at Monday's committee-of-the-whole meeting was that the existing 1974-model sweeper could be rebuilt at a savings.

Wiesner strongly objected, however, saying in so many words that such a move would be penny wise but pound foolish. (See story, page 1.)

Council has every right to do whatever it wants with Wiesner's recommendations. They are the elected officials, they have the final say and they, in the final determination, take the heat.

It seems odd, however, that council would take such a position in the face of considerable documentation gathered by Wiesner from municipalities with considerably more experience than Charlevoix that rebuilding aging street sweepers is uneconomical.

When Wiesner was hired last September, it was largely his expertise in the area of public works that got him the job. Now, in the first major public works decision since Wiesner started in October, council is second guessing him.

Wiesner has a right to feel uncertain about what he has gotten himself into.

To some council members, a street sweeper apparently is apparently not a high priority item. A little down-time for repairs during the snowless seasons won't make a big difference.

That might be true in many, if not most, other communities.

But this is Charlevoix-the-Beautiful, a community with hopefully just a bit more pride in its appearance than most places. A spit and polish image, I think, is vitally important to our stock and trade.

Get the new sweeper.

Snow days: a somber fact of winter life

by ANNE KELLY

It's that season. The snow may snow and the wind may blow.

Come Monday morning the radio spreads the news: "The plows couldn't get to the backroads. School's closed for the day."

These simple words have the power of striking fear in the hearts of homemaking mothers all around town. A career looks real good today. All plans for cleaning, sewing or reading may as well get tossed out the window.

The kids are ecstatic. They couldn't get back to sleep when they heard the news so it's 9 a.m. and they've been up for hours. Already cartoons are wearing thin. Thirteen is too old for Sesame Street, juice and naps. It's going to be a long day.

Now, if the sun comes out and the wind or temperatures aren't too brutal, the perfect solution lies outdoors. Kids can spend hours sledding, fort-making or playing on oversized snowbanks. If they're older, they might walk over to a friend's house and drive somebody else's mother crazy.

But they always come home for lunch.

Then the little ones will be soaked down to the long johns and the older ones will be soaked up to the tops of their high tops, and all their collective residue will end up in a massive damp pile in front of the kitchen register. Mom will make macaroni. The afternoon looms ahead.

Provided there is no access to matinees, museums, bowling alleys or malls, the alternative to violence is creativity - right at home.

There's always the hard-line approach which goes something like this: "Well kids, there's good news and bad news here today." (The macaroni is cooling.)

"The good news is there's no school." (Cheers die down waiting for the flip side.)

"The bad news is that today is the perfect opportunity to clean out your closets and drawers." (Followed by general disapproval.)

But moms aren't all hard-line. Many are softies who take on the responsibility of entertainment for the day like Julie of the Love Boat.

They make mounds of warm play dough (very therapeutic and you're never too old); provide scraps of paper, old cards and material and dream up projects like "Why don't we make a scrapbook for Uncle Harry?"; they do needle point and crewel and even direct small tournaments in Candyland or Clue. They allow forts to be built out of last summer's beach towels and extra blankets. They close their eyes as Dixie cups are filled with bath powder and hand cream, the resulting mush applied to younger childrens' arms in the playroom hospital.

These mothers are the ones who take to reading the Travel Section in the Free Press early on.

If a mom is middle-of-the-road, she will merely look up over her Barbara Cartland romance and announce "Clean your room and you can play at Marcie's today" or "If you fold all the laundry I'll give you 50 cents."

The whole home-from-school dilemma is magnified, of course, by the number of siblings and by variance in age.

What could be a pleasant opportunity for getting re-acquainted with one, is often the occasion of much consternation for more. Anyway, children aren't meant to be home playing after a certain age.

Teenagers, who are happy losing themselves among their peers for sometimes ten hours a day (including volleyball practice) are flaky after one hour at home. Elementary children do fine for six hours a day while moving purposefully from math to reading to science. Preschoolers play well with themselves and Mr. Rogers until naptime. But put them all together in the typical American family three bedroom home for one, or, heaven forbid, two entire snow days and you've got yourself an unnatural control group.

Jam boxes blare upstairs while a Fisher-Price tape recorder playing "Lady and the Tramp" is competing with "General Hospitol" down. No one has made his bed, no one wants to clean the gerbil cage and the mailman is stuck in a drift on the sidewalk because no one has shoveled yet.

"Aw, Ma," they say, "Can't we just relax on our day off?"

The cat is smart; she just curls up under an unmade bed and nods off.

It will all be over tomorrow.

Blood bank report

To the Editor:

101 pints of blood were donated Thursday, January 17 in Charlevoix as our contribution to the community blood bank administered by The American Red Cross. 117 donors came, including 9 first-time donors, but these numbers are a little disappointing in view of the fact that 166 donors agreed to come. We know however that there is a lot of illness and we do miss the Mesquite and Air Force families.

Those who didn't come missed out on a great variety of donated homemade cookies, plus juice donated by Oleson's and coffee donated by the First State Bank. The canteen was staffed by Kappa Sigma members of Beta Sigma Phi, and the American Legion allowed us to use the hall, as usual. Many volunteer nurses, donor aides and clerical aides were on hand. Our sincere thanks goes to all who contributed in any way to this bloodmobile visit.

If there are people who are willing to donate some time to the success of the next visit on May 30, we have need of volunteers to help as donor aides and clerical helpers. You may call Mrs. Mathews at 547-9896 to donate time, or Mrs. Fowler at 547-9314 to donate blood. You will be reminded at the time of the next blood drive.

Protect the lake

To the Editor:

I read with interest your January 16th article describing Hayes Township's battle with William R. Fox of Fox Associates, Inc. over the former Camp Charlevoix property.

High density housing is attempting to move from the incorporated city boundaries and Round Lake into unincorporated township areas of Lake Charlevoix. This move should be stopped in its tracks.

The natural beauty of Lake Charlevoix is known throughout the United States. My job as an airline employee enables me to visit anywhere in the world, yet I have returned to Charlevoix County every year since 1946 and consider it far superior to just about any place I have ever seen.

What also disturbs me is the "verbal agreement" between Fox and the City of Charlevoix to run 10,000 feet (a little over three miles) of water and sewer lines into Hayes Township. This is a clear invitation for high density housing and innumerable boat slips not only by Fox, but by others beyond Hayes Twp. on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix in northern Eveline and southern Bay Townships.

Charlevoix County and townships need to promote their "Residential Zone Development Plan," not a "Planned Unit Development Plan" as advocated by Mr. Fox.

We should all stand behind Hayes Township in this fight and urge our township boards to do the same.

Explaining the WILPF

To the Editor,

Mention has been made in these columns of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and the fact that there is a Little Traverse Area branch of the organization. The league has a long and distinguised history. One of its founders was social worker and peace leader Jane Addams of Hull House (Chicago) fame and from its inception in 1915, it has pioneered and taken part in many forward-looking movements; women's rights, child labor legislation, civil liberties, race relations and social justice to name a few. Its main focus, however, centers on world peace.

Over the years there have been at least five Nobel prize winners among officials and board membes of the League. Jane Addams, Emily Balch and Linus Pauling all received the peace prize; then there were Pearl Buck for literature and George Wald for medicine. Other notables include Dr. Helen Caldicott, Brigadier General Hugh Hester, retired, Coretta Scott King, I.F. Stone and Joanne Woodward.

Michigan is well represented in League annals. Dorothy Detzer of the Traverse City area became a member after her brother was killed in WW. I; she served as League Legislative Secretary in Washington D.C. for many years. Rebecca Shelley of Jackson was a charter member and for long periods during the Vietnam War this dedicated woman, then in her 70's, stood vigil at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Paris. Harriet Arnow, of Ann Arbor, is the author of the novel "The Dollmaker" (televised on ACT in May 1984) which records the struggles of an uprooted Kentucky farm family to adjust to life in a crowded war housing project in Detroit. Others are Jane Hart of Mackinac Island and U.S. Congressman John Conyers, Jr. of Detroit.

Although it began as a women's organization and still retains the word "women's" in its formal title, the League is non-sexist. (More than a few of its members are husbands, brothers, fathers.) It is also non-partison and non-denominational.

With Sections now active in 25 countries representing every continent, WILPF works in a variety of ways to promote better understanding and cooperation among peoples of the Western world, the Third world and the Soviet block. Dialogue is encouraed as well as League-sponsored exchanges - cultural, commercial and professional. World headquarters near the U.N. at Geneva, Switzerland, date back to 1919. The U.S. Section based in Philadelphia currently includes 130 branch organizations in all major states and principal cities.

Like many other civic and church groups who have questioned a status quo of who challenged a prevailing orthodoxy, WILPF groups are sometimes called left-wing and lacking in patriotism. Such mislabeling reveals little or no appreciation of the League's true nature and high purpose, its early dedication and work for peace that pre-dates current east-west tensions, its ideals of freedom and social justice for all, and the perspectives it gains from its world membership.

WILPF supports the US-USSR efforts now underway to negotiate a verifiable reduction leading eventually to eliminating weapons of mass destruction.

A local branch, the Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom, was established in 1980 by area residents who find in the world's crying need for lasting peace a motivating common interest and worthy cause. Among present members more than a few have traveled widely, some to see and feel war first-hand as U.S. servicemen, others to work, pray and witness for peace.

Monthly meetings are usually held in Petoskey and are open to all. Coming in mid-February is a program featuring slides and discussion of the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative (Star Wars) plan.

Thanks for the mittens

To the Editor:

The Charlevoix Women's Club will like to express its appreciation and gratitude to all those in the community who "decorated" the mitten tree at the First State Bank prior to the holidays.

In speaking in behalf of the club, Mrs. Ivan Witthoeft said the contribution of mittens, scarves and caps, numbering more than 50, made it possible for children in the community to have these warm necessities during the cold winter. The donated items were turned over to the Community Christmas project which distributed food and gifts to needy area families during the holidays.

Clockwise

New thriller out

by Bob Clock

Icefire, the new chiller by Robert Wilson, author of Crooked Tree, is now available in paperback at some area bookstores.

If nothing else, the scenario is guaranteed to turn your blood to icewater quicker and more often than Wilson's earlier best seller. That book was laid in the wilds of Northern Michigan near a town with a drawbridge that certainly appeared to be patterned after Charlevoix.

Rosemary Horton, who teaches English at Ellsworth and lives in Charlevoix, previewed a copy of Icefire over the weekend. She says Wilson has surpassed himself in the area of sheer, unadulterated terror.

The story reportedly is laid on a make-believe island in Lake Superior, which sounds disturbingly like our own Beaver Island in Lake Michigan. The only difference is that Wilson's island boasts a prison for the criminally insane.

Can't you imagine all of the gruesome possibilities?

I won't say any more until I've finished the book. If it even comes close to Crooked Tree it will be another runaway best seller in Northern Michigan.

It is definitely something you should not pick up when you are alone at home at night, with a frigid wind clawing at the bedroom window and swirling snow obliterating all objects beyond the pale glow of the porch light.

SPEAKING OF Crooked Tree, whatever became of the movie?

A few years ago, scuttlebutt had it that the book was going to be made into a movie — to be filmed on location. The producers supposedly had signed up local consultants familiar with Ottawa Indian legends. The last I heard, a few bears also were under contract to play the major roles.

Then, poof! The rumors dried up as suddenly as they started.

I still think Crooked Tree would make an outstanding movie — particularly if it were filmed in the spooky headlands north of Harbor Springs.

From a public relations standpoint, a movie based on Crooked Tree could do as much for northern Lower Michigan as Anatomy of a Murder did for Marquette or Somewhere in Time did for Mackinac Island.

But Beauty has paradoxes —
For now are scattered all around
Those ugly green boxes!

Guild provides wide range of services to Charlevoix Hospital

Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild, with a membership of some 200 — men as well as women — looks back on 1984 with pride.

The active volunteer workers of the Guild have participated in a wide variety of hospital activities, giving considerable time and bringing added cheer to hospitalized patients.

Callers to Charlevoix Area Hospital may be aware of new voices on the telephone switchboard, for example. Working side-by-side with the busy admitting department, volunteers field telephone calls, take messages and handle paging within the hospital every week day during the peak hours.

As the switchboard lit up like a Christmas tree, which it often does, Volunteer Darrel Linder observed, "I've always been active in the community, wherever I've lived. When you retire, you just can't retire from that.

"I'm new to the community, year round," he added. "So this is helping me meet people. Of course, underlieing it all is my philosophy to try to be helpful and contribute something to the community."

"I'm very pleased," remarks Dot Gilding, an Admitting Clerk who finds the volunteer's work invaluable. "We have been so busy with admitting, it's hard to handle the switchboard, too. "And," she adds, "most of the volunteers have a tremendous personality and a very interesting background."

Annually the hospital Guild donates sizeable sums to the hospital's equipment fund. This year over $9,000 was contributed to various hospital equipment needs, including an Apnea Monitor for the Obstetrical Unit, which monitors newborn babies with potential problems.

The Guild, also, has underwritten project to replace all hospital black and white televisions with color sets.

Knowing that a warm home-like, comfortable atmosphere is an essential part of "getting well" the Guild has continued a program of helping the hospital with interior decorations. A new wall hanging has added interest to the main lobby. Sliding partitions in the Solarium now permit the separation of the chapel area for privacy for families.

Under the directions of the Guild's immediate past president, Lucille Ingram, several offices received interior decorating improvements, the lobby gift shop was renovated with a new display window and a flower case of cut flowers and plants, photographs and prints were hung in patient rooms, new drapes and glare eliminating blinds were added in the lobby, admitting area and the solarium.

In addition, other active guild volunteers serve in the Showcase Gift Shop, the Guild's major source of revenues, serve on a variety of committees creating everything from toys for pediatric patienta to tray favors for all patients on holidays, and assist with meals and mail. Working with area local Ministerial Associations Volunteers visit every patient to see if they wish to speak with a clergymember.

Volunteers also serve as guides for people wishing to tour the hospital and not infrequently are found reading a story to children whose parent is being admitted or receiving treatment.

At the same time the Guild has maintained its efforts in health care education. In addition to its annual scholarship program, the Guild sponsors four childbirth classes a year for expectant parents. The salary for instructor R.N. Luanne Henry is underwritten by the Guild.

As the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild celebrates its 30th birthday this year, it is sending out the call for even more volunteers to join them at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Oddfellows boost lead

The Oddfellows continued to increase their lead in the annual Masons-Oddfellows cribbage tournament after 9½ tables in play Thursday night, Don Couse, tournament secretary, reports.

The Oddfellows, led by Ted Pennell, Sr., with 935 points, won by 16 points to increase their lead to 1,827 points. Ronald Geer had 950 for the Masons.

John LaRue, playing for the Oddfellows, had one point less than a perfect hand, or 28 points, Couse said.

Rayder wrestlers win first meet of season at Petoskey

The team will travel to Grayling Saturday to participate in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference meet.

Coach Bryan said of the tournament "We wrestled well today. The team wrestled competitively. Even when they lost by a pin the wrestlers went to the third period". He went on to say that Jeff Mervyn in the heavyweight bracket was undefeated and was the team's only medalist. Chad Thorp (98), Chris Roberts (105) and Bill Marquardt (198) were 2-1 for the tournament. "It was by far our best wrestling of the year" Bryan said in conclusion.

Cagers never threatened in rout of Boyne City

By ULF EVALDSSON

The Red Rayders kept their unbeaten record intact when they beat Boyne City 84-65 on their home floor, Friday.

Charlevoix, now 13-0 for the season, gave their opponents a tough game, leading 20-12, 41-33 and 62-49 at the quarters, before surging to win.

Brent Cole, John Pearl, Doug Sloan and Jody Putman started out by giving the Rayders a 14-2 lead, before Mike Gabos and Jeff Johnson snapped back to 14-8 in the middle of the quarter.

The Rayders' offense really shocked the visiting Boyne's defense, who later watched Cole and Sloan pour in two more buckets for the superior Rayders, bringing it to 18-8. With a 20-12 lead, going into the second quarter, Rayders missed a couple of baskets, which made it possible for Merle Carlson, Nick Redman, Johnson, and Gabos to comeback to 24-21 halfway into the second quarter.

Soon, Putman and Will Syvertsen turned up in Boyne's zone and brought it to 29-21, protecting the lead for the Rayders. Rayders kept on dominating the game, guarding their lead, while Boyne had problems keeping their zone free from the more technically adept Rayders.

The Ramblers snapped back to 35-29, but thanks to Syvertsen and Putman's two baskets, Rayders succeeded in remaining in the lead. Cole made it 41-31 before Gabos could bring it to 41-33, ending the first half.

Beginning the third quarter, Rayders really hit their stride, going from the 41-33 lead to a convincing 49-33 lead through six points by Cole and two baskets by Pearl. "The second half went really well for us," Rayders coach Dave Smith remarked, continuing: "We got better into the rhythm and, especially our defense worked better after halftime."

Ferguson brought it to 56-41, and later Carson helped the Ramblers to 58-47 through a free throw, but Boyne couldn't get out of their hole. Syvertsen extended Rayders' lead 60-47 followed by Ferguson's basket, before Johnson brought it to 62-49, going into the last quarter.

The Rayders maintained a 15 to 20 point lead through the final stanza, coasting to their thirteenth win in a row for the season. Halfway into the quarter, Putman made it 74-58, and at the end the teams took turns, scoring every second basket. Packy LaBlance brought it to 80-65 followed by Tim Plagge's two points, and Joe Hayes could settle the final score; 84-65, through another basket in the last remaining seconds. Rayders had 41 rebounds, Boyne grabbed 33. Despite their shorter team, the Ramblers impressed with some good rebounding.

Sharpshooter Brent Cole scored no less than 37 (!) points for the Rayders, Syvertsen had 10 together with Putman and Ferguson, Sloan had 6, Pearl 5 and Plagge, LaBlance and Hayes 2 each. Cole and Pearl had 8 rebounds, Putman 7 and Sloan 6. Best scorers for the Ramblers were Johnson, Gabos and Carson.

Junior Varsity wins 46-40

The Charlevoix Junior Varsity basketball team posted a 46-40 win Friday night over the visiting Boyne City Ramblers.

Jim Gibbs with 11 points and Quint Walker with 10 led the young Rayders to the six-point win. Trailing 10-6 at the first quarter, the Rayders outscored the visitors 15-8 in the second period to take a 21-18 halftime lead. As the second half got underway, the Rayders continued their attack, increasing the margin to 34-28 going into the final period.

Steve Stutzman and Steve Beebe shared scoring honors for Boyne City with 12 points each.

Charlevoix had 18 field goals to Boyne's 16 and hit on 10 of 14 from the floor while committing 16 fouls. The Ramblers scored eight of 15 free throws and has 13 personal fouls.

Frosh take 1st loss

The Charlevoix Rayder freshmen suffered their first loss of the season Thursday when they fell victim to Boyne City by a score of 55-50 after defeating Central Lake 54-32 earlier in the week.

Boyne City got off to a 12-8 first period lead and held on 27-24 at halftime before the young Rayders closed the gap and went ahead 37-36 going into the final period. The determined young Ramblers, however, outscored the visitors 19-13 to take the game.

Mark LaBlance had 17 points and Roger Smith 12 for the Rayders. Mark Deschryver came through with 26 to lead the Ramblers. He had connected on 14 of 16 from the line.

In the game with Central Lake, the Rayders led 20-4, 32-10, and 44-17 by quarters for the win.

Scott DeYoung had 15 and Smith 10 for Charlevoix. Kevin Disbrow had eight for Central Lake.

Little Traverse Theatre looking for directors

The Little Traverse Civic Theatre (LTCT) is looking for directors for its 1985-86 season and has issued an open invitation to area residents with experience in the theatre and an interest in directing to contact its board of directors.

LTCT is the resident theatre company of the McCune Art Center's Ross Stoakes Theatre in Petoskey.

"We draw solely on local talent to build sets, do the acting and provide music," said LTCT President Larry Willis, "But one of the more difficult aspects of community theatre is finding people, the right people, who can take a play or musical from script to performance. It's very difficult, but, as many can tell you, the rewards in terms of personal satisfaction are many."

Willis does not downplay the committment an LTCT director makes. He points to the successes of recent volunteers who, as LTCT directors, have devoted "two to three months of their lives eating, drinking and sleeping nothing, and I really mean nothing, but 'Oliver' or 'Dracula' or 'Streetcar Named Desire'."

Bev Holden, LTCT board member and director of the 1984 production of "Streetcar Named Desire", warns that directing involves as much hard work as glamor.

"You have to be very organized and be able to follow up on everything from seeing that props are obtained to making sure that that slight gesture by the walk-on in the third act is executed 'just so' ", said Mrs. Holden, "It's a challenge but you'd be amazed to know that some of the most successful directors are those who say 'I could never do that'."

The LTCT procedure for selecting plays starts with prospective directors approaching the board with ideas for productions they would like to do. The board then reviews the proposals and makes its selections for the upcoming season based on a number of criteria, including degree of difficulty.

"There are often logistical problems of physically staging a play or musical on our stage at Stoakes," said LTCT board member Eric Grandstaff, "But if we like the potential of a production, we are not averse to staging the production in a larger or smaller facility in the area. We prefer Stoakes because it is our home."

Once a slate of plays is selected by the board, each director is responsible for choosing a producer. Also assembled are the technical crews to handle lighting, sound, costuming, makeup and ticket chores.

Said veteran LTCT actor and technical crew member, "There's a whole lot you never see. A phenomenal amount of work goes in to the directing and producing of an LTCT production that the public never sees."

Those interested in directing plays for the LTCT 1985-86 season are asked to call Willis at 347-3399 or Grandstaff at 582-6155 or Bill Henne at 547-9587. Prospective directors will be asked to submit their plays to the LTCT board at its February and march meetings.

For Saints and Sinners

by Rev. Lowell Anderson
Assembly of God

The anniversary of the United States Supreme Court decision on abortion was last Tuesday (January 22) and the day was observed with varying degrees of interest both by those who consider themselves pro-choice and those who are pro-life. It is my purpose at this time not to address this crucial issue so much from a theological perspective as from an historical one.

Much of the smoke, and fire, that surrounds the abortion issue is generated by debate as to whether or not ones values can be imposed upon another. We are being told that politicians should not carry into office their personal values. We are told that our government has overstepped its domain when it takes the "right" to have an abortion from a woman.

What if Abe Lincoln had beeen pro-choice on the slavery issue? Can you imagine him standing on the battlefield at Gettysburg and saying "Fellow citizens of the United States, although I, and thousands of others, am opposed to slavery I don't think I have the right to impose my values on anyone else? I embrace a pro-choice position on slavery. Those among us who desire to own slaves should have the right to do so and those who do not should not have to do so."

If our country would have adopted a pro-choice position on slavery, blacks would still be in servitude in our great land; bought and sold on the auction block like animals. I am thankful to Almighty God that men of conviction lived, and died, for truth and righteousness throughout our history. This country is free from slavery because great politicians of the past "imposed" their values on others. Certainly the logic carries through to the pro-abortion and pro-pornography proponents of today! Because we have a "pro-choice" position in our nation today regarding abortion, one and one half million babies may be murdered this year. Is denying the right to life for these unborn humans any less sacred than denying the right to freedom to millions of black humans?

[illegible] chosen

Last year's per diems listed for county board members

by PEG OHLE

Salaries and per diem paid to the six members of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners in 1984 amounted to $36,747.50.

This figure includes compensation for attending regular and special meetings of the County Board, meetings of committees which operate as part of the County Board, and meetings of outside Boards, Commissions, and Committees to which County Commissioners were appointed because of their positions on the County Board.

Each commissioner received a base salary of $150 a month for attending two County Board meetings a month, one daytime and one evening, plus per diem for attending other meetings which were held either on a regular or as-needed schedule. Board of Commissioners per diem was paid at the rate of $60 for meetings lasting four hours or more including travel time, and $40 for meetings lasting less than four hours including travel time. Per diem for some Boards and Commissions was paid at a lower rate.

In addition to salaries and per diem, members of the Board of Commissioners were re-imbursed for travel costs for all meetings at the rate of 23 cents a mile. This reimbursement is not included in the above figure.

Broken down by County Board members, salaries and per diem were paid as follows: Oral Sutliff, Boyne City, $7,462.50; Lee Moerland, Charlevoix (Board Chairman), $7,275.00; Larry Matthew, Hayes, Bay, Evangeline, and Melrose Townships (Board Vice-Chairman), $6,572.50; Donald Smith, Western Eveline, Marion, Norwood, Peaine, St. James, and Charlevoix Townships, $5,705.00; Ralph Harmon, Boyne Valley, Chandler, Hudson, Wilson, and Eastern Eveline Townships, $5,152.50; and Thomas Breakey, City of East Jordan and South Arm Township, $4,580.00.

The fixed salaries and expenses of County Commissioners will be more next year by reason of County Commissioners receiving a salary increase to $165 a month and a milage allowance increase to 26 cents a mile.

While monies received by County Commissioners last year would have sufficed for total income a few years ago, they are now added to the farm, business, professional and retirement incomes of the various County Commissioners, for whom the County also provides generous health, dental, and retirement fringe benefits.

Lake Chx. plan group convenes for 1st meeting

by DAVE KNIGHT

Basic objectives, approaches, funding and structure were among topics discussed at the first meeting Wednesday, January 30, of the 15-member committee assigned by the Charlevoix County Planning Commission to develop a management plan for Lake Charlevoix.

The meeting was convened by temporary chairman Dr. John Hall, representative of the Lake Charelvoix Association, who outlined to the committee three areas he considered important to be addressed initially.

Hall said, first, that the technical data crucial to the planning process is currently not available. He suggested that the committee act soon to arrange for the neccesary study or studies to be conducted so that work can start this summer. Since some phases of the research into lake use can only be conducted in the summer months, a delay now, he said, would most likely mean that it would be another year and a half before results are available.

Leah Green, Hayes Township representative, questioned whether the assumption had been made that the data collection process should be "hired out."

"We need data that will stand up scientifically," said Hall who pointed out that without a professionally documented data base, whatever type of plan the committee attempts to get approved could be on a weak foundation.

Funding for the committee's task was also discussed. Hall cited the $25,000 cost of the harbor management plan developed by Harbor Springs and said that quotes ranging from $62,000 to $70,000 had already been received from some consulting firms expressing interest in assisting the committee.

County Planner Larry Sullivan said that the Planning Commission had already earmarked $12,500 for the lake planning process and that application has been made for matching funds through the Coastal Zone Managment program.

Jerry Puhl, a member of WATCH, Inc. (Water and Air Team Charlevoix) who is representing environmental interests on the committee, said that his organization stands ready to assist in a fund raising campaign that could potentially generate amounts up to six figures.

Sullivan told the committee that when its mission is clearly defined, the neccessary funding will be made available. Said Sullivan, "When we have a pretty firm grip on the work program, we'll go out and get the dollars."

Hall stressed, finally, the importance of "the basic education of all of us on the committee."

"We are like members of a jury," he said, "A lawyer must educate the jury in order for them to make a decision."

He referred to a list provided to the committee of several offices and agencies with interests in or juristiction over Lake Charlevoix saying that each of these entities should "tell us what they're doing."

Green emphasized that the education factor applied, not only to the committee, but also to the general public.

"We need to provide for simultaneous translation to the public," she said, "If this is not well perceived, we'll have trouble getting final acceptance."

Bus line quits Chx.; state cries foul

by DAVE KNIGHT

As of last Friday, Charlevoix lost its bus service - and only remaining means of inter-city public transportation other than taxis or the county's transit system buses.

But according to a Michigan Department of Transportation official, the pullout of the Shortway-North Star bus line from its Charlevoix route was improperly handled and possibly illegal.

Vice President Duane Geiger of the Shortway-North Star bus line, headquartered in Grand Rapids, confirmed last week that the Shortway route from Petoskey through Charlevoix to Traverse City was abandoned as of February 1. Local agent Peter Gaskin of Gaskin's Standard Station said he had been notified of the impending abandonment about two weeks before.

Geiger said the decision was based purely on economics.

"Our studies showed that we are just not getting enough ridership on that route," said Geiger. He said the abandonment was one of a series of cancellations involving unprofitable routes inherited by Shortway when it bought the North Star bus line last year.

He added that the company did not have any plans at this time to reinstate the Charlevoix service on a seasonal basis.

When informed by the Courier of Shortway-North Star's action, David Soucha, manager of Intercity Bus Programs for the Michigan Department of Transportation, expressed surprise and said that bus company's route abandonment had not been filed properly with his department.

Although the bus industry was deregulated two years ago, Soucha said that decisions to drop routes must first be registered with the Dept. of Transportation, public notice given 20 days in advance of the action and a chance given for public comment, either through a hearing or correspondence.

None of these steps, he said, had been taken by Shortway-Northstar.

Recourse available to his department, said Soucha, include revocation of the bus line's certificate to operate and daily fines until the route is reinstated.

Soucha said he would be contacting the bus company to investigate the situation. He also said that as far as he was aware, Charlevoix is presently being served by the Michigan Trailways bus company which he understood provided connections by van to continuing bus routes out of Petoskey.

A check by the Courier with the Michigan Trailways firm in Saginaw, however, revealed that it does not serve Charlevoix any longer, either.

Water plant jeopardized

by DAVE KNIGHT

"A number of circumstances are causing delays in addressing the groundwater contamination problem in Charlevoix and may jeopardize the construction of a lake water treatment facility as envisioned a year ago."

With that, T. Eftaxiadis of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources threw a wrench, of sorts, into plans to provide Charlevoix with a new source of water, free of trichloroethylene (TCE) contamination.

The above statement opened a four-page letter, dated January 23, to Charlevoix City Manager Michael Wiesner from Eftaxiadis, State Project Coordinator of the Remedial Action Section, DNR Groundwater Quality Division.

In the letter, Eftaxiadis said that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) had informed the DNR that "due to legal and programmatic constraints, the agency cannot construct a replacement facility providing capacity in excess of what is needed to meet present demand, regardless of cost sharing arrangements."

Last year, the EPA announced that its Superfund program would pay for 90 percent of an intake system and lake water treatment plant for Charlevoix capable of meeting the existing peak demand of two million gallons per day (MGD). At the same time, the DNR said that it would provide the other ten percent of the cost of what was then estimated as a $1,954,000 project.

Bids were let for construction of the intake system and design of the plant after the city opted to build a three MGD plant day to meet future demand. City voters approved a $500,000 bonding measure last summer to cover the added expense for the extra one MGD capacity.

In his letter, however, Eftaxiadis said that the EPA informed his department in late December, 1984, of a policy change that prevents the federal agency from funding a facility with a higher capacity than two MGD.

He also said that the cost of the new system "provided by the city for use in comparing the alternatives" was radically underestimated and that the current estimate of the entire project cost is $3,830,000, an amount approximately double the original projection.

"Such major cost escalation raises serious questions regarding the cost-effectiveness of a lake water intake project," wrote Eftaxiadis, "Even when one considers the lower operation and maintenance cost of this type of facility, as well as accepts justifications for some cost increases, this alternative is much more expensive than other alternatives as they were evaluated in the FFS (Focused Feasibility Study)."

The FFS conducted by the EPA last year analyzed such alternatives as carbon filtration, air stripping and treatment of the contamination source before recommending construction of the lake water plant.

Eftaxiadis went on to say that Superfund can neither participate in a non-cost-effective remedy for Charlevoix's contamination problem, nor help construct a facility for the city upgraded from present demand.

He said that the original cost estimates provided by the city for a lake water system were accepted at face value in the FFS because of the urgency at the time to address the problem.

Eftaxiadis offered the following options for consideration by the city:

-Re-evaluation of all the alternatives available to the city, those covered in the FFS and others, with new cost comparisons. Said Eftaxiadis, "Only the most cost-effective remedy would justify funding by EPA and DNH." The major disadvantage of this option, he said, would be the further delay in implementation.

-Determination by the city that a facility built to meet present demand - a two MGD plant - would be acceptable. In this case, according to Eftaxiadis, the city may still be responsible for providing the cost difference between the most cost-effective remedy as determined by EPA and the actual design and construction cost. There is a danger, he said, though, that the Michigan Department of Public Health (MDPH) may not issue a construction permit if it decides the facility does not meet its requirements. It was the MDPH that pressed for the three MGD plant to meet future demand.

Raffle to kick off fishing tourney

The first annual Charlevoix Trout Festival is fast becoming a reality.

Organizers Jim Withers and Dave Juilleret announced that the weekend of May 18-19 has been chosen as the inaugural edition of the new tourney and that a raffle is underway to raise funds for the event.

A Honda "Big Red" all terrain vehicle (ATV) has been donated by Galmore's dealership in East Jordan, said Withers, as the top prize in the raffle.

The 1985 model, which retails at about $2,000, was picked up last week. Chances in the raffle are available from local merchants displaying tournament posters at $1 a ticket and six for $5.

The drawing will be held May 19 during the fishing tournament which organizers are hoping will draw a large influx of sport fishermen to the Charlevoix area.

The event is being sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. The first official planning meeting for the tournament is to be held at 5 p.m. Tuesday, February 5 at the Charlevoix City Hall.

On hand will be the Chamber board of directors, city officials and organizers of the Alpena sport fishing tournament to share their experiences. Any local residents interested in the tourney are invited to attend.

Charlevoix's "high-tech" lighthouse is now virtually keeper-free

by DAVE KNIGHT

As of this year, there has been a beacon at the mouth of the Pine River at Charlevoix for 125 years. A light on the pier in one form or another has not only helped guide countless navigators to safe haven over all those years, but has also become somewhat of a traditional symbol of Charlevoix.

Lighthouse technology has obviously come a long way in a century and a quarter. The first light, according to the Bob Miles' Charlevoix pictorial history, was little more than a lantern hung by fishermen inside a small stepladder on the south pier.

In 1885, the first government lighthouse was built on the north pier. A red, square, open frame tower, it was enclosed at the top and most likely fueled by kerosene. Thus it was completely dependent on a dutiful attendant to light the light and keep it shining. As such, it was linked to the shoreline by trestlework and a boardwalk so that the keeper of the light could reach it in high seas.

One hundred years later, Charlevoix's lighthouse is now on the south pier, having been moved there in 1911. And, as of just a few months ago, the facility is now virtually keeper-free.

While the light itself has been automatically activated by an electronic photo cell for some time, up until fairly recently, personnel from the Coast Guard rescue station in Charlevoix were responsible for manually turning on the fog horn at times of poor visibility.

Now the horn's activation has gone high tech, too, making the lighthouse operation virtually keeper-free for the first time.

The Coast Guard's Aids to Navigation Team (ANT) stationed in St. Ignace installed a "videograph" fog detector in the Charlevoix lighthouse about three months ago. The device senses when visibility diminishes to less than one mile and activates the fog horn.

Modern Coast Guard fog horns, all-electronic now instead of the air horns used for many decades, are categorized by the distance they are built to be heard over. According to Chief Patrick Henry, commanding officer of the 16-person St. Ignace ANT team, horns range from "one-mile horns" - such as Charlevoix's - to "three-mile horns", which are more likely to be found on ocean coastlines.

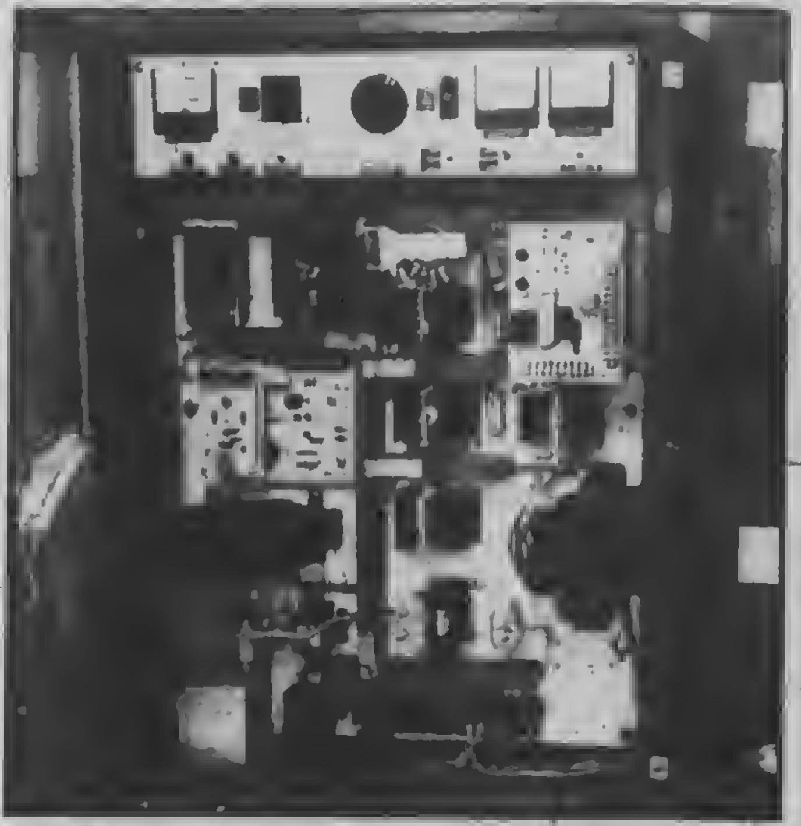
The light mechanism in Charlevoix's lighthouse is an equally interesting study in low-maintenance automation:

It consists of four 250-watt lamps arranged in a pinwheel configuration. Only one burns at a time but when a sensing device determines that the bulb in use has burned out, it activates a changing sequence in which the a new bulb is rotated into place and lit.

Although the light is designed to operate with no maintenance for up to 400 days, the St. Ignace ANT team normally checks up on it and the fog horn mechanism whenever they are traveling through the area. The team is responsible for tending to navigational aids from Thunder Bay on Lake Huron to Detour in the St. Mary's passage to Naubinway on the Upper Peninsula's Lake Michigan coast to North Manitou Island southwest of Charlevoix.

Though the recent addition of an electronic fog detector to activate the horn might seem like the ultimate in technological advances for lighthouses, there is still more to come.

Chief Henry said that the Charlevoix lighthouse is scheduled to soon be also equipped with an automatic direction finder (ADF) radio beacon. This sophisticated navigational device will emit a special radio frequency which, when picked up by ships' direction finders built to receive it, will provide an even more acurrate guidance system for Lake Michigan mariners.



Think your stereo system is powerful? This is the electronic muscle behind the lighthouse fog horn.

The one-mile range fog horn is this unassuming device situated outside the lamp housing of the lighthouse.

Coast Guard technician Leedy inspects the lighthouse lamp; the actual size of which is distorted by the lens.

Chx. Township water storage system on-line

The following was submitted by Timothy J. Roache, P.E., of Gosling Czubak Associates, the Traverse City engineering firm contracted by Charlevoix Township to design the township's new water storage tank.

Charlevoix Township has placed its new 100,000 gallon ground storage tank in service.

This marks the conclusion of water supply improvements for the portion of Charlevoix Township lying north of the city. The $250,000 project included the tank, a new well, booster pumps and an improved control system.

The completion of this project solves a persistent water quality problem. It also insures that the township will have a safe an adequate water supply into the next century.

In late 1978 or early 1979, township Supervisor Oscar Stroud noted that the wells were producing highly turbid water. The turbidity was caused by silt and limestone particles from the township wells that are set in a limestone formation.

Sediment from the turbid water eventually filled the lower one-third of the township's 5,000-gallon hydropneumatic tank. Furthermore, the appearance of the water was objectionable to water customers.

Investigation determined that the lower portion of the bore holes for both wells had collapsed. Attempts to restore the wells by gravel packing were unsuccessful and the water remained turbid.

A new 20-inch well was drilled. This well was test-pumped and developed for a period of 90 days until the water was free from sediment. Pump testing by the township and their engineer, Gosling Czubak Associates of Traverse City, discovered that clear water would be produced if the wells were pumped at a rate less than 75 to 100 gallons per minute (gpm). Cycling a pump at a higher pumping rate would "shock" the limestone foundation and produce turbid water.

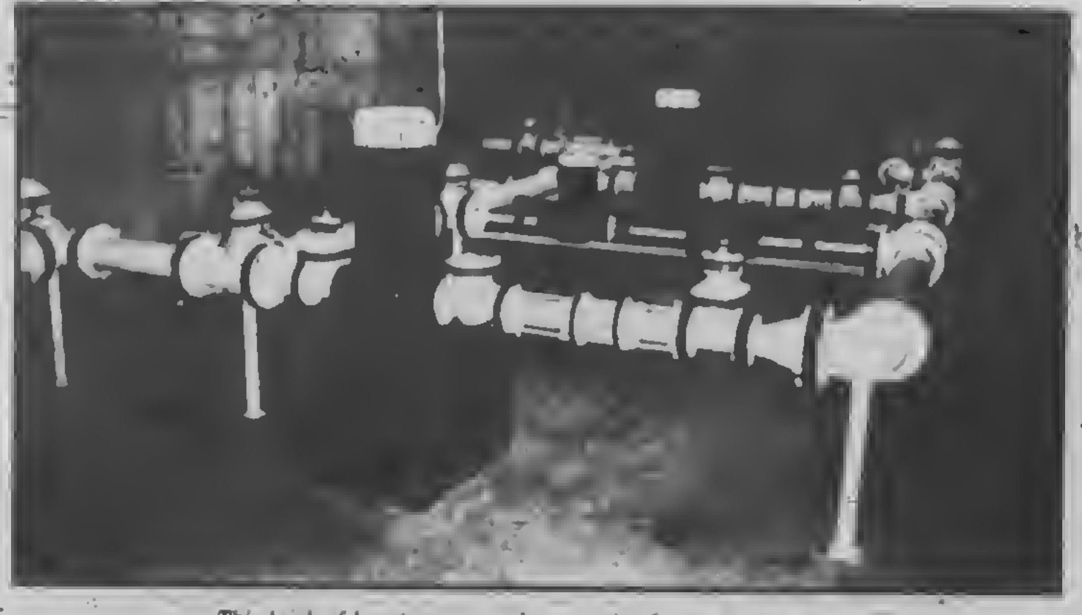
Because wells producing only 100 gpm would not meet fire demand, construction of a storage tank was neccessary. Ground storage was selected instead of elevated storage because cleaning of sediment from the tank, if it became neccesary, would be easier.

The tank was designed with two separate compartments. This will allow servicing of one part of the tank while the other part remains in service. Two feet of dead storage was also provided to allow for sediment as an extra precaution.

Water from the wells is pumped to the ground storage tank. Three booster pumps draw water from the storage tank and pump to the distribution system and existing hydropneumatic tank. Power for the well pumps, booster pumps and controls is provided by a generator in emergencies.

As an additional safeguard, the township has reactivated one of the old wells and equipped it with a small pump that bypasses the ground storage tank and pumps directly into the hydropneumatic tank. Control systems for this well and the other wells are independent.

The project took approximately nine months to construct and was locally financed.



This bank of booster pumps draws water from the storage tank and pumps it into Charlevoix Township's distribution system.

Sanitary Code ready for Board action

by PEG OHLE

The long-awaited revised Sanitary Code for Charlevoix County will be submitted to the County Board of Commissioners on Wednesday, February 13.

The revised Code, written by an Ad Hoc committee appointed by the County Board, has been "in the works" since July of 1983. One version was submitted to the County Board in January of 1984, but no action was taken by the County Board at that time.

Public hearings on the revised Code were held in March and all comments duly transcribed. There was a hiatus from March until August of 1984, when the Ad Hoc committee was asked to reconvene and add suggestions from the public hearing to the revised Code. That was done, and now the document is once again ready for public inspection.

Irvin Sturm, who served as chairman of the Ad Hoc committee, says that, in submitting the revised Code to the Board of Commissioners, the committee will explain the changes they made in the Code and why they made them. One change will be provisions for elevated aborption fields (mounds), which are not covered in the present Code although they have been permitted in cerain cases, especially in replacement sanitary systems.

Besides Sturm, who is an engineer with the Northwest Design Group in Charlevoix, members of the Ad Hoc committee were Larry Levengood, sanitarian with District No. 3 Health Department and member of the County Planning Commission; Ralph Harmon, farmer and member of the County Board; Oral Sutliff, businessman and member of the County Board of Commissioners; Dorothy Custer, member of the County Planning Commission; and Scott Beatty, Charlevoix lawyer and former County Prosecutor.

Owners of marketable timber stands being contacted by Extension

by PEG OHLE

The "Timber Stand Inventory" completed by the Charlevoix County Planning Department last year is now being used by the County Cooperative Extension Service to determine the owners of timber stands that are suitable for management and marketing.

According to Extension Director Rod Cortright, his Department is identifying the owners of timber stands of 40 acres or more, whose names will be compiled into a mailing list to advise them of educational programs for their benefit.

Proper management of timber stands increase timber yields and cover for habitat. Management could be simply thinning, with the thinning being used for firewood, which is the second largest timber industry in the State.

Cortright explained at the outset of his timber stand study that there is enough good northern hardwood in the County to interest a furniture manufacturer, but mostly local lumber production would be used for log homes, pallets, and perhaps aspen for chip boards.

In the past, owners of timber stands have not paid much attedntion to managbement, and even less to marketing of their "crop". According to Cortright, only about a quarter of the timber that is grown is being used and much of it is not even managed.

Study of a new timbering industry in Charlevoix County began with a study of soils completed in 1981. This study showed that 72.7 percent of the land area in the County is prime forestland (capable of prducing over a cord of wood per acre per year). While some of this land area is being used for lumbering, much of it is in agricultural use. Also, many areas capable of supporting timber stands of regional importance (capable of producing less than half a cord of wood per acre per year) are either being farmed, are abandoned farmland, or have been improperly managed or grazed.

As soon as the County Planning Department received this report, it undertook a "Land Use Inventory", showing the kinds of cover on lands other than residential, commercial, or industrial, which indicated what lands would be best to retain for forest development and what woodlots should be harvested.

By color infra red transparencies of aerial photos, field checking, and verifying locally, the Planning Department (assisted by Cooperative Extension) studied what was growing on the various parcels of land, whether they were wetlands, forest, agricultural, or pasture, rocky, clay, sandy, etc.

The result was the "Timber Stand Inventory", which is the basis of Cooperative Extension's ownership study.

There has been a renewed interest in timber as a "crop" in northern Michigan, with State officials, including Senator Mitch Irwin, promoting timber-growing as one way to improve the area's economy.

If, indeed, lumbering does return to northern Michigan, it will be a reincarnation of the industry that flourished here for 40 years before and after the turn of the century.

Opinion

Knight on the Town

by Gretchen Knight, with a little help

Hey, whatever happened to creative play?

Ladies and gentlemen, the Editor's Daughter feels compelled to take crayon in hand once more to document the foibles and oddities of the adult world.

You parents may not realize it but sometimes you do things that are just plain hard to figure. Even for a three-year-old.

Take my Dad.

Please.

No, seriously, he has always envisioned himself as the Parent of the Eighties; one of the survivors of the rebellious Sixties who would see to it that the next generation was not stifled into frustration and anger with its elders.

Dad says he believes in letting me discover things on my own, create things.

Other little girls get dollies and tea sets for their birthdays. Dad gave me Lincoln Logs.

I'm not complaining about that, mind you. I mean, there's only so far you can go with the "dolly and tea set" scenario. Lincoln Logs, on the other hand, can be put to an wide variety of good uses from drumming on oatmeal boxes to throwing at the cat.

Dad says you can build little houses with them, too, but that doesn't really sound so exciting to me.

The point is, if Dad is so eager for me to be creative, why was he so upset with me the other day?

I would think he'd be proud that I figured out how to climb up onto the kitchen counter all by myself while Mommy was cleaning upstairs, carefully take down the flour and sugar containers, mix just the right amount of each with a little water and massage the mixture into the dog's nice furry winter coat.

I mean, this was creative! I didn't even get the idea from Mr. Rogers.

And the dog loved every minute of it. She enjoyed it so much, she rolled around on the living room rug and came back for more. I had to mix a new batch.

Maybe it was the way Mommy called up Dad at work that turned him off to the project. Her voice sounded kind of funny. When he asked why she wanted him to come home early, she said something like, "I don't want to go into it right now. I'll tell you later."

For some reason, Mommy didn't think the dog needed flour, sugar and water mixed on her back. Well, geez, excuuuuse me. Does everything need a reason?

I was so ticked off when she ignored me and started shampooing the rug that I decided to do what any red-blooded American female would do. Go upstairs, put some nice make-up on and try to feel good about myself.

Mommy didn't have much rouge left but I made do. And can you believe it? She didn't like that idea either! She almost called Dad again.

All in all, I thought I had a pretty creative day. It was the kind of day you'd think my liberated Dad would be proud of.

But, no.

When he got home, he took one look at the hardened shell on the dog's back - which I think could be very useful, indeed - and started lecturing about how I shouldn't do such "naughty" stuff.

Naughty?

What about creative?

Guess I'll go play with my dolly.

Lake Charlevoix Planning Committee

The issue of acceptance was discussed briefly with Puhl questioning whether the ultimate goal will be to incorporate the lake management plan into township and city zoning ordinances. Hall said, "Some might think so," and added that it will be important for committee members to act as "ambassadors" to their constituencies when the time comes for approval of the plan.

In discussing the format of future meetings, the committee tentatively agreed to initiate a twice-monthly meeting schedule. Although the next meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, February 14 at the County Building annex, it was suggested that meetings eventually rotate to different days of the week and to various locations around the county.

On the subject of permanent officers, Larry Levengood, representative of the Planning Commission, said the commission felt the lake planning advisory committee should hold "a couple of meetings" before electing officers.

Clockwise

Capricious February

by Bob Clock

Ah, February!

Month of clear, cold, windless nights with skies sequined with flecks of diamonds.

Month of bright, dazzling days as the sun attacks January's snowbanks.

The shortest month has a number of pleasant characteristics, not the least of which is that it is a short month and brings us that much closer to the thawing winds of March.

IN CASE YOU haven't looked at a calendar lately, Ash Wednesday comes fairly early this year, Feb. 20. Easter falls April 7, one of the earliest dates in recent years. Last year Ash Wednesday was March 7 and Easter was April 22.

Of course, the church holidays jump all over the spring calendar, since they are based on the phases of the moon. Easter is the first Sunday after the first full moon after the vernal equinox. During the balance of the century, the earliest Easter will be celebrated is March 26 in 1989. The latest will be April 23 in the year 2000.

WHY IS IT that — if the power is going to go out — it does so on the coldest day of the year?

And chances are that day will be Feb. 2, Groundhog's Day.

Remember the Groundhog's Day outage in 1975? That was the morning that 30-below temperatures pulled guy wires on a Petoskey utility pole so taut that the pole snapped, incapacitating a very critical transformer and terminating power for both Petoskey and Charlevoix.

As I recall, some sort of automatic equipment was supposed to have switched Charlevoix to an auxiliary power supply from the south in such an eventuality, but the switch had frozen. Both communities were plunged into total darkness on the coldest night of the winter.

Power was restored to Charlevoix about daybreak, but poor Petoskey suffered — and I mean suffered — until noon. Water pipes froze and burst all over town.

That one cold snap probably gave more impetus to wood stove sales in Northern Michigan than anything that happened before or since.

When the power failed last Saturday on the North Side for extended periods of time, folks with stoves managed to limp along in reasonable comfort.

The stoveless either visited friends or went shopping in the valley or on the South Side, providing they could get their cars started.

It was that kind of a day.

Letters from readers:

Responds to letter

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to Bruce and Charlotte Sanderson's letter, titled "Explaining The WLPF". In the Sunday edition of the Detroit News, dated Jan. 2, 1983 there was an article written by Christopher Willcox, titled "The Nuclear Freeze and Anti-US Bile".

Quoting Mr. Willcox "It really doesn't matter whether some of the key groups backing the freeze are Soviet fronts. For the record they aren't. What matters is what they stand for is a foreign policy that is basically congruent with the Kremlin's. The vast number of people who signed the freeze petitions and voted for them are not aware of this, of course. The major media have shown little interest in examining the positions of the leading 'peace' outfits, and the leaders of the freeze have attempted to separate the motherhood issue of the freeze itself from the radicalism of the constitoent groups that provide shock troops for the freeze campaign. Some of my callers have asked for examples. Heres one from the Journal of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, a key backer of the freeze: '(US Society) is an oligarchy composed of a very few wealthy people who have been able to spread considerable well being among their supporters, agents, willing serfs, and the general poublic by plundering the ignorant and weak here and in other parts of the world.'

I have looked for a critique of Soviet society in the literature of the 'peace' community. It isn't there." End of Mr. Willcox quote.

It is one thing to want peace and freedom, if it can be honorably achieved, but its just plain treasonous to side with the purveyors of murder and terorism who are preventing peace from being on the earth. I am speaking of the Soviet Union.

I would like to ask the Sandersons and other members or supporters of the WLPF if they subscribe to the above article that appeared in the WLPF Journal?

Robert L. Olson

Has a point

To the Editor:

John Sharrow has a good point in asking for comments on the Mayor's idea of providing a sounding board at the council level for people with concerns.

A recent article in the St. Petersburg Times, Florida said that after paying a consulting firm $50,000, one of their recommendations was and I quote "The City Council should have a one-member staff of its own to gather information independently of the City Manager."

I feel the Mayor is sincere in his desire to serve the voters who put him in office and would try to address their problems.

We need people on the Council who are willing to represent the voters and not just bend to other pressures.

Water plant

If the city decides it needs the three MGD plant, it could enter into a contract with the DNR to help design and build the facility. In this case, the DNR would then work out a "cooperative agreement" with the EPA for funding but the city would still pay the difference between the most cost-effective alternative as determined by EPA and the actual design and construction costs. While this option offers various cost-saving measures such as use of city personnel and state expertise, there would probably be a two to three month delay in developing the cooperative agreement between EPA and DNR, warned Eftaxiadis.

Should the city not want to pay the addtional costs for a replacement system, it might want to attempt to recover the cost from the party responsible for the contamination. Results of the EPA's investigation on the TCE source are scheduled to be announced at a February 13 hearing at City Hall.

The city may request that the Superfund resources be directed to clean up the source of contamination in the acquifer instead of building a new lake water treatment system and let the city worry about providing adequate supplies on its own.

At Monday night's City Council meeting, City Manager Michael Wiesner said that he had talked with EPA officials as recently as last Friday and that they said they are not going to reopen a study of alernatives for Charlevoix's water system.

Larry Levengood, sanitarian for the District No. 3 Health Department, said that his communication with EPA indicated that they are still wanting to build the treatment plant and that he was not aware of any new regulations bearing on the project as cited by Efatxiadis.

Levengood suggested that the city contact the Chicago law firm it dealt with on the matter last year to consult with the EPA regional office.

News from the Mesquite in the Caribbean

The following was recently received from the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite which left its home port of Charlevoix in November for winter duty in Grenada.

When the MESQUITE cast her lines from City Dock on Nov. 26, everyone knew that the Valleyfield Bridge on the St. Lawrence Seaway was broken. What we didn't know was how we were going to compete with some 150 other ships and the looming ice of winter for passage through the seaway. What to do when you're underway with no place to go? The MESQUITE's strategy throughout the bridge repair process was to get as close as possible to the bridge and be ready to sail through at the first opportunity.

After brief stops in Port Huron and Detroit on Nov. 27, we proceeded to the Welland Canal, which separates Lake Erie and Lake Ontario. We were lowered through eight locks for a total of 325 feet and the multitude of pictures taken by the crew will be evidence of how fascinating the procedure is.

Toronto, Canada was our first port of call, with our arrival on the evening of Nov. 28. The MESQUITE tied-up at the "Harbourfront Pier", the newly renovated center of the city's waterfront, and we were joined by the MARIPOSA, on her way back to Detroit. Toronto's reputation as a city of beauty and excitement was confirmed by all reports from the crew. Among the highlights was the CN Tower, which boasts the world's highest revolving restaurant at 1,137 feet.

On Sunday morning, Dec. 2, it was underway for Oswego, New York. Monday morning, we moored alongside the Port Authority pier next to Coast Guard Station Oswego and regular inport workdays commenced. Pounding winds and bitter cold demanded real stamina from those who ventured into town and even then, there weren't too many places to retreat from the weather. By the time we departed the morning of Dec. 5, we had lost our yeoman to the elements — he broke his ankle slipping on the ice and had to be hospitalized.

Although repair dates for the Valleyfield Bridge continued to be delayed, the MESQUITE'S priority clearance to be the second vessel through made it necessary for us to sail as far up the Seaway as possible and remain in a standby mode. A severe snowstorm on the morning of Dec. 5 called our "precision navigation team" to the bridge, as we inched our way along the river.

On Dec. 6, we were directed to moor alongside the tie-up wall beyond the Snell Lock, approximately 40 miles away from the bridge and wait. Evening movies and a "morale night" of pizza cooked by the chef helped pass the time, but the suspense was hard to stifle. Finally, the "go ahead" was radioed and we steamed under the Valleyfield in the early morning hours of Dec. 9, passing the homebound MOBILE BAY on our way.

With pilots aboard to navigate through the seaway, excellent progress was made. In order to make up some lost time, our port call in Halifax, Nova Scotia was cancelled and the next refueling stop became Mulgrave, Nova Scotia, located in the Straits of Caonso. Liberty was granted after we pulled in the evening of Dec. 12, but with a population of 1,099, there wasn't much around to give the crew a sample of life in Nova Scotia.

As we allpped out of the Straits of Canso the morning of Dec. 13, we could only cross our fingers that the North Atlantic would spare us from the pounding of her notorious winter storms. Luck was more than with us, as classic fair winds and following seas carried the MESQUITE southward at a steady clip. Granted, eating and sleeping adjustments had to be made for the choppy seas and steady swells, and there were more than a few blood-shot eyes and green-tinted faces haunting the decks.

There was no doubt when we had reached the Gulf Stream, as arms and faces gradually emerged from the layers of foul weather gear we had been buried beneath. After 3 days of pitching and rolling, the islands of Bermuda were a welcomed sight. The temperature never climbed out of the 80's, so swim calls were out. But that left plenty of

Hospital holds CPR class

CPR, cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, the techniques of using mouth to mouth resuscitation and closed chest heart massage to save victims of drowning, heart attacks, shock and similar incidents, will be taught at Charlevoix Area Hospital in a two-class session Monday, February 11 and Thursday, February 14. Both sessions will run from 6:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Open to any individual, these classes will be intensive with hands-on experience using the life-like manikens, Resusci Anni and Resusci Baby. People who complete the two classes, for a total of 8 hours of training, and pass an examination will receive certification in Basic Cardiac Life Support, BCLS, through the American Heart Association.

Everyone receiving Certification will receive an American Heart BCLS card good for one year. Annual recertification is necessary to maintain current status in BCLS.

Charlevoix Area Hospital is also sponsoring an one-evening recertification class on Monday February 18, for individuals who have been certified in the past. This class will also run from 6:00 to 10:00 p.m.

All these classes will be taught by trained instructors: Lou Ann Griffin, RN; Grover Everts; Jean Seymour, LPN; and Sue Dixon, RN. These instructors will work closely with each student, ensuring that each thoroughly understands the techniques and is completely prepared to meet the requirements for certification.

The classes on Monday the 11th and Thursday the 14th are limited to 16 students. Each student will be asked to purchase a student manual for $2.00 prior to the class and pay a $5 registration fee for the American Heart Association. There will be no charge for the recertification class on Monday February 18th, but those registering for the recertification class must have been previously BCLS certified.

To rgister for either the two-session certification classes or the one-session recertification classes, call Charlevoix Area Hospital, 547-4024, by Friday February 8.

Fewer people depended on Social Services in 1984 than in 1983

by PEG OHLE

Things seem to be looking up for a lot of people.

Fewer received services from the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services during fiscal year 1984 than in 1983.

Figures furnished by the Department show that 3,796 Aid to Dependent Children payments were made in 1984, compared with 4,203 in 1983, for a monthly average of 316, down from 350 the previous year.

Sixteen hundred and 95 General Assistance payments were made in 1984, compared with 1,904 in 1983, for a monthly average of 141, down from 147 the previous year.

Thirty-four hundred and 90 Non-Public Assistance payments (including food stamps) were made in 1984, compared with 4,014 in 1983, for a monthly average of 291 last year, down from 335 the previous year.

Medicaid payments were made on the basis of 6,479 in 1984 and 6,515 the previous year, for a monthly average of 540 in 1984 and 543 in 1983.

However, the number of cases in the Protective Services Division was up this year. The Division received 163 referrals in 1984, for an increase of 40 over the previous year. Referrals for abuse, neglect, and abuse and neglect in 1984 numbered 82 compared with 72 substantiated cases in 1983. Eighty-eight reported cases were unsustantiated in 1984 and 38 were unsubstantiated in 1983.

The caseload was also up in the Division handling State and Court wards. One hundred and 48 children were under the Department of Social Services jurisdiction for care and supervision, compared with 127 cases in 1983. These numbers have increased steadily since 1980.

Applications now being taken for outdoor recreational grants through state funding program

by PEG OHLE

Whenever a local unit of government decides it wants to acquire a park, swimming beach, ball field, or any other type of outdoor recreational facility, it is likely to apply for a grant to help pay for the facility.

The grant application would be sent to the Land and Water Conservation Fund (L&WCF) Program, a Federal grant program set up to provide Federal funds for acquisition and development of facilities for public outdoor recreation, but not including operation and maintenance activities.

Since March 1 is the deadline for acceptance of pre-applications for L&WCF funds, those interested in recreation programs in the area might use the following additional information:

The L&WCF fund is administered jointly by the National Park Service, U.S. Department of the Interior, and the Michigan Department of Natural Reources (DNR). The DNR's administrative responsibilities include maintaining a Statewide Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan which must support all State and local projects; evaluating applications for funding under the program; administering the program and reimbursing local units for eligible program costs; and making periodic program compliance inspections.

All political subdivisions of the State are eligible to participate in the L&WCF program, including school districts which can prove they are the primse provider of recereation in their area.

L&WCF funds can be used to acquire land for public outdoor recreation, including additions to existing parks, forest lands, or wildlife areas.

An adequate, up-to-date recreation plan is a prerequisite for project eligibility.

Additional information may be obtained by writing or calling the Michigan Departmant of Natural Resources, Recreation Services Division, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, Michigan, 48909, phone (517) 373-1660.

Local contact is Michael B. Davis, Director of Charlevoix County Youth Activities Program, phone 547-4471.

Township and city clerks invited to zoning workshop

Most township and city clerks and zoning board officals need some help in understanding zoning rules and regulations, so the County Planning Department will soon hold a seminar for them.

Tentatively scheduled for February 26, the seminar will cover procedural aspects of zoning, including issuance of permits, variations, rezoning, changes in zoning ordinances, public notices, Farmlands and Open Space Act, and many other subjects regularly facing local officials.

Notices of the seminar will be sent to those involved with zoning problems at the local level, and further information may be obtained by calling the County Planning Department at 547-4292.

Northmen can't slow Rayder juggernaut

By ULF EVALDSSON

Hosted by Petoskey Friday, the Red Rayders posted their 14th win in a row for the season beating the Northmen 68-47. They led 11-8, 26-20 and 46-37 at the quarters.

Petoskey put up a good fight in the first half, but their effectiveness diminished after halftime allowing the Rayders to take advantage and coast to the victory.

"It was still relatively close through the two first quarters, but the Rayders seemed to break through our defense, and there wasn't anything we could do about their tough offense," Northmen's coach Paul Van Wagoner said after the struggle.

By scoring the first basket in the game, Dan Proctor gave Petoskey the lead, but this was the only time the Northmen would find themselves in the lead. Brent Cole helped Charlevoix to a 6-2 lead together with Will Syversten and Sean Ferguson. Jim Hayes scored another two baskets for the Northmen, knotting the score 6-6, before Cole showed up again and made it 11-6, providing the Rayders with five points.

The opening of the game was rather tense, and both teams seemed to take it very carefully, afraid of making any crucial mistakes in the beginning.

After the Rayders' 11-8 lead in the first stanza, Doug Sloan started out the following quarter by extending the lead together with John Pearl's lay-up, and when Cole scored again, halfway into the quarter, Petoskey's squad, eager for revenge from the last meeting of the teams when Rayders pulled out an easy 52-40 win, found themselves in a 17-10 deficit.

Steve Mann and Proctor helped out the situation for the Northmen a little bit by bringing it to 17-13, and when Jim Schwartzfisher poured in a basket with three more minutes to go in the first half, suddenly, Petoskey had snapped back to 18-17.

Again, like we have seen in Charlevoix's previous games, the stubborn Rayders refused to give away the lead. Pearl and sharpshooter Cole tipped in two more baskets bringing it to 22-17, and even if Hayes and Mann added one field goal each for the Northmen in the end of the half, Sloan helped Rayders to a 26-20 lead at halftime.

This far, Petoskey still had some kind of contact with the undefeated Rayders, but going into the second half, Rayders put harder pressure on the helpless Northman's defense, and at the same time, Charlevoix improved their own defense, making it more difficult for Petoskey's offense to break through.

Also, grabbing most of the rebounds, Rayders started to dominate the scoring more than before. Cole brought it to 30-24, followed by Sloan's layup, before Hayes could snap back to make it 32-26. Sloan, Pearl and Cole helped Rayders to reach a safe 38-28 lead, and by now the Northmen began to lose their foothold.

Proctor and Daryl Bur made it 40-32, but the Northmen didn't manage to get any closer to the lead. Cole turned up again and showed what a valuable player he is for the Rayders, bringing it to 46-34. Beginning the final quarter, Sloan and Cole made it 50-37, and even if Bur eased the pain for Petoskey a little bit through a basket, Sloan poured in three field goals in a row along with Cole's basket, and in a couple of minutes, Rayders had gone from 48-37 to a convincing 58-39 lead.

Hayes made it 62-43, and with three more minutes to play, coach for the Rayders, Dave Smith emptied his bench, putting in his whole second string.

Packy LaBlance poured in a basket, and Tim Salmonson made sure to end up in the score book when be grabbed a rebound and tipped in another basket, bringing it to 66-45. LaBlance scored a free throw, and the final score was settled when Scott Rosevear brought it to 68-47, which meant that the Rayders had posted their 14th victory in a row for this season.

"I'm really pleased with our second half, when everything seemed to work very well; our defense did a great job and our ahots became more accurate," a satisfied coach Smith said after the game. "Sloan and Cole, who together scored no less than 51 points for us, came out very well in the second half, which meant a great deal," he continued.

Cole paced the scoring for the Rayders with 29 points, Sloan had 22, Pearl six, LaBlance four, Ferguson, Putman and Salmonson two each and Syvertsen one. Altogether Charlevoix grabbed 35 rebounds and Petoskey had 26. Pearl had 11 rebounds, Syvertsen six, Sloan and Putman five each and Cole three. Cole had seven assists and Putman had six. Scorers for the Northmen were Hayes and Bur with ten each, Proctor nine, Mann eight, Rosevear four, Schwartzfisher three, Steve Ross two and Doug Piper one.

Doug Sloan bumps Northman Steve Ross out of the way en route to the basket.

Frosh beat Chiefs, bow to Petoskey

The Charlevoix Rayder freshman basketball team posted a win over Cheboygan by a 45-38 score and a loss to Petoskey by a 68-43 margin in action last week.

In the game with Cheboygan, the young Rayders did not put the game on ice until the final period when they outscored the young Chiefs 16-10 for the win. Until then they had played to a 10-10 first period tie and led by only one point at halftime, 21-20 and at the three-quarter mark 29-28. Roger Smith with 18 points and Scott DeYoung with 17 paced the game for the Rayders. Dan Jewell had 10 points for Cheboygan.

On the game with Petoskey, the young Northmen jumped to a 17-8 first period lead, increased it to 28-18 at halftime and doubled it to 57-32 at the three-quarter mark before winning by a 25 point margin. DeYoung had 16 points for Charlevoix. Nick Hoffman had 16, Ted Festerling 14 and Jeff Linklater 12 for Petoskey.

Charlevoix will be at Gaylord on Thursday.

Kelly is lone medalist

The Charlevoix Rayder matmen returned from the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference tournament at Grayling Saturday with one medal winner among its eight entries Coach Greg Bryan reports.

He is Dan Kelly (155) who defeated Franz of Petoskey by an 11-4 decision. Kelly drew a first round bye, lost to Pulfrey of the Soo by a pin and won over McNamara of Grayling by a pin to go against Franz.

Chad Thorp (98), a freshman, won over Hubbard of the Soo in a pin in 5:56, lost to Ketchman of Petoskey by a pin in the second period, and defeated Kemple of Rogers City by a pin in the second period before losing s squeaker to Lehman of Gaylord by an 8-7 decision. He had been ahead with 15 seconds to go before losing because of lack of experience Bryan said.

Winning one match and then losing two were Kevin Pearsall (145) and heavyweight Jeff Mervyn. Chris Roberts (105), Derek Dutcher (167) who wrestled well and Bill Marquardt (190) each lost two bouts and as a result were eliminated.

Bryan said the tournament was the best he had seen since coaching the Rayders. There were many close matches. "My boys, with a year's experience behind them, are already looking forward to next year" Bryan said of the tournament and the season.

The Rayders were able to fill only eight of 13 weight classes because of illness Bryan said.

Volleyball team splits

The Charlevoix volleyball team split last week, winning over Central Lake 3-2 and losing to Kalkaska 2-1.

Charlevoix will host Grayling Wednesday, participate in the Elk Rapids Invitational Saturday and travel to Central Lake Monday.

In the meet with Central Lake, Charlevoix won three of five games by scores of 5-15, 15-7, 6-15, 15-7, 15-5. Meg Fowler was the top setter and server and Lara Stargardt the spiker.

In the JV games, Central lake won 15-12, 15-10. Trina Wiser was the top setter.

Playing at Kalkaska on Wednesday, the host team won 15-6, 8-15, 15-12. Angie McClanaghan was the top server, Fowler the setter and Fowler and Amy Antaya the spikers.

Kalkaska also won the JV match 15-4, 15-2 and the freshman match 15-13, 16-14, 15-13.

Clothing Company, CCSB are Ind. BB winners

In the only games played in the Charlevoix Independent Basketball League last week, the Clothing Company defeated Ferguson Surveying-Holm Auto 72-38 and County State Bank won over Wojan Aluminum 74-58.

In their game, The Clothing Company was in control all the way as they led 24-11, 43-26 and 49-35 by quarters. Woody Pearson led the scoring for the Clothing Company with 24 points followed by Dave Cole with 13 and Tom Morrison with 12. Mike Crain had 25 points and Larry Brock 12 for Ferguson-Holm.

Four players hit in double figures as County State Bank won handily over Wojan Aluminum after leading 21-8, 42-34 and 62-44 at the intermissions. Rayder JV's beat Petoskey soundly

The Charlevoix Rayder JVs rolled up a 70-53 victory over the Petoskey five in a game played on the latter's floor Friday night.

Charlevoix played to a 18-10 first quarter lead before increasing it to 40-26 at halftime and 53-31 going into the final period when Coach Don Carey emptied the bench.

In the field goal department, the Rayders outscored Petoskey 28-17 while Charlevoix scored 13 of 20 from the free throw line. The Northmen scored on 14 of 24 attempts. The Rayders committed 22 personal fouls. Petoskey had 19.

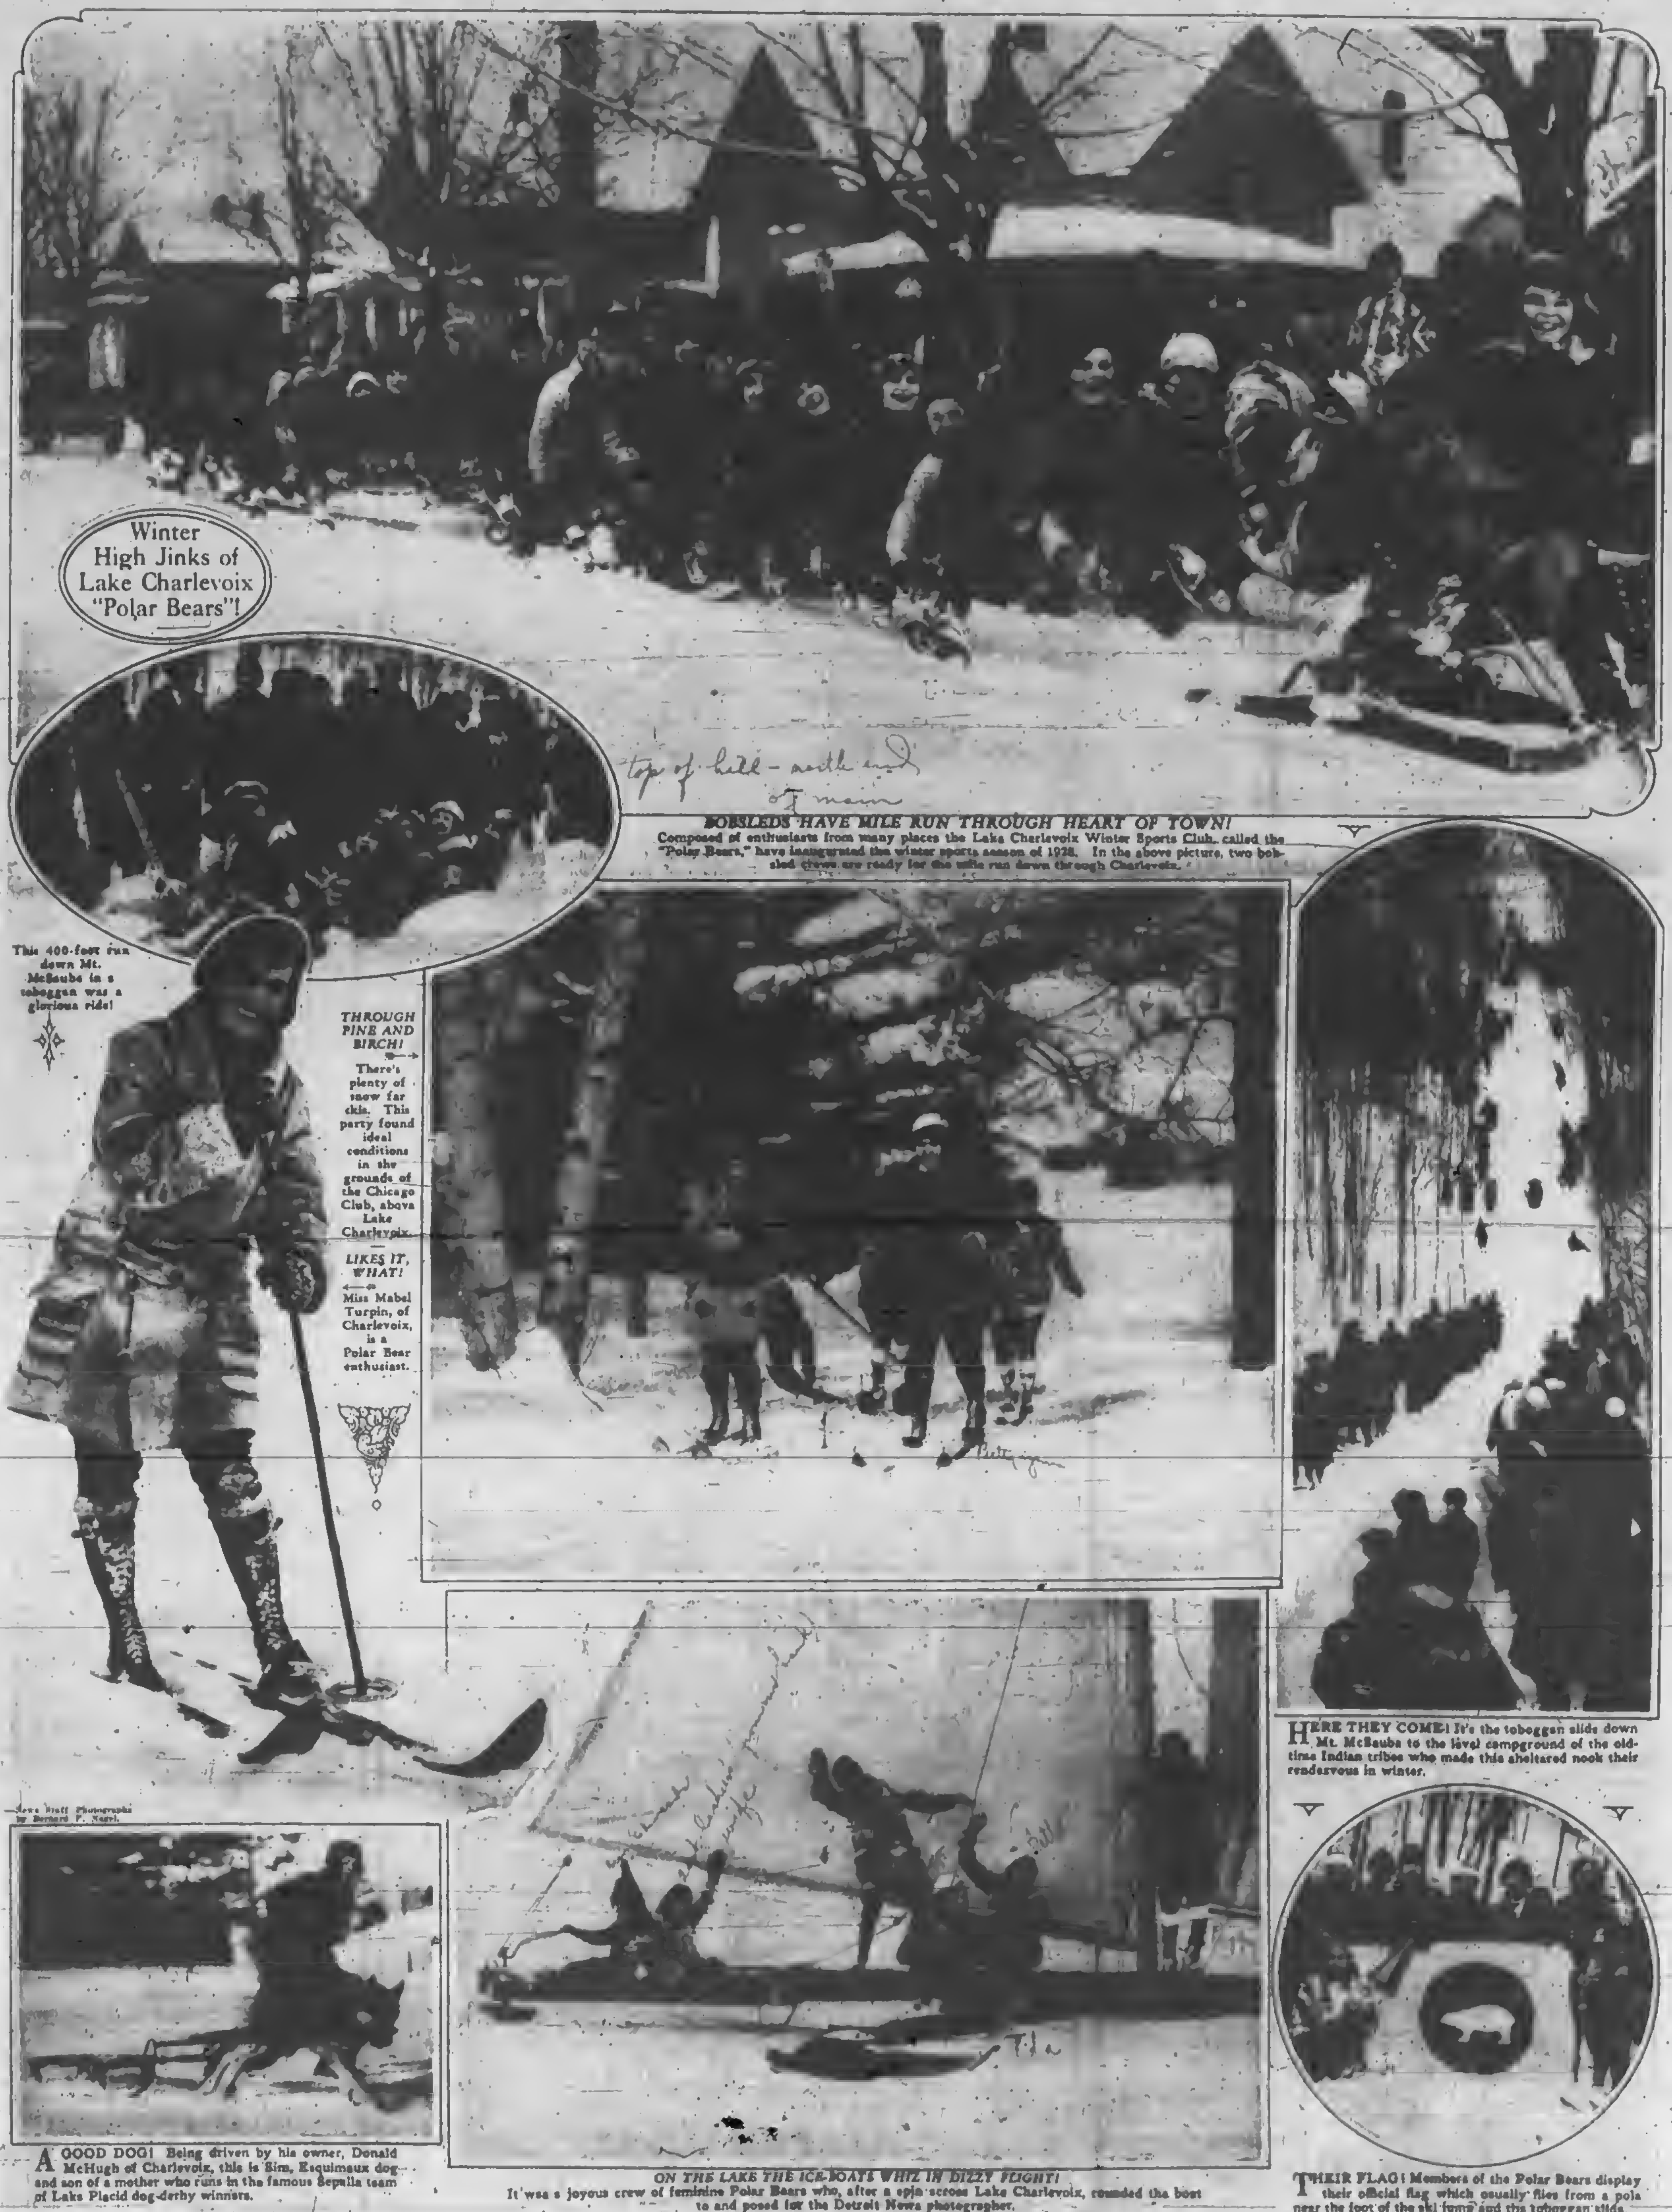
Charlevoix Yesterday

The wind may blow and the snow may fly but winter fun has long been a Charlevoix tradition. Fifty-seven years ago, in fact, many townspeople belonged to an active winter sporting group known as the "Polar Bears". This page from a well-preserved, special rotogravure section of the Detroit News bears evidence to the typical high-jinks and frolicking fun enjoyed by the Polar Bears during the winter months. The tobagganers at the top of the page (those are two long tobaggans end to end) are poised for a run down Bridge St. from the top of the south hill. Oltimers can remember sliding from the south hill all the way to the bridge on a good, icy base.

2 The Detroit News February 12, 1928



top of hill - north end of main

BOBSLEDS HAVE MILE RUN THROUGH HEART OF TOWN! Composed of enthusiasts from many places the Lake Charlevoix Winter Sports Club, called the "Polar Bears," have inaugurated the winter sports season of 1928. In the above picture, two bobsled crews are ready for the mile run down through Charlevoix.

This 400-foot run down Mt. McSauba in a toboggan was a glorious ride!

THROUGH PINE AND BIRCH! There's plenty of snow for skis. This party found ideal conditions in the grounds of the Chicago Club, above Lake Charlevoix.

LIKES IT, WHAT! Miss Mabel Turpin, of Charlevoix, is a Polar Bear enthusiast.

News Staff Photographs by Bernard F. Nagel.

HERE THEY COME! It's the toboggan slide down Mt. McSauba to the level campground of the old-time Indian tribes who made this sheltered nook their rendezvous in winter.

A GOOD DOG! Being driven by his owner, Donald McHugh of Charlevoix, this is Sim, Esquimaux dog and son of a mother who runs in the famous Sepalla team of Lake Placid dog-derby winners.

ON THE LAKE THE ICE-BOATS WHIZ IN DIZZY FLIGHT! It was a joyous crew of feminine Polar Bears who, after a spin across Lake Charlevoix, rounded the boat to and posed for the Detroit News photographer.

THEIR FLAG! Members of the Polar Bears display their official flag which usually flies from a pole near the foot of the ski jump and the toboggan slide.

Boys, girls both ski winners

The Charlevoix Rayder ski teams chalked up victories Wednesdday in meets held at Boyne Mountain Coach Erik Landteigen reports.

The girls team won the meet with a perfect score of 20 while Bellaire had a score of 60; Boyne City 81 and Sault Ste. Marie 91.

In the boys meet, Charlevoix came in first with 29 points; Bellaire 78, Boyne City 77 and the Soo 98.

The victory for the boys' team, however, was not without its price. Mark Trimper, a four-year letter winner in the sport suffered a knee injury that may sideline him for the remainder of the season Landteigen said.

Taking the first five places in the slolam in the following order were Lauren Pace, Nonie Pace, Wendy Viosin, Cheryl Aull and Christie Pace.

In the giant slolam event, Chistie Pace came in first, Sue Miller, second, Lauren Pace, third, Nonie Pace, fourth, Allison Hall fifth and lenore Erber, eighth.

In the boys events, Matt Lignell was a double winner, taking first in both the slolam and giant slolam. In the slolam, Trimper placed second, Jason Brindel, sixth and Brian Wilmot, 10th. Behind Lignell in the slolam were Neal Houseworth, Brindel, Wilmot and Sam Supernaw in the next four places.

The team will be at Schuss Mountain Friday with Bellaire, Petoskey and Grayling. The meet is set for 1 p.m. The teams will participate in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference meet at Boyne Mountain the following Monday.

MS basketball

The Charlevoix Middle School seventh and eighth grade "B" teams dropped games to Kalkaska on the latter's floor Monday night. The eighth grade team lost by a score of 42-23 and the seventh graders by a 35-14 margin.

In the eighth grade game, Charlevoix trailed 20-14 at the half before losing 42-23. Dean Jones scored 10 points for Charlevoix. Mitchell had 15 for the Blue Blazers.

In the seventh grade game, Charlevoix trailed 18-4 at halftime before going down by a 35-14 score. Chris Dobrowski and Mike Stoneham had six points each for Charlevoix.

Sports Boosters buy equipment

With spring sports at the Charlevoix High School in the talking stage, the Sports Boosters, at a regular meeting, Thursday, voted to underwrite the cost of equipment for the softball and baseball teams Carol Havens, organization treasurer, reports.

Both teams will now have their own pitching machines as the result of the Boosters' action.

The Boosters also approved the expenditure of $450 to underwrite the cost of eight break-away gates and a bale of bamboo gates for use by the ski team.

Earlier, the Sports Boosters had financed the cost of materials used in the new scorer's bench in the gymnasium. John Pearl built the bench without charge for labor.

Middle School teams both win at BC

The Charlevoix Middle School basketball teams posted victories at Boyne City on Monday. At that time the eighth grade team won by a 54-29 score and the seventh grade by a slim 22-20 score.

The eighth graders headed the Boyne City five 15-1, 22-8 and 44-19 before taking the game by a score of 54-29. Shawn Putman had 16 points and Chad DeYoung 10 for the victors. Munson had nine points for Boyne City.

The seventh grades had to come from behind to win their game after trailing 4-0 and 13-6 at the quarter and the half before edging to a 17-16 advantage at the three-quarter mark. Chad DeYoung and Scott Miller had six points each for Charlevoix. Hammontree had 12 points for Boyne City.

The teams will be at home, with Harbor Springs on Wednesday.

Sheriff's Department lists promotions

Five members of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department have been named to the newly-created ranks of Sergeant and Corporal.

Those promoted to Sergeant were:

Michael Wheat, who will be in charge of investigations and the day shift; David Kurchinski, afternoon Sergeant; Donald Sproul, midnight Sergeant; and William Counsineau, sub-station Sergeant.

Corrine Russell was named communications-security corporal.

In announcing the appointments, Sheriff George T. Lasater said he had instituted the rank system in an effort to further provide the citizens of Charlevoix County with a professional body of local law enforcement.

The officers were selected and promoted by Sheriff Lasater after those considered were given a written test and completed an interview with an oral board comprised of officials from area law enforcement agencies as well as the County Prosecutor, the Undersheriff, and County Commissioner Larry Matthew.

For Saints and Sinners

by Rev. Thom Black
First Baptist Church

Idly turning the pages of a dictionary a few days back, I found a bit of Latin. I was never much good at Latin at school and I confess I have forgotten most of the little bit I learned. But you know, the Latin writers who died centuries ago could say a lot in very few words.

So, I paused to read four words written by Seneca over 1,900 years ago: "Si via amari, ama".

My little Latin enabled me to translate this into seven words, words that go deep and could change your or my whole way of life:

"If you wish to be loved, love."

Neat, surely. And how true.

U.S.C.G. Cutter Mesquite

time for the crew to rent mopeds and cruise the island.

We sailed from Bermuda, the morning of Dec. 18, heading for San Juan, Puerto Rico in fair winds and mild seas. The 3-day trip was uneventful and we arrived in the bustling port of San Juan on Dec. 21, tying up at Coast Guard Base San Juan. The crew was quickly drawn to the maze of shops in Old San Juan and rum that sells for a fraction of a cost stateswide was purchased enmasse to be brought home. The tropical sun left its mark on plenty of faces and shoulders, but no one was complaining!

Warnings of Hurricane Lili winding towards Puerto Rico early Dec. 23 sent the MESQUITE sailing full ahead on the final leg of our journey south and we managed to keep well ahead of the storm. Christmas Eve found us decorating our tree (still alive and well!) on the fantail in 80-degree weather. Gifts were exchanged 'neath our sparkling tree to the chimes of Christmas carols being piped over the ships' speaker.

The crews biggest present was on the horizon when we woke up Christmas morning — the island of Grenada. It was in driving rain that we sailed into St. George's Bay and we were skeptical about what the travel brochures meant by describing Dec. as Grenada's "dry season". What we were forgetting was that upon tying-up at Grenada's City Dock, we had entered into another world. Rain squalls come and go as suddenly as the cruise ships, street vendors and New York-style drivers. The only thing we can count on here is the maze of potholes that bump and twist the speeding cars on the island's only road.

Our predecessors weren't joking when they emphasized that the pace on Grenada is SLOW. The hot sun, cool breezed and refreshing ocean lull everyone into a relaxed lifestyle. The Grenadians are friendly, easygoing and delighted to have Americans on their island — the military for their security and the tourists for their economy. Recovery from the events which led to the U.S. intervention on Oct. 1983 in an ongoing process. With the newly constructed airport open for business, attention is now being directed to enhancing the island's appeal to tourists and investors. Contracts are being negotiated to get the deplorable road conditions improved and work crews are crowding the docks to increase the capacity of the waterfront to handle more vessel traffic.

But the modernization of Grenada has just begun. Stores of every kind are poorly stocked and outrageously expensive. Utility services are inadequate and unreliable. Imagine our surprise when we discovered that the MESQUITE owns the only washer and dryer on the island! Nevertheless, the optimism of the islanders is contagious. On Dec. 3, 1984, a new prime minister was elected in a landslide general election. His promise to work through democratic channels towards improving and stabilizing the island's economy and government has injected a positive outlook among the Grenadians.

In the meantime, the presence of the U.S. and Jamaican military is widely appreciated while the country continues to train its own security forces. The U.S. Army conducts regular island patrols by land and air, while the MESQUITE gets underway 2-3 times a week to sail along the coast. Underway training drills are conducted when we are at sea, giving the rew an excellent opportunity to fine-tune a variety of shipboard procedores. When we are inport tropical hours from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. comprise our work day. Liberty hours are generally spent at the U.S. Army compound — a converted Holiday Inn. Sand bags and barbed wire aside, the facilities are terrific. Whether wind surfing, swimming, jogging or just cacthing rays on the beach, it's a routine that we really can't groan about. The Army personnel quickly befriended us and make every effort to make us feel "at home". Our best joint effort to date was a New Year's Eve party on a private hotel beach — steak, lobster and beer attracted more than 100 people until the wee hours of the morning!

However, we're not at home and that's something we can't compensate for. We may not all miss the snow and cold, but we do miss our families. Keep the great letters, pictures and care packages coming! Our love to all.

Results of EPA search for TCE source is topic of public hearing

by DAVE KNIGHT

A longstanding mystery to Charlevoix residents - the source of trichloroethylene (TCE) contamination of the city's water system detected over three years ago - is to be addressed at a special public hearing this week.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will discuss results of its investigation into the source of both TCE and perchloroethylene (PCE) contamination at a 7 p.m. hearing Wednesday, February 13 at the Charlevoix City Hall.

Previously released data from test wells drilled during the investigation have pointed to the center city block occupied by the Charlevoix Middle School as having the highest concentrations of TCE. Highest PCE readings have appeared to emanate from locations farther south in town.

According to the EPA, "The purpose of this meeting is to discuss with the local residents the results of the investigation and to outline the steps that will follow."

On another front, the issue of "steps that will follow" has been thrown into some confusion by a reversal of the EPA on its previous agreement to build a lake water treatment plant to replace the city's groundwater supply.

Last summer the federal agency announced it would build a plant with a capacity of three million gallons a day (MGD) with the city picking up the cost for the extra capacity over two MGD. A December ruling by EPA's legal staff in Washington, however, reversed that position saying that EPA could not fund a betterment program for the city and could only participate in a plant to meet current demand.

"When we agreed to participate in a three MGD plant, we were trying

Hayes Township takes off gloves in legal battle with developer

by PEG OHLE

Hayes Township, through its attorney, William R. McTaggart of Boyne City, last week filed an answser to the lawsuit instituted by Fox Associates, Inc. against the Township because of the Township's denial of a zoning permit to Fox.

The answer, in effect, denies all allegations in the lawsuit. It states that Fox had not complied with requirements of the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance, that the Zoning Ordinance had been written under guidelines of the Township Rural Zoning Act and is enforceable, that the Zoning Ordinance does not deprive Fox of his riparian rights in and to Lake Charlevoix, that rejection of Fox's development plan and refusal of a zoning permit would not result in Fox's loss of more than $2.5 million, that the Zoning Ordinance does not violate Fox's civil rights, and, finally, that other people in Hayes Township similarly situated are not permitted more slips or boats than one per 100 feet (although other persons in the County outside of Hayes Township are permitted more).

The property for which Fox had sought a Zoning Permit for a Planned Unit Development is the 338-acre parcel of land and 2,800 feet of shoreline on Oyster Bay on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix formerly used by Camp Charlevoix, a boys' summer camp.

After reviewing several plans for the development, Fox and Hayes Township reached an impasse over Section 5.13 of the Zoning Ordinance which allows not more than "one slip or dock space for each 100 feet of lake frontage or lake access of more than one single family living unit for each 100 feet of lake frontage."

This means that only 28 single family units could be built on lake frontage and there could be only 28 slips or dock spaces for the 168 condominium units he proposed to build on the 338 acres.

Therefore, Fox claims in his lawsuit, he has been denied riparian rights to Lake Charlevoix and, in effect, his civil rights have been violated.

Last week, Fox's attorney, Seberon Litzenburger of the Petoskey law firm of Marco, Litzenburger and Smith, commented on Hayes Township's answer to the lawsuit.

"It is a non-committal answer, the standard form of answer which means 'go ahead and prove it'," he said.

As to Section 5.13 of th Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance, Litzenburger stated, "I am not aware of any other case where a government entity can limit the number of boats a person may have - any more than they could limit the number of television sets.

"Also, according to this Ordinance, only 28 of 168 homeowners in the proposed development could use the lake. If this type of legislation is permitted all around the lake and is applied equally, the common man would not have access to the lake."

Litzenburger was also critical of such zoning restrictions from an economy point of view. "We are trying to establish a resort economy," he pointed out. "If this is done right, it is clean and profitable and puts bread and butter on the table of local people. This type of Ordinance is counter-productive. With it, only a small number of resorters could have use of the lake."

Section 5.13 of the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance is designed to prevent what is known in zoning circles as "funnel development". Funnel development permits persons who do not own lake frontage in a land development to "funnel" themselves to the development's commonly-owned lake shore for recreational purposes. The objection commonly voiced against such development is that it gives many more people access to the lake and thus adds to the pollution of the lake.

Last week, following a closed meeting of the Hayes Township Board, Supervisor Paul Hoadley read a prepared statement indicating the Township will stand behind and support its Zoning Ordinance.

"The Township Board feels the Ordinance is fair and reasonable and the developer (Fox) can live within the guidelines of the Ordinance and still have a very fine development," Hoadley read further.

Hoadley also noted that the Township is setting up a defense fund.

Kidnapping was false alarm

The investigation into what was reported Friday as an attempted abduction at the Charlevoix Elementary School has been closed.

According to the Charlevoix Sheriff's Department, the incident was found to be a case of mistaken identity by a high school student sent to the school to pick up his cousin.

A six-year old student reportedly told his teacher that, during recess, he was approached by three white males who tried to lure him into their car.

The driver of the car, a student at Charlevoix High School, was subsequently located and questioned by the Sheriff's Department. Apparently the mixup occurred because of the similarity in snow suits worn by the teenager's cousin and the youngster who was approached.

Bus service is reinstated

Charlevoix's only bus service connecting to major inter-city routes, which had been dropped February 1, was re-instated last Friday.

According to the Shortway-North Star bus line, it will now be running an evening roundtrip route between Traverse City and Petoskey seven days a week.

Under the new schedule, the bus will leave Traverse City at 6 p.m., stop in Charlevoix at 7:15 and arrive in Petoskey at 7:40 to connect with buses heading north. Going south, it will leave Petoskey at 8:15 p.m., stop in Charlevoix at 8:45 and arrive back in Traverse City - with a stop in Elk Rapids - at 10 p.m.

Unfortunately for passengers heading to points south of Traverse City, there are no other buses leaving that station after 10 p.m. so connections will involve an overnight stay.

While local agent Peter Gaskin of Gaskin's Standard Station said that the nightime southbound schedule would be inconvenient for the majority of passngers using the Charlevoix service, the reinstatement of the route did maintain a freight-shipping service important to several local firms.

Marina application denied

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has denied application by a Charlevoix firm to construct a marina in Lake Charlevoix's South Arm near the Ironton ferry.

Ironton Cove, Inc., of which George Duke of Charlevoix is majority owner, proposed to built a marina facility with 54 rental boat slips, upland storage capacity of 98 boats and launching capablility.

The application was the topic of a December 19 hearing in Charlevoix attended by several interested people.

"There are three major concerns with the marina as proposed," wrote DNR hearings officer Richard Sik-

New parking policy would replace fee

by DAVE KNIGHT

A zoning ordinance amendment presented to City Council Monday would do away with a controversial $2,000-per-space fee now required of downtown property owners unable to meet requirements for providing adequate off-street parking.

Council members, meeting as a committee of the whole, voiced no opposition to the proposed amendment which has been recommended by the City Planning Commission. Following Monday night's discussion, the amendment will be placed on council's regular meeting agenda for formal introduction.

According to City Planner Gerry Harsch, who presented the amendment to council, the new policy would allow property owners in the Central Business District (C.B.D.) to negotiate with the Planning Commission when it is determined that additional off-street parking spaces are required through a change or intensification of use as described in the ordinance.

A new flexibility featured in the proposal would allow the Planning Commission to "vary the location of such required off-street parking spaces or agree to the owner's participation in other authorized off-

Chase named Eagle Scout

by FRAN MARTIN

Gerald M. Chase II, 18, has earned the highest advancement award the Boy Scouts of America offers to Scouts, the coveted Eagle Award.

The award was presented at a Boy Scout Court of Honor held during the annual Boy Scout Banquet at the Charlevoix High School cafeteria Wednesday Feb. 8.

He is the fifth member of Boy Scout Troop 11, headed by Louis Edwards as Scoutmaster, to earn the Eagle Award.

To become an Eagle Scout, the candidate must earn 21 merit badges and complete a service project. Chase's project was to plan and build, with the aid of troop members, a trail on Little Traverse Conservancy property at Round Lake in Emmet County.

Chase entered the Scout program as a Cub Scout in September 1974; received the Arrow of Light in May of 1977; joined Troop 43 in September 1977; earned the Scout Rank in December 1977; joined Troop 11 in May 1978; and became a Tenderfoot Scout in February 1980, Second Class Scout in November

Art Tree show features local artist's work

A special showing of silver and amethyst jewelry, one of a kind pieces made by Charlevoix metalworker Christa-Maria, will be featured during February at the Art Tree, a sales gallery located in the Virginia M. McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey.

Christa-Maria, a Charlevoix resident since 1979, hand builds each piece of jewelry she makes. She free-forms silver sheeting with a torch, and employs ice casting, where molten silver is poured onto ice and allowed to find its own form.

To her natural shapes, Christa-Maria adds natural semi-precious gems: sweetwater pearls, uncut stones and polished crystals.

"Christa's work is a celebration of individuality," says Art Tree gallery coordinator Audrey Collins.

A native of Lubeck, Germany, Christa-Maria began making jewelry at the age of 12 when plumbers doing repair work in her family's home gave her bits of copper and allowed her to use their tools. Now, she has tools of her own, and uses them to create unique pins, pendants, bracelets, earrings and rings.

Christa-Maria also creates woven and knitted articles to be worn or displayed on home or office walls. She is also a poet and has had her poetry recognized in an article published in the February 1983 issue of Traverse, The Magazine.

A participant at area art fairs, Christa also shows her work in selected galleries throughout Northwestern Michigan including the B.J. Godwin studio in Charlevoix and at the Art Tree.

"We are especially happy to have an expanded colletion of Christa's wonderful amethyst jewelry during February," Collins said, noting the amethyst is the February birthstone.

The Art Tree is located in the former Methodist Church, now the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center. Situated at the conrer of Mitchell and Division streets downtown, the Art Tree is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Lasater reports on task force for victim's rights

by PEG OHLE

People who are victims of crimes and those who witness crimes may soon receive more consideration from the criminal justice system.

President Reagan has set up a Task Force to formulate means of assisting such people. The Task Force met recently in Detroit for a midwestern seminar and was attended by Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater, one of our Michigan sheriffs selected to serve on the Task Force.

In a report on the meeting, Sheriff Lasater states that, "The scales of justice nationwide must be balanced; not only does the perpetrator have rights, but the victims must have rights and fair treatment by the system. We do not have that balance now, unfortunately. It seems that the system has gone overboard on the rights of the perpetrators and we have forgotten victims' rights in many cases."

Sheriff Lasater notes that programs to protect the rights of victims and witnesses would not be expensive, especially in light of the fact that Charlevoix County spends approximately $244,000 yearly on perpetrators of crimes.

"We must remember that the criminal justice system does not work unless we have the cooperation of victims and witnesses," he added.

Among the programs Sheriff Lasater will be working on in Charlevoix County with the assistance and cooperation of other agencies in the criminal justice system are:

–Supplying victims and witnesses of crimes with a pamphlet explaining their rights and advising them of existing programs that might assist them.

–Providing separate waiting rooms in court for victims and witnesses to eliminate intimidation, and for security reasons.

–Using volunteers to act as support systems for victims, such as groups of volunteers who have actually been victimized themselves and who know how other victims feel. This could include volunteer support groups for victims of criminal sexual assault, victims of domestic assault, parents of incest victims, relatives who have had someone killed in a traffic accident, and elderly victims.

–Setting up a "Victim Impact Statement" program so victims can give a statement to the judge before sentencing, explaining how the crime has affected him or her.

–Training deputy sheriffs to be more responsive to the needs and rights of victims and witnesses.

–Establishing routine procedures in the system to help the victim and-or witness by advising them when the perpetrator is released from jail and what the final disposition of the criminal case is.

Sheriff Lasater says the above programs have the support of all three judges in the County – Circuit Judge Richard M. Pajtas, District Judge Harvey C. Varnum, and Probate Judge John T. Murphy – who are also concerned about the rights of victims and witnesses.

Any person who would like to assist with this new concept of criminal justice is encouraged to contact Sheriff Lasater at 547-4461.

Knight on the Town

What, me worry?

by Dave Knight

When it was first revealed in October, 1981 that Charlevoix's water was contaminated with the industrial chemical TCE, there was a sizeable contingent of local residents who reacted to the news with a shrug and a smirk.

"Health hazard? Baloney!" they said. And many of them still do.

In the meantime, many others - including this reporter - have engaged in various degrees of handwringing over not so much the spectre of getting cancer from drinking the water but the seeming inability of all parties involved to put this business behind us.

It has been over 40 months' now since we learned about the problem and what is there to show for our efforts? A bubbler in the city well and a few tons of PVC pipe somewhere under the snow at Lake Michigan Beach, that's what.

The most recent developments are typical of this tragicomedy. Last July the EPA said it would build us a three million gallon per day lake water treatment system. Last week it said it wouldn't.

Now what?

Your guess is as good as mine.

Pardon the cynicism but it's becoming harder and harder to sort this mess out in my mind, much less explain it to our readers.

In the September, 1982 issue of Science Digest, there was an interesting account of a series of experiments by Seattle biologists Vernon Riley and Darrel Spackman. They rigged up mouse cages to a three-speed turntable and set timers to rotate the mice at irregular intervals. The idea was to create unpredictable motions that would cause anxiety among the mice, but not of a traumatic sort which triggers a biological response all its own.

It was found that the low level tension stimlated the release in the test animals' systems of hormonal substances called adrenal corticosteroids. The biological role of these hormones is to speed up metabolism when the animal is faced with danger; they induce a "fight or flight" syndrome.

But, as the researchers found, the long term anxiety produced among the mice caused their blood streams to be saturated with the hormones, a situation found to be definitely unhealthy.

According to the magazine report, "The hormones destroy infection-fighting lymphocyte cells and damage the thymus gland which helps produce them. As a result, the body's resistance is lowered, sometimes allowing cancer to gain a foothold."

"We're not saying these hormones cause malignancies," said Spackman, "But at least in animal experiments, they do worsen them."

Among the mice in the turntable experiments, 60 percent of those rotated developed tumors when injected with a breast cancer virus compared to only seven percent in an unstressed group.

"Moreover," according to the report, "among mice already suffering from a form of skin cancer those that were spun on a turntable showed a much more rapid spread of the disease. The results suggested to Riley that anxiety can play a major role not only in the progression of cancer, but also in that of other fatal illness."

Well, to bring this back to the point, I've been feeling somewhat like a rotated mouse lately.

Could it be that the low level stress induced by the endless TCE saga has been more of a health hazard than the TCE itself? It appears there is just as much medical evidence to support that claim as there is to link TCE with human cancer.

So...if you bring up TCE in a conversation with me now, excuse me if I just shrug and smirk.

I'm only doing it for my health.

"Icefire", a review

by Bob Clock

Icefire

A good, short title for a long and sometimes tedious novel.

The author, of course, is Robert C. Wilson a Detroit area attorney and assistant Wayne County prosecutor who delighted Northern Michigan readers a few years with his first plunge into literature — Crooked Tree — with its familiar scenes and chilling plot based on Ottawa Indian legend.

In Icefire, Wilson proves again that he is a master story teller. There is enough suspense in Icefire for a dozen novels and that is one of its major weaknesses: There is no respite for the weary reader, who soon learns that whenever a crisis arises he should flip over a few pages to see how many of the characters are still standing by the time it ends.

Unfortunately, the quality of Wilson's prose is no match for his ability to plot. The taut story line is often obliterated by abstract language. Vague and repetitious generalities are as abundant as the billowy snowbanks of isolated Scale Island in Lake Superior, site of a prison for the criminally insane.

The story, basically, deals with the fate of a prison guard, his wife and his son after prisoners seize control of the facility on the lonely, wind-swept island, which lies just beyond the horizon off the Upper Peninsula coast.

With outdoor temperatures running 30 degrees below zero, the family joins forces with two prison doctors and a retired conservation officer and his aging wife in an attempt to elude a posse of armed psychotic killers riding snowmobiles. The prisoners include a mad rapist panting for the guard's wife and a serial killer badly in need of a sacramental blood bath to cleanse his fetid soul.

If that's not enough excitement, throw in the fact that the island is overrun with packs of famished wolves and that peat fires are slowly consuming vast tracts of island's innards — just under the pristine snow cover. It behooves one to watch one's step, lest one is plunged into eternal hellfire and damnation.

One more thing: The island is surrounded by a skirt of ice which appears safe, but isn't, particularly after the wind shifts.

I have a feeling that Wilson tried to squeeze too much into his second novel: Too many perils, too many characters none of whom is really well developed, too much pseudo psychoanalysis, too many dull flashbacks that impede the progress of the story.

Icefire would have benefitted from a thorough editing.

Before Wilson takes pen in hand again, I wish he would pick up a copy of Ernest Hemingway's Old Man and the Sea to see how it's supposed to be done.

EPA to discuss TCE source...

to accomodate the city," said EPA project coordinator Jack Kratzmeyer last week, "It was not something we had to do. In June, I though we had a mechanism to do that but in December, we decided that our participation would be unsuitable."

The EPA's revised position was the subject of a letter to the city from DNR staff member T. Eftaxiadis who also cited dramatic cost projection increases for the lake water intake and treatment plant as complicating the issue.

While Eftaxiadis listed one option in his letter as the re-evaluation of alternatives to replacing the existing system other than a lake water plant, Kratzmeyer said that EPA has no intention of reopening the focused feasibility study in which alternatives were studied.

At Monday night's city council work session, Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc., presented a resolution passed by the KCB board urging the city to "do whatever needs to be done" to retain EPA as the lead agency in building the lake water plant and that a meeting with all principals in the matter be scheduled as soon as possible to work out a solution.

Ironton marina plans denied...

kenga in the decision, "First, the proposed docks would cause an increased intrusion into the fishing area available in Ironton Cove. Second, the proposed docks would extend considerably farther offshore than other docks in the area. This would increase congestion, obstruct navigation and restrict the clear vision area in the vicinity of the Ironton ferry. Third, the site does not have a septic system which is adequate for serving the marina and the holding tank pump-out facility."

Sikkenga went on to say that if the proposed docks were re-designed to a "reasonable length with regard to other docks in the vicinity", - that is, no longer than adjacent docks - , if they did not restrict access to other docks and that if an agreement on waste disposal can be worked out with the District Health Department, the DNR would "favorably consider a marina at this location."

Spokesmen for Ironton Cove, Inc. were unavailable for comment.

Proposed parking amendment...

street parking facilities which will furnish the same number of spaces as required for his floor area."

The proposed amendment would replace a section of the parking ordinance enacted in 1981 under which a $2,000 per-space fee was required when off-street parking requirements could not be met by C.B.D. property owners. Proceeds from this arrangement were to be used to establish a special fund for development of more public parking downtown.

Since its enactment, however, no $2,000-per-space fees have ever been collected by the city.

Critics maintained that the fee-in-lieu-of-parking discouraged the development of new businesses downtown and the improvement of existing properties.

Another provision of the proposed amendment, as explained by Harsch, would waive "the requirement for additional parking due to a legal commercial use change" in the C.B.D. The proposal also addresses requirements for "accessory residential uses" in the C.B.D.

In another matter, an informal poll of council members indicated a shift in position toward purchase of a new street sweeper.

When first discussed at a regular meeting two weeks ago, council voted 4-2 to delay action on the recommendation by City Manager Michael Wiesner to replace the city's existing sweeper, a 1974 model, with a new FMC Vanguard sweeper priced at $51,500.

Council members opposing the purchase of a new sweeper at the time voiced interest in investigating the possibility of rebuilding the existing piece of machinery. Mayor Hal Hill, councilmen Robert Timms and Earl Muma made a trip to Cadillac last Wednesday to inspect a 1968 Elgin sweeper, available for $2,500 through military surplus, for possible use in rebuilding the city's existing sweeper.

While Timms conceded at Monday night's session that the government surplus sweeper "wasn't in mint condition", he called it "a useable piece of machinery" and said that he would still prefer rebuilding to the purchase of a brand new machine. Muma agreed with Timms.

Two councilmen who had previously favored rebuilding, Raymond Wood and William Bellows, indicated preference toward buying a new sweeper after hearing the report of the Cadillac visit. Both said, however, that they were pleased that rebuilding alternatives had been throroughly checked out before final action on the matter.

Formal approval of the purchase will be made at a regular council meeting.

In other action at the work session, council:

-Approved Van Treese's recommendation that the city seek a declaratory judgement action in Circuit Court to endorse deed restrictions which the city maintains it has on northside, lakefront property presently being developed by John C. Malpeli, Jr.

-Set March 11 as the date for a joint meeting with the Planning Commission to discuss site plan review procedures.

Letters from readers:

Hill needs office

To the Editor:

I have followed with interest the controversy over office space for Mayor Hal Hill. I am a native and a senior citizen of Charlevoix and I feel qualified to express my views, which I know are shared by many of my peers.

The Mayor should have office space if for no other reason than the dignity of the office he holds. The Mayor is the only official every one of us can vote for regardless of the ward in which we live. From the record of the ballot box, I am sure most of us feel we know Hal Hill. Without taking one thing from our City Manager, I feel we should be able to contact our Mayor in a designated place.

Essentially, we are a small town with neigbborly ideas, and most of us find it easier to talk with some one we know rather than a newcomer, however knowledgeable or willing to help he may be.

I, for one, hope the Council will go along with Mr. Hill's expressed desire for a "niche" of his own. Quite possibly this may establish a closer contact between we citizens and our elected officials.

Benona J. Kohler

Let's think big

To the Editor:

I cannot believe what I am hearing and reading about the city of Charlevoix being unable — or at least unwilling — to furnish our mayor with a suitable space to conduct the duties of his office in a dignified way.

Charlevoix has long been known as a very sophisticated "with it" town, and with the help of our Keep Charlevoix Beautiful committee, has become famous for it's beautiful appearance in the summer — in fact is being copied by other cities — but now we are becoming famous for our extremely small thinking, even making one of the front pages of the Detroit News, showing Mr. Hill standing on a snow bank with a telephone.

Hal Hill stressed his willingness to improve the communication between the townspeople and it's government, but I can tell you I would have to have an awfully big problem before I would call his home and invade his privacy to help me settle it.

We spend thousands of dollars on petunias, and yet cannot provide a small space for Mr. Hill, who holds the most honorable office in our city, to meet the public and communicate in a business-like atmosphere.

Come on, let's think big!

If some place is not found for him soon, I'm thinking of offering him my tool shed!

More on Terr

To the Editor:

I want to thank you for bringing Jim Terr's work to the attention of our community. Our oldest son is in a current events class that is discussing Russian-American understanding and had shared the article on Jim with his class. I wanted to give one of the calendar-posters to his teacher, so I ordered a couple and I am delighted with them. The poster is a fine piece of work, printed in subdued colors on a heavy, shiny, stock. Across the top is a strip of small pictures with all the information about the project printed on them, suitable for removing, cutting apart, and sending on to friends to "spread the word" (or, in this case, the picture).

This is an example of the thoughtful planning, dedication and perseverance that he has put into his efforts to see that as many people as possible have a chance to do one simple thing; look into the faces of several human beings who belong to a group we think of only as "the Russians".

Along with my posters Jim sent a couple of other articles of related interest, information about ideas he's currently planning such as post cards, posters, and eventually a book; and news of an opportunity that just came his way. He was asked to put together a slide show of his photos to be made available for purchase to teachers around the country. Not only will this be an excellent way to reach more people, but he projected that the income from the sale of the slides (to the non-profit organization that sponsors his work) would finance the next stage of the Washington contacts. This will involve sending his slides to "the remaining 700 or so congresspeople, administration officials and news media people who I feel urgently need to see them..." according to his letter.

Thanks again for bringing us this article on someone who is involved in a "networking" effort to share his insights with others. In case anyone missed the article and is interested, his address is: Blue Canyon Productions, Box 509, Los Vegas, New Mexico 87701.

Gaylord halts Rayders' perfect slate at 15

By ULF EVALDSSON

Visiting Harbor Springs Tuesday last week, the Rayders made sure to extend their undefeated record to 15-0 by beating the Rams 81-58. Rayders controlled the floor, leading 22-10, 35-23 and 59-42 at the quarters.

But, Friday night, we saw the end of Charlevoix' undefeated record when Gaylord's Blue Devils came to the Rayders' home court and startled the Rayder-fans by winning 55-53 in a very dramatic and exciting battle.

The game was close all the way through, and the biggest spread was Rayders' 39-25 lead just before halftime. Rayders stayed in control through the first half, but, revengeful from the fast meeting when the Devils held back the Rayders to only a 47-40 win, Gaylord seemed to overcome Rayders' defense, which lost its effectiveness more and more through the game.

And it sure was a disappointed Rayder-coach, Dave Smith, leaving the court, Friday, obliged to face the fact that; Rayders are beatable.

Harbor Springs didn't manage to please their fans in any way Tuesday. They were more or less run over by their taller antagonists. The game developed in about the same way as in their meeting in December, when Rayders pulled an easy 70-51 win out of the fire.

In Tuesday's game, Jody Putman, John Pearl, Brent Cole and Will Syvertsen helped the Rayders to a 8-2 lead halfway into the first quarter. The lead became 10-4, before Mark Carter could pour in a basket. Putman extended the lead to 14-6, and already now in the first quarter, Rayders grabbed hold of the play and indicated that, if anyone, Harbor Springs wouldn't be the ones to break Charlevoix' undefeated record.

Syvertsen impressed with a couple of good rebounds, serving the ball to Cole and Putman who continued to score making it 18-8 at the end of the quarter. The Rams' sharpshooter, Dan Reed, showed up and brought it to 18-10, but what good did that do when Syvertsen and Cole made sure to increase Rayders' lead by bringing it to 22-10, going in to the second stanza?

Rayders kept on dominating without any problems, cruising in a 15 to 20 points lead through the quarters. halfway into the second quarter, Sean Ferguson made it 32-16, and even if, Doug Dickinson poured in one shot of a free throw, Cole could grab a rebound on the following shot and throw a long pass to Ferguson, ready to add another layup, bringing it to 34-17. Dickinson and Mark Zumbaugh helped the Rams to snap back to make it 34-21. Tim Plagge made it 35-21, before Zumbaugh turned up again, bringing it to 35-23, which ended the first half.

A ten-points difference was reached again, when Doug Tippett tipped in another basket for the Rams, followed by "the tower" Syvertsen, who along with Cole and Pearl made the score 41-25.

Later Cole emerged again bringing it to 45-26. Scoring all the points for the Rams in the third quarter, Reed and Zumbaugh made sure that they didn't fall too far behind. Cole, Jim Martin and Ferguson provided more points for the Rayders, making it 59-42 going into the final stanza.

Gordy Burns and Andy Meyer brought it to 59-46, but when the score was 62-48, Rayders really hit their stride and sailed, to a safe 71-48 lead in a couple of minutes. Plagge made the score 73-50, followed by Cole's field goal, and by now time was really running away for the helpless Rams, who were 77-52 behind when Sloan later tipped in another basket for the Rayders. Sloan also settled the final score 81-58, and Rayders had posted their 15th victory for the season. Pacing the scoring, Cole provided the Rayders with 26 points, while Pearl scored 14. Syvertsen impressed with a game-high 10 rebounds, and Sloan and Ferguson had seven rebounds

Dealing with the Blue Devils Friday, Rayders started out strong. At first it seemed like they would get away with it again and produce another victory. Their shooting in the first half went well and the offanse found the way to the basket often. Gaylord, just as stubborn this time as the last meet, made sure not to fall behind, putting up a dramatic fight.

In the first quarter, Cole and Syvertsen arranged a 7-3 lead for the Rayders, before Gary Scott and Rick Gray knotted the score 7-all. 9-9 became 11-11, which became 13-13, and when Pearl and Dave Sage brought it to 15-all, Syvertsen and Pearl jumped to a 20-15 lead with the Rayders, before Scott snapped back, making it 20-19 at the end of the quarter.

Beginning the second stanza, Chris Clark gave the Devils the lead for the first time by bringing it to 21-20. Ferguson and Cole showed up on the beat and thrilled their enthusiastic devotees on the stands by bringing it to 29-21 halfway into the quarter.

Later Putman helped Charlevoix to a 35-25 lead through two field goals, followed by Cole and Martin's free throws. Todd Nowak canned a free throw and brought it to 39-27, ending the first half. In the second half, Rayders started out a little bit out of tune, allowing the Devils to come back to make it 39-35. Rayders began to lose their foothold, and even if Syvertsen poured in a basket, making it 43-39 in the middle of the third quarter, Gray and Sage could take advantage of the lull and knot the score 43-all. When Pearl scored again, the scoreboard indicated 45-all, and going into the final stanza, Gaylord's offense regained the lead again by bringing it to 47-45.

"We missed too many shots underneath in the second half, and the free throws weren't good enough", Dave Smith explained after the loss.

In the fourth quarter, the temperature started to rise in the packed gym, and Rayders realized that something had to be done in order to stay undefeated. Cole tied the score 47-all, and when Syvertsen poured in a basket, he made it 49-all. Gaylord's top scorer, Scott regained the lead again before Sloan knotted the score 51-all with two more minutes to play. When Sage canned another basket for the Devils, making it 53-51. Gaylord tried to keep the ball within the team for the last remaining minute, but they couldn't prevent Cole from knotting the score again, with 27 seconds to go.

Gaylord managed to pour in a layup, settling the final score, 55-53, and with only nine seconds left of the gamo, Rayders didn't have enough time to get to the basket and score again, but had to accept the first dropped game for the season.

Gaylord's defense played very good, and especially in the second half, we got out of our rhythm, allowing them to overcome our own defense," coach Smith commented. Rayders had only six field goals in the second half. Cole paced the scoring with his team-high 23 points, Syvertsen had 11, Putman 6, Pearl 5, Ferguson 4 and Martin and Sloan 2 points apiece. Best scorers for the Devils were Scott, Sage, Nowak, Clark and Gray.

Skiers reign again at Crystal Mt. — boys 1st, girls 2nd

The Charlevoix Rayder boys ski team placed first and the Rayder girls second among eight schools in the Manistee Invitational ski meet held at Crystal Mountain Monday.

The Charlevoix boys took the meet with 80 points while the girls team, with 62 points, came in second behind Traverse City Catholic Central with 49.

Coach Erik Lundteigen said both teams came through in the meet, the boys taking a first despite the loss of regulars Matt Lignell, because of illness and Mark Trimper because of an injury. "Everyone was forced to give a little extra to compensate for the loss of these two veterans," Lundtelgen said. "In the girls' meet, skiers who hadn't done a lot this year, came through for us when their team-mates fell" he added.

The team came home with two trophies. Those skiers in the top 10 received medals.

Double medal winners among the boys were Jason Brindel who took a third in both the slalom and the giant slalom and Brian Wilmot who came in tenth in the slalom and sixth in the giant slalom. Neal Houseworth placed 11th, Rusty Coolman, 22nd and Karl Erber, 32nd in the slalom and Houseworth, 12th, Sam Supernaw, 13th and Erber 16th in the giant slalom.

Christie Pace placed fourth, Wendy Voisin, eigbth, Sue Miller, ninth and Lenore Erber, 11th in the slalom. Nonie Pace was third, Miller, seventh, Erber 9th and Allison Hall, 12th in the giant slalom. Miller was the only double medal winner among the girls.

"Everyone skied well. Our depth showed in the meet with everyone giving that little extra," Lundgeigen said of the meet.

Charlevoix will go to the regional meet at Schuss Mountain on Thursday, Feb. 14.

Board okays overnight trips, new spring sport coaches

by FRAN MARTIN

Two overnights were approved and coaches named for spring sports at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education February 4.

Connie Ford, director of the Performing Arts group which will be taking its "Music Man" to the state finals in Class C-D at Michigan State University Feb. 15-16, explained how the group advanced to the state finals after falling one point short in district competition. It came about when the quota for that category was not filled and the local group was within one point of qualifying. A cast of 57 students including the support staff will be making the overnight trip. The group finances its own trip.

The Advanced Biology class taught by Peter Spieles was granted permission for its annual winter survival outing at Wilderness Park, Feb. 17-18-19. Thirty-four students will be making the trip.

Girls softball and boys baseball were approved as spring sports. Ron Cox was named to coach the softball team and Brian Certa the baseball team.

Principals reported that absenteeism as the result of the flu was running high in all three schools.

The next meeting is scheduled for Feb. 18.

Charlevoix High School honor student Jeff Young hits the books.

Upcoming series of articles to focus on students who excel

by ANNE KELLY

"In Tulsa, Oklahoma, the local board of education - backed by a local newspaper - has begun awarding varsity letters to high school students who excel in academics." So writes Bob Greene of the Columbus (Ohio) Citizen-Journal.

The impetus for the academic letters came from Bob Haring, executive editor of THE TULSA WORLD who felt there was a real imbalance of recognition in their schools. Kids were being recognized for their prowess in athletics, while the academically-oriented were going un-lauded by the school and the community. The letters, worn traditionally on jackets or sweaters, bear the lamp of knowledge instead of a sports symbol. Some students achieved letters in both areas and were equally proud of and deserving of both.

This interesting commentary leads to some local introspection. Where do school and community values lie? No one can question the importance of athletics, that microcosm of life on the field or court, where lessons are learned, battles are fought and victories, won.

But what of the personal strivings for excellence in other areas? What of the weekly, the quarterly, the semester victories in the classroom? There are students in math and art, in biology and computer programming - in many areas - who by their perserverance and creativity share in and contribute to the world of knowledge.

This semester at Charlevoix High School approximately 93 students of the 510 enrolled in four grades, have excelled in their studies by achieving a grade-point average of 3.5 or above on a 4.0 system, according to the Counseling Office. Teachers in all areas report students who they feel deserve recognition for their excellence.

Who these students are, and how they manage their accomplishments, will be the subject of subsequent articles featuring the students in our schools. They are the kids with direction, the kids with goals. Some may be athletes. Some may never have their picture taken under a basketball hoop, or crossing the goal line with a pigskin. These students may have talent in art, in drama, in language or in academics. But they all have one common denominator: they know where they're going and are working hard to get there.

It's off to East Lansing for "The Music Man"

It will be off to East Lansing this weekend as the Performing Arts Group at the Charlevoix High School takes Meredith Willson's "Music Man" to State Class C-D competition at Michigan State University.

Making the trip will be the 57 members of the cast and the support group, their director, Connie Ford and 14 chaperones. The group will present the musical before a panel of judges on the campus of Michigan State University either Friday or Saturday. At this time Mrs. Ford has not been advised of the time and date.

The musical will be presented locally at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium on Saturday, Feb. 23. Tickets for the performance are now available from Performing Arts students. Purchased prior to Feb. 23, the tickets will be $3.50 for adults, $3.00 for high school students and senior citizens and $2.00 for K-5 and middle school students. They will cost an additional 50 cents if purchased at the door.

"Music Man" tells the story, in song and dance, of the fast-talking musical instrument salesman, Harold Hill, played by Paul Arnold who descends on the good folk of River City, Iowa, and convinces them that they should have a band. His plans to abscond with the funds from the sale of the instruments go awry, however, when he falls in love with the community librarian, Marian Paroo, played by Dianna Loder. Under her influence, he remains in River City, forms the band and leaves the live of a "con" artist behind him.

Others in the cast of this toe-tapping musical are Mike Horton, Nick Swanson, Chris Edwards, Tim Noirot, Eric Green, Jeff Grooters, Rusty Coolman, Ulf Evaldsson, Ann Wagner, Ember Spencer, Jeff Arnold, Shawn Elliot, Tara McLelland, Lori Raymond, Kathy Shepherd, Maureen Buday, Melinda Morgan, Kathi Dillon and Chuck Hastings.

Danielle Johnson, who is the musical director and pianist for the production, along with Horton, Hastings, Swanson, Edwards, Coolman, and Buday double as train passengers and sales people.

In the roles of River City Townspeople and kids are Becca Wallace, Leslie Miller, Holly Edger, Trina Wiser, Johnson, Jill Taylor, Laurie Moore, Val Barnes, Jennifer Sell, Meredith Runyan, Claus Dalitz, Marvin Wittboeft, Kristen McLelland, Gary Miller, Alicia Kintz, Betsy Haggard, Debbie Bartz, Jennifer Bonar, Amy Hayes, Laurie Gleason, Lisa Grose, Kim Hand, Kristie Hand, John Gray, Carol Ormsby, Heather Harrod, Jana Lashmit, Tina McClellan, and Brenda Sutton.

Many of the members also double as support staff which is headed by Bryan Noirot assisted by Gary Miller. Jamey Spencley and Kathleen Buday are in charge of lights; set design, Paul Arnold and set design execution, Arnold and Morgan assisted by Horton, Coolman, Haggard, Hastings and Tim Noirot.

Bryan Noirot and Miller are set construction coordinators assisted by Wiser, Bartz, Gleason, Loder and the Performing Arts classes.

Costume execution: Tim Noirot, Loder, Elliot and Jennifer Clock; Choreography, Loder and Spencer and Stage crew, the cast.

State guidelines dictates that the scene be set up, the musical produced and the setting dismantled and stored within a 45 minute time frame. However, the local showing of the musical will include songs and dances that have been cut from the show to fit the state dictated time frame.

FEBRUARY, 1985 IS NATIONAL CHILDREN'S DENTAL HEALTH MONTH

Practice good dental habits and see your dentist regularly.

With February being celebrated as National Children's Good Dental Health Month, it is a good time to review Dental Education Programs provided by local dentists during the past months and to mention future programs. The Programs, which include instruction and films on oral hygiene, tooth decay, healthy food and snacks, were given as follows:

Kids' Korner Nursery School in October, 1984 by Dr. Dave Strawbridge; Kindergarten Morning Class on November 2, 1984 by Dr. Strawbridge; Kindergarten Afternoon Class on November 2, 1984 by Dr. John Merrill; Cooperative Nursery on January 15 by Dr. Jeffrey Porter; Children's House Nursery School on January 16 by Dr. Merrill and Cooperative Nursery on January 28 by Dr. Robert Tollas.

This month, Dr. Strawbridge will give a nutrition program at St. Mary's School and Sue Fowler, Registered Dental Hyglenist with Dr. Porter's office will give an Education Program at the School.

Also on the Program schedule this month are appearnaces before the Middle School 6th grade by Dr. Strawbridge, 7th and 8th grade girls by Dr. Porter, and 7th and 8th grade boys by Dr. Merrill.

Dental screenings will also be given this month as follows: Beaver Island School by Dr. Porter; Boyne City Schools by Dr. Arnold Bauer, Dr. Richard Fish, and Dr. Robert Polleys; Boyne Falls Schools by Dr. Bruce Stewart; Charlevoix Schools by Dr. Merrill, Dr. Porter, Dr. Strwabridge, and Dr. Tollas; East Jordan Schools by Dr. John Kempton and Dr. Kevin Steely; Ellsworth Schools by Dr. James Smith; Pellston Schools by Dr. Merrill; and St. Mary's School in Charlevoix by Dr. Merrill.

During the Health Fair in April, local dentists will present information and facts on Dental Health and Oral Hygiene.

Drs. Merrill, Porter, Stewart, Strawbridge, and Tollas are also participating in a mouthguard program to instruct students on the importance of proper mounth protection and provide them with mouthguards for football, basketball, girls' volleyball, girls' basketball, and wrestling.

Programs before Senior Citizens Groups will be given this year at the Commission on Aging Lunch Site, Pine River Place, and the Friendship Center. Drs. Merrill, Porter, Strawbridge, and Tollas will participate in the Programs.

'Snow fun anymore

by DAVE KNIGHT

Winter storms, we are told, are a fact of Northern Michigan life. But the statistics of last week's arctic onslaught should give pause to even the most hardy area residents.

Charlevoix received over two and a half feet of snow - 31.9 inches to be exact - between Feb. 11 and 17.

Schools were closed due to weather every day last week except Monday. (See following story.)

The temperature never rose above 24 degrees and hovered much of the time around the teens, dipping to 7 below zero at the coldest.

While most major traffic routes were kept open during the week, strong winds caused heavy drifting at several points. U.S. 31 south of Charlevoix had to be cleared by a Michigan Department of Transportation snowblower when it narrowed to one lane Thursday and Friday. City police assisted the project by halting traffic on the highway periodically.

At one point, U.S. 31 was closed at the Antrim-Charlevoix County line because of the blowing snow creating drifts and "white-outs".

According to Lloyd Kuebler, who keeps Charlevoix's weather records for the National Weather Service, last week's snowfall brings the season's total to 118.2 inches. As of February 17, there was a total of 40.3 inches for this month already. That, said Kuebler, is the highest monthly total recorded since current records were started in 1966.

The record for most snow in a season is 161.5 inches set in 1978-79. Average winter snowfall for the 1966-81 period was 106.2 inches.

Snow days piling up

by FRAN MARTIN

Snow days mean different things to different people. However, at the Charlevoix Public school the words describe days during which there is no school in session as the result of inclement weather.

Last week, Charlevoix experienced four "snow days", days during which the majority of roads which school buses must travel were impassable as the result of the heavy snowfall (31.9 inches from Feb. 11 through Friday), when visibility was very poor because of flying snow and because travel warnings were out for the entire area.

Through Friday, there had been a total of six snow days so far this school year (1984-85). Two of these were in January and the remaining four last week.

Checking at the Central Office, Vincent Olach, business manager, said that the school district had had 42 snow days since the beginning of the 1975-76 school year.

"You can tell what kind of a winter we had by the number of snow days we had" Olach said in checking his files.

During the 1983-84 school year there was one; 1982-83, none; 1981-82, six: 1980-81; two; 1979-80, one; 1978-79, seven; 1977-78, six; 1976-77, seven; 1975-76, six.

Through the years there were four in December, 23 in January, 11 in February and four in march.

The earliest snow day on record was Dec. 9, 1977 and the latest March 12, 1976.

Fourteen of the snow days have fallen on Monday, 10 on Tuesday, four on Wednesday, eight on Thursday and six on Friday.

Jack Kratzmeyer, project coordinator for the EPA, explained his agency's search for the source of TCE contamination at a public hearing last week.

TCE source still unknown

by DAVE KNIGHT

While U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) investigators say they now have a fairly accurate picture of the breath and depth of the trichloroethylene (TCE) contamination of Charlevoix's groundwater, they still have not determined just how the industrial chemical and suspected carcinogen made its way into the acquifer.

Jack Kratzmeyer, project coordinator, and John Perrecone, public affairs officer, presented findings of the EPA's two-year search for the contamination source at a public hearing at City Hall Wednesday, February 13.

Among the conclusions stated by Kratzmeyer were the following:

-The source of TCE is related to events that have taken place at the Middle School.

-No disrete source, such as a leaking vessel or known spill, has been identified.

-A continuous source of TCE contamination does not presently exist; all the known contaminant has entered the acquifer and there is no "new" TCE being introduced.

-There are two separate sources for TCE and another similar chemical, perchloroethylene (PCE), which has been detected in the groundwater but not yet in the city well system which is estimated to draw 50 percent of its supply from the groundwater and the remainder from Lake Michigan.

-Peak concentrations of TCE should reach the city well at Michigan Beach Park within three to six years.

-PCE should be detected at the city well within the next two years.

Kratzmeyer explained that Charlevoix's groundwater contamination problem is unique in many respects. He said the fact that only TCE and PCE have been detected in the groundwater is very unusual.

"At most sites we investigate we get a hodgepodge of anywhere from 30 to 40 chemicals," said Kratzmeyer.

He also said that extremely porous, sandy soils in the central city allow contaminants to move downward to the water table more rapidly than in other cases.

Kratzmeyer cited the nature of the city well as another contributing factor saying, "The problem witb Charlevoix's system is that it's bascially an antique system. You are deriving water from an upper acquifer which is especially vulnerable to any type of spill."

The city well consists of two 225-foot underground wooden flumes parallel to and about 80 feet from the Lake Michigan shoreline. They collect water and channel it to the caisson at the pumping station.

Kratzmeyer said that since the school district has no knowledge of TCE ever being used at the Middle School, which was formerly the high school, the most probable source of its introduction to the groundwater was a spill of some kind, perhaps by a contractor doing some kind of construction work.

He estimated that the total amount of TCE spilled was from 50 to 75 gallons. Of that, he said, it is likely that as much as 50 percent evaporated with the rest percolating through the soil. The water table beneath the Middle School is approximately 30 feet underground.

At present there is about 20 gallons of TCE in the goundwater but soil samples taken at several points reveal no traces of the contaminant so Kratzmeyer concluded that all the TCE spilled has entered the groundwater and that no more of it is percolating through the soil.

Based on the facts that the groundwater flow is about two to three feet a day and that the flow rate of the TCE is about half as fast, Kratzmeyer estimated that it would take about 50 years - the time it would take for three to five complete changes of the acquifer - for the contaminant to be completely purged under natural conditions.

He added that accelorated pump-

Mesquite aids drug bust

by FRAN MARTIN

While enroute from Grenada to Miami, Fla., the USCGC Mesquite was charged with towing a fishing boat loaded with ten tons of baled marijuana and its crew of six from an area northeast of Cuba to Miami Lt. Cdr. Robert E. Young, commanding officer of the ship, said in a telephone conversation from Miami Thursday.

The ship, he said, was on the last leg of its trip from Grenada after a two-day stopover at St. Thomas Island in the Virgin Islands, when it crossed paths with a second Coast Guard vessel, the USCGC Gallatin, a 378 ft. high endurance cutter, which had seized the 38 ft. fishing tug after boarding it during its law enforcement patrol duty. The fishing boat with its cargo was taken in tow by the Mesquite with two crewmen from the Mesquite and the boarding officer from the Gallatin replacing the six crewmen who were taken aboard the Mesquite.

After towing the fishing boat through rough seas for four days, the Mesquite turned the vessel, the men of its crew and the bales of marijuana over to law enforcement officers at Miami at 4:30 p.m. Feb. 11.

"It was a rugged trip, especially for our men aboard the small fishing craft. We went through some rough seas" Lt. Cdr. Young said of the trip.

In relating the story, Lt. Cdr. Young said the Gallatin had seized the fishing boat after boarding it and finding its contraband cargo while patrolling the area searching for drug-runners. Rather than return to Miami, the Gallatin turned over the tow to the Miami-bound Mesquite.

The illegal cargo of the small boat included 20,400 pounds of marijuana in 100 pound bales. The registry of the fishing boat was not known. Neither was the origin of its cargo.

"We wanted the people back home to know that we are really doing our job down here. This was the biggest thing that has happened to us, however, and we wanted to share it with those at home," Lt. Cdr. Young said in relating the story.

The ship is presently receiving repairs at the Coast Guard base at Miami Beach and the crew is receiving law enforcement training prior to be assigned to patrol duty in the area.

The ship, home ported in Charlevoix, departed for Grenada via the St. Lawrence Seaway Nov. 26. However, its progress was halted as the result of a damaged bridge at Montreal until Dec. 9 when it was given priority passage and proceeded to Nova Scotia for a brief stop before traveling south to Bermuda and then on to Grenada, arriving on Christmas morning. The ship has been involved in law enforcement and assisting the Grenadians in training their own Coast Guard until departing St. George, Grenada, early this month enroute to the continental United States.

It is expected the ship will depart for Charlevoix early in March. The Welland Canal will open March 15, ice conditions permitting, allowing passage into the Great Lakes.

NRC issues SALP report for Big Rock

by DAVE KNIGHT

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) has issued its regular report card, of sorts, on operations at the Consumers Power Big Rock Point nuclear plant.

According to a cover letter from NRC Region III Administrator James G. Keppler summarizing findings of the Systematic Assessment of Licensee Performance (SALP) for the 16-month period from July 1, 1983 through October 30, 1984, "Regulatory performance at the Big Rock Point facility has remained acceptable during this assessment period."

Under the SALP evaluation system, ten different areas of plant functions are graded on a scale of 1 to 3. Briefly, a "1" means that reduced NRC attention may be appropriate. A "2" means that NRC attention should be maintained at normal levels and a "3" means that both NRC and licensee attention should be increased.

Of the ten functional areas evaluated, five received "1" ratings (plant operations, surveillance, emergency preparedness, security and refueling) and five received "2" ratings (radiological controls, maintenance, fire protection-housekeeping, quality activities and licensing activities).

In only one area did the "grade" change from the previously conducted SALP; the maintenance category went from a "1" to a "2".

In addition to the numerical ratings, performance trends in each of the ten categories are evaluated. For five categories (radiological controls, surveillance, emergency preparedness, security and licens-

"Music Man" scores top honors for CHS

The Charlevoix Performing Arts group with its "Music Man" presentation won top honors in the C-D division of the Michigan Inter-Scholastic Forensics Association-Drama Division competition held Friday and Saturday at East Lansing.

The Charlevoix Group, directed by Connie Ford, was among 15 entries in the competition which, at this point in the competition was not divided into classes.

The Charlevoix Group placed third in the competition with 239 points and first in the C-D division.

St. Johns placed first with 288 points and Southfield was second with 250 points to take first and second place in Class A. These teams with Waterford Mott with 236 points received I ratings.

Charlevoix with 236 points and Petoskey and Pinconning with 214 points each, received II ratings. Charlevoix with the highest number of points received top honors in the C-D division. Petoskey and Pinconning shared first place in the B division Mrs. Ford explained.

The Charlevoix cast received only one acting award but did receive three other awards. Ann Wagner for her portrayal of Mrs. Paroo, mother of Marian, the female lead in the Meredith Willson musical, received a superior acting award.

Paul Arnold was the recipient of an excellence award for set design; an excellence award for costume design was given to Tim Noirot, Dianna Loder and Shawn Elliott and an excellence award for the choreography was awarded Dianna Loder and Ember Spencer.

This marks the second year the Charlevoix Performing Arts Group has received the C-D title, Mrs. Ford said. "The kids did a solid job. Their scores which were 80, 79, and 80 from the three judges tell you that. We have done consistently well through the years. I was very pleased with the entire cast and the support group. They have all worked hard," she continued.

Charlevoixans will have an opportunity to see this trophy-winning performance when it is presented at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 23.

Consumers Council offers brochure on property tax appeal process

The Michigan Consumers Council is again reminding Michigan property owners that they can protest their property tax assessments. To assist those consumers the Council has available a brochure outlining how to review property tax assessments, what to look for in determining the accuracy of the assessments, and how to proceed through an appeal process.

The pamphlet is one of the most popular informational items published by the Council this time of year as property owners receive their tax assessment notices. While many consumers feel that their tax assessments are unfairly high, many are reluctant to "fight city hall" because they feel it's hopeless.

"Many assessment changes simply reflect inflation in the housing market," according to Consumers Council Director Kent S. Wilcox. "However, errors are made frequently. These can range from incorrectly computing the tax to an actual error in judging the property's value. The first thing consumers need to do is check the appraisal records in the assessor's office for accuracy," said Wilcox. "It's possible that the appraisal may have been based on assumptions that are simply incorrect, such as stating that the house has a finished basement or fireplace when it doesn't. The appraisal may have also missed defects that might tend to reduce the house's value such as settling or shifting on the foundation."

The Council advised discussing any errors with the assessor first. Some assessors may be willing to adjust the appraisal, saving the consumer and themselves the nuisance of a formal protest. If the consumer finds it necessary to proceed with a protest, the brochure outlines information that may be useful in documenting a case before a local Board of Review.

The importance of deadlines is also stressed as each township and city has a functioning Board of Review that meets sometime between the first week in March and the first week in April. If the protest isn't filed by the meeting date, a consumer will have missed the cahnce to change the assessment.

Free copies of "How to Review and Appeal Your Property Tax Assessment," are available by writing or calling the Michigan Consumers Council, 414 Hollister Building, 106 W. Allegan St., Lansing, MI 48933; telephone, 517-373-0947. Copies are also available in large print for the visually impaired.

Proposed code includes "mounds"

by PEG OHLE

The proposed new Sanitary Code for Charlevoix County presented to the County Board of Commissioners last week provides for the use of elevated absorption fields (mounds).

This is the first time mounds have been included in the County's Sanitary Code as an approved method of sewage disposal, although their use has been permitted in certain extreme circumstances in the past.

Elevated absorption fields, or mounds, as the name indicates, differ from the usual in-ground sewage disposal systems in that they are built largely on top of the ground surface. As set forth in the Sanitary Code their use is really a last resort and will be permitted only under specific conditions:

When a publicly operated sewage disposal system is not available; when an in-ground system cannot be installed; when a remote location to which sewage may be pumped is not available; when there is room for minimum isolation distances; when the soil percolation rate is not slower than 60 minutes per inch; when the natural ground slope does not exceed 12 percent; when the natural groud slope does not exceed six percent at a site where the soil percolation rate is slower than 30 minutes per inch; when the natural ground surface is at least two feet above, and the bottom of proposed elevated absorption field is at least four feet above the maximum seasonal ground water level, at least four feet above the known high water mark of an adjoining lake or stream, and at least four feet above pervious or fractured rock; when the natural ground surface is at least four feet above impervious soil or rock; when peat, muck, or marl are not present; and when the site is not subject to flooding.

If and when the proposed site for an elevated absorption field meets the above requirements, a construction permit will be issued but a series of at least four inspections are required during the construction process, using the services of a registered professional engineer or registered sanitarian in addition to the Health Department Officer.

The use of private engineers and sanitarians for sewage disposal system examinations is a new concept in the Sanitary Code. Drafters of the Code explained that this was done so that the Health Department would not have to bear the burden of the additional work and cost of inspecting elevated absorption fields.

Despite the many restrictions put on sites for elevated absorption fields, it is anticipated that their use will make some properties heretofore considered unbuildable, buildable. However, their primary use will probably be as replacement sewage disposal systems in instances where in-ground systems have failed.

Noting the many professional inspections required by the Sanitary Code for elevated absorption fields, Commissioner Tom Breakey commented that they seemed to be "rich men's systems" because of the cost involved. Health Department Sanitarian Larry Levengood replied that the Code provides for variations in hardship cases.

Elevated absorption fields are generally considered more fragile than in-ground systems, which accounts for the tighter rules governing them. The rules go down to the very covering of the absorption field: "The covering material above the absorption field shall be sandy loam at least six inches deep at the sides and 12 inches deep at the center of the field. In addition, the entire mound shall have at least six inches of topsoil cover, and shall have grass cover established and maintained to prevent soil erosion."

The proposed new Sanitary Code was prepared over a period of almost two years by an ad hoc committee appointed by the Board of Commissioners. The committee was chaired by Irvin Sturm, a registered engineer, who was assisted by County Commissioners Ralph Harmon and Oral Sutliff, Health Department Sanitarian Larry Levengood, Attorney Scott Beatty, and County Planning Commission Member Dorothy Custer.

It is expected that the County Board will endorse the Sanitary Code at its next meeting, on February 27. The Code will then go to the District Board of Health for its input and holding of a public hearing. Twenty days after the hearing, the Board of Health may adopt the Code, after which it will go to the four counties in Health Department No. 3 (Antrim, Emmet, Otsego, and Charlevoix) for final approval. The Code will become law 45 days after approval by the last county.

Winter Cup race winners will receive newly designed medals depicting the Charlevoix pier and lighthouse.

This year's Winter Cup motto "Have snow, will go!"

Cross Country races on Saturday and downhill races on Sunday will be the features of the annual Winter Cup being sponsored this year for the first time by the Charlevoix Recreation Department. In the past the Winter Cup was sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

The site of the cross country ski races will be the second tee of the Charlevoix Municipal Golf course on Division Ave. at 10 a.m. Saturday following registration for the event at the K-5 school beginning at 9 a.m.

The downhill races will be held at the Mt. McSauba ski hill at 1 p.m. Sunday following registration beginning at 12 noon at the ski lodge.

Innertube races for teams of five will follow the ski event at approximately 3 p.m. Sunday.

The cross country ski races will be 5 KM in length and will feature five different age levels for both boys and girls and men and women. The races will be for 9 year olds and under, 10-13 years, 14-17 years, 18-24 years, 25-34 years and 35 and over.

Plaques will be offered for the first time for first place in the ski races and medals iwth a new logo bearing a likeness of the pierhead at Charlevoix, designed by Marilyn Boss, will be awarded to the top three winners in each division of the race.

The downhill races on Sunday which will feature both slalom and giant slalom races will also offer plaques to first place winners and the newly-designed medals to the top three winners in all catagories. There will be six age groups for both boys and girls and men and women in these races. The youngest will be the bunny race for children five years and younger followed by the races for 5-6 years olds, 7-9 year olds, 10-12 year olds, 13-15 year olds and 16 years and over.

All plaques and medals in both the cross country and the downhill races will be presented at Mt. McSauba following the Sunday events.

Innertubes for the team innertube races will be furnished by the Charlevoix Recreation Department. Only teams of five persons per tube will be allowed to participate in the race. Those planning to attend are encouraged to organize their own teams.

"The Winter Cup is open to everyone. It's planned for the enjoyment of all persons everywhere interested in ourdoor sports. We are encouraging people outside of Charlevoix to join us in this winter sports event that promises to be fun for everyone." Dwight Boss, City Recreation Director and Bo Boss, manager of the Mt. McSauba Ski area, said of the upcoming event.

It marks the first time in recent years that there will be plenty of snow on the ground for the planned events. "We have snow, lots of it, so come out and enjoy it" Bo Boss said.

The ski areas will be groomed for the cross country races which will feature a stampede start Dwight Boss said.

A $2.00 registration fee will be charged for the cross country ski races.

To videotape children

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department has established a new program to assist parents and law enforcement officials in cases of child abduction.

The Sheriff's Department will VCR tape short video segments of children which the parents may keep on file, and in the event of a domestic or criminal kidnapping, this video tape can be given to television stations by law enforceement agencies to assist in alerting the public to help look for the child.

Parents may take advantage of this program by purchasing their own VCR video tapes and contacting the Sheriff's Department for an appointment. A questionnaire will be provided to the parents to cover information to be included in the video taping.

This program is an adjunct to the child finger printing program which the Sheriff's Department initiated last year and in which 1,650 school-age and pre school-age children in Charlevoix County have been finger printed.

Opinion

Knight on the Town

Office politics

by Dave Knight

A: Hal Hill should have an office in City Hall but I'm not sure the mayor should.

B: You've left me behind already. Isn't Hal Hill the mayor?

A: Yes.

B: Then how can he have an office but not the mayor?

A: I'm saying that Hal Hill the person should have a city hall office but I'm not comfortable with attaching such a perk to the elected office.

B: Please explain.

A: I see nothing all that threatening to city government by what Hill proposes to do with his office. First, he wants to ease the bottleneck of citizen complaints and other business that tends to accumulate on the city manager's desk; act as a sort of ombudsman. If it is one thing people like about small town life, it's being able to take problems to City Hall and discuss them face-to-face with someone. As busy as the city manager is, that's not always possible. Furthermore. I'm not certain that listening to sometimes long-winded concerns is the best use of time for a skilled professional - which is what the city manager is. Hill is a good listener and could save the city manager's valuable time by consolidating the input he receives and passing it along in an appropriate manner. Hill, a former manufacturing plant manager, has had enough practical experience in the corporate workplace to know how this system can enhance efficiency.

Second, and more important to my mind, is Hill's desire to use an office to help promote the city. He has already displayed a welcome eagerness to become actively involved in such civic ventures as the fishing tournament and tourism promotion. His jovial, outgoing nature and enthusiasm reflect well on our city and should be taken advantage of. We're actually getting something extra here because there's really nothing in the charter that says the mayor has to be an enthusiastic promoter of community projects.

B: Okay, you've convinced me that there is merit to Hal Hill's having an office. What's your hang-up?

A: Simply that Hal Hill is not always going to be mayor. If an office is set up in City Hall for him, it's going to be there permanently for whomever finds him or herself elected mayor in the future. You can bet your snowshovel on that.

While I like how Hill proposes to make use of such a privilege, there is no guarantee that his successors will have the same noble intentions, or will be as good as Hill at what he plans to do. To put it briefly, I think there is a potential for misuse. I worry that an elected mayor with a different attitude than Hill's toward community promotion and the city manager's role could cause problems with a City Hall office. Hill proposes holding office hours a couple hours a day a couple days a week. A future mayor may decide to occupy his or her digs fulltime. Hill is retired but a future mayor may be a businessman who has difficulty separating personal business from city business. Hill wants only a phone and a file but a future mayor may plead successfully for the logical trappings to follow: typewriter, word processor, secretary, and so on.

B: Okay, now you've convinced me that Hill should get an office but the mayor should not. How do you propose to resolve this apparent contradiction?

A: Pardon me for waffling but, fact is, I'm not sure. Perhaps a trial period with close guidelines would be the most logical approach to trying the concept without making a future commitment. Perhaps council ought to say, "Okay Hal, we like your proposal and we'll go along with it as presented. We're not, however, permanently establishing a mayor's office to be inherited by each elected successor. If future mayors want to make proposals similar to Hill's, we'll consider them on an individual basis."

B: Sounds fair enough.

NRC report...

ing activities) there was no change in trend from the prior SALP. In three categories (plant operations, maintenance and fire protection-housekeeping) performance trends were reported to have declined and in one area (quality activities) the trend was reported to have improved. In the refueling category, there was no basis for evaluating a trend since there was not a refueling conducted during the prior SALP period.

Said David P. Hoffman, plant superintendent, "While the report does indicate areas where improvements could be made, I believe that it shows Big Rock to be one of the top nuclear plants in the Midwest if not the nation."

According to Charles McGinnis, Big Rock public affairs director, "On balance we regard the SALP as a good report card. We do disagree with some of the specifics, however, where we are not sure there is the data to support their (NRC's) findings."

Consumers Power officials will be able to address their concerns about the SALP at a meeting with NRC staff scheduled for March 12 at NRC Region III headquarters in Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

A SALP is issued periodically for every nuclear plant licensed to operate by NRC. It is compiled by a board comprised of members of the NRC staff from various disciplines.

In each of the ten functional areas evaluated, one or more of the following criteria is used in the assessment: management involvement in assuring quality, approach to resolution of technical issues from a safety standpoint, responsiveness to NRC initiatives, enforcement history, reporting and analysis of reportable events, staffing (including management) and training effectiveness and qualification.

EPA committed to 2 MGD plant, says Kratzmeyer

ing and treating the water to speed up the purging process would be useless until the sources of TCE and PCE are identified and positively eliminated.

Kratzmeyer emphasized that although a discrete source of the contamination has not been found, that does not mean it is not there."

The latter portion of the hearing Wednesday dealt with recent developments in the EPA's Superfund commitment to building a lake water treatment system to replace the tainted groundwater source.

Kratzmeyer stated that his agency remains committed to building a 2 million gallon per day (MGD) plant. Original plans to build a 3 MGD plant - as requested by the city last summer to meet a 2.4 MGD capacity requirement set by the Michigan Department of Public Health and provide for future growth - were ruined in December, 1984 when the EPA's legal staff in Washington determined that the Superfund could not participate as the lead agency in a project that would provide anything more than a replacement of existing capacity.

While he said that new bids for construction of the intake system were to be opened this week, the EPA "will not move forward with a 2 MGD plant until all parties are in agreement."

At Monday night's City Council meeting, City Manager Michael Wiesner outlined what he saw as the three alternatives available to the city.

1. Pursue EPA's involvement as lead agency in a 3 MGD plant as before.

2. Seek Michigan Department of Natural Resources involvement as lead agency in a 3 MGD plant.

3. Pursue EPA's involvement as lead agency in a 2 MGD plant and arrange other sources for the additional capacity required.

A meeting is reportedly to be convened next week between the city and the other agencies involved to discuss the issue.

Clockwise

Are we on the downside, yet?

by Bob Clock

Do you have the feeling that winter has finally had it's fling — and from here on in we will slide right into summer, with one sunny day trailing another?

I do.

But when it comes to the weather I'm usually wrong.

However, there was something very satisfying about last week's blizzard, which was accompanied by the sure knowledge that after a very humdrum winter we had finally hit bottom with a resounding thump.

Things simply had to get better because they couldn't get any worse. When you have to move a couple of tons of snow a couple of times a day just to get your car in and out of your driveway, winter has arrived in earnest.

The problem now is that we have run out of places to stack snow, if we should get any more. The human body can only throw shovelsful of snow so high and so far for so long before the muscles rebel.

THE LONG-RANGE answer of course is to invest in a snow-blower. Or arrange to move to a more agreeable climate during January and February, as our snowbirds do. Florida is probably the most popular destination, followed by Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and southern California.

I think one of the islands in the Caribbean would be nice, maybe Jamaica with its sugar-sand beaches, towering mountains, tropical rain forests, quaint villages and modern pink-and-white cities like Kingston.

But before you leave, you had better check your porch roof and the roofs of outbuildings. Heavy accumulations of snow have a way of bringing them down, particularly if the snow becomes saturated with rain — which is included in some of the forecasts for this week.

FIFTY MEMBERS of Barnard Grange turned back the clock Saturday afternoon when they boarded three horse-drawn sleighs for a nostalgic ride over Marion Township's snow-clad trails.

The snow in the woods was so deep — three feet on the level — that the teamsters opened the trail the night before with a snow blower, in order to take some of the burden off the horses.

The route took the riders past snow and ice-covered Skinner Lake — a fairly large body of water that must be almost inaccessible to conventional wheeled vehicles even in fine weather.

Grange master Bill Stevens said the route followed ancient trails blazed a century ago by Marion Township's first farm families and loggers. He says you can tell when you're on such a road because it runs around the hills rather than over them.

After the ride, a cauldron of steaming chili waited back at the Grange hall and Jasper and His Tag-alongs played for dancing.

All in all it was a very nice way to spend a Saturday afternoon in February.

Fear of nuclear war draws White House response

When Charlevoix Elementary School second grader Christina Hahn, 8, heard discussions about nuclear war at school, she was confused. She went home and asked her mother about nuclear war and was told about "the boms". Her mother suggested she write President Reagan if she was concerned. That is just what she did. Her letter is shown below left. To her surprise, weeks later a response from the White House arrived. It is shown below right.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

February 11, 1985

Dear Christina:

Thank you for writing me about your concerns. I understand and share your desire for world peace. As I have said many times, the greatest challenge of our time is to reduce the risk of nuclear war by reducing the levels of nuclear arms. We all realize that a nuclear war cannot be won and must never be fought.

In this second Administration, we will continue our commitment to peace with freedom and our search for ways in which we can make that peace more secure. I am convinced that through negotiations and a strong defense we can ensure that future generations of Americans will live at peace with all their neighbors around the globe. God bless you.

Sincerely,

Ronald Reagan

Yes, today's youth will be God's mountain-movers of tomorrow."

Building permits down in January

The snow and cold of January apparently was not conducive to planning future construction projects.

The Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection issued only 17 permits during the month. However, one permit was for six condominium units at Hemingway Pointe, estimated to cost $332,792 not including plumbing, heating, electrical work, or price of land. The only other permit for a dwelling issued during the month was for a new house in Boyne Valley Township.

In addition, eight permits were issued for additions to or remodeling of houses, two were issued for additions to or remodeling of commercial properties, three were issued for residential outbuildings, and two were issued for mobile homes.

Seek applicants for Rural Electric Youth Days

Area high school students will learn about farm and consumer cooperatives at Michigan Rural Electric Youth Days '85 to be held April 25th and 26th, 1985 at the 4-H Kettunen Center, Tustin. This fourth annual event is sponsored by Top O' Michigan Rural Electric Cooperative, along with the other rural electric co-ops in the state.

Three (3) students from each rural electric cooperative will be selected to attend Rural Electric Youth Days '85.

Tom Hanna, General Manager of Top O' Michigan in Boyne City said students will be selected on the basis of their interest in cooperatives, their commitment to rural life, and their leadership potential.

Interested students whose parents are members of the rural electric cooperative, should write a letter to the co-op expressing their desire to attend Rural Electric Youth Days '85. The deadline for letters is March 15, 1985.

"The 1985 Youth Days program will focus special attention on the 50th anniversary of rural electrification," Hanna said.

Chosen students will learn from a variety of activities and speakers about all types of cooperatives, especially rural electric cooperatives. They will also take part in mock board meetings.

Guest virtuoso Miss Artman-Knific is a violin instructor at the Interlochen Arts Academy and also maintains an active performing career. She will be accompanied by pianist Barbara Gross of the Cleveland Institute of Music.

Also rescheduled is the violin masterclass with Miss Artman-Knific. It will now be offered Saturday, March 16 at 3 p.m. at the Petoskey McCune Arts Center. Two groups offer Hayes Twp. aid in suit

At least two environmentalist groups have come to the aid of Hayes Township in the suit filed against them by Fox & Associates, a land development company.

Fox is suing Hayes Township because of the Township's refusal to issue a zoning permit to Fox for a housing development on the former Camp Charlevoix property on Oyster Bay. The denial was made on the basis that the development plans do not comply with Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance regulations.

The Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club last week announced that its members had unanimously voted to support Hayes Township because "The protection, use, and proper development of Lake Charlevoix is of the utmost concern to our club, which is seated, in Hayes Township."

The Rod and Gun Club is also trying to enlist the help of Michigan United Conservation Clubs in the cause of Hayes Township, noting that "M.U.C.C. Headquarters has the legal expertise to be of great assistance to the Hayes Township Board in this fight." The Rod and Gun Club is a member of M.U.C.C.

Also last week, the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council Board of Directors voted unanimously to support Hayes Township in the lawsuit.

"This is a landmark case," stated Council Vice-Predsident John Young. "The ability of townships throughout Michigan to regulate waterfront development and protect water quality will be determined by the outcome of this suit."

The Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance restricts waterfront development and lake access to one housing unit and one boat per 100 feet. Last year, Fox sought a variance to the Ordinance to allow him to build 168 condominium units and a marina on the 338 acres and 2,800 feet of shoreline.

In the lawsuit, Fox claims he has been denied riparian rights to Lake Charlevoix and, in effect, his civil rights have been violated.

Big Rock nuclear plant wins company safety award

The Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant has received the "President's Award" from Consumers Power Company for its outstanding safety record during 1984. The award is given annually to recognize those operating units within the company which have achieved the best safety record during the year.

Last year, Big Rock received the "Award of Merit" from the National Safety Council because of its outstanding long-term safety record. At that time, the plant had operated since August 1977 - more than six years - without a recordable injury serious enough to cause an employee to miss a day's work. That record now extends to more than seven years.

During 1984, there were no recordable injuries at the plant serious enough to require more than simple first aid.

"Safety is of paramount concern in our business," said David P. Hoffman, plant superintendent. "And the awards we have received are evidence that we have been successful in making Big Rock Point one of the safest work places in the nation."

Approximately 200 people are employed at the nuclear plant located five miles north of Charlevoix on Lake Michigan.

SYNOPSIS OF MINUTES

February 4, 1985

Regular Meeting called to order at 7:30 P.M.

All the members of the Board were present for the meeting.

Watched a film presentation on wetlands.

Motion was approved to go into executive session with Township Attorney, William McTaggart. Also invited to sit in on the session, Planning Commission Chairman, Sara Gay Dammann. Executive session began at 8:20 P.M. The lawsuit brought against the Township by William Fox, Fox Corporation, was discussed. The Board elected to fight the lawsuit and to support the Hayes Township Zoning Ordinance strenuously. The Regular Meeting reconvened at 9:45 P.M.

Approved a motion to grant Lexalite International Corporation a tax abatement under Act 198 of 1974 for the $3,000,000 for improvements and six new machines.

Approved a Motion to accept the 1984-1985 Fire Protection and Ambulance Service Contracts with the City of Charlevoix.

Approved a Motion to notify the City of Charlevoix that the Township Board wishes to negotiate the 1985-1986 Fire Protection Contract. The Board feels that basing the rate on the Township's SEV is unfair because of the affect that Consumers Power Company has on the Township's tax base.

Discussed possible road improvement projects for 1985. Tabled any decisions until after the 1985-1986 Budget is prepared.

Motion approved to purchase and erect road signs for Township roads that need signs.

Motion approved to establish a Cemetery Committee and a Recreation Committee.

Reiterated that the township has no jurisdiction over any road or alley in Hayes Township. The Charlevoix County Road Commission does not recognize as public any alley or unopened road.

Will ask for a grant through the Soil Erosion Service to improve the end of Townline Road to Lake Michigan.

Motion approved to accept the Clerk's minutes of the January Regular and January Special meetings.

Motion approved to pay the bills. Total Bills $45,349.89.

Leah Green reported on the first meeting of the Lake Charlevoix Commission.

Charlevoix On Film

Pat and Matthew Gibbons were not daunted by the massive drifts outside their father's law office as they shoveled this trench to the door.

The sound of heavy equipment was constant last week as road crews struggled to keep up with the growing accumulations.

Heavy winds that accompanied last week's two and a half feet of snow created massive drifts on many outlying roads.

While city life was thrown into chaos by last week's storms, the snowfall gave this pastoral woodland scene an attractive mantle of white.

Condos coming of age at 17

Just over 17 years ago the first condominium project was completed in Charlevoix - The Wharf with 12 units. It was soon followed in 1974 by La Croft, The Dunes and Le Harve, with a total of another 114 units, and the debates began.

Some welcomed the new era, some decried the changing nature of the once "picturesque" fishing village by the lake. The debate continues, with advocates for and against condominiums, arguing a range of issues including aesthetics and economic impact.

Today there are some 312 condominium units completed or near completion within the city limits of Charlevoix. The condominium projects themselves occupy less than a total of 20 acres, house some 600 people mostly on a seasonal basis and account for over $500,000 in annual revenues paid directly to the city in the form of property taxes, and have produced a major impact on the total economy of the community.

The ramifications of the impact of 600 or more people visiting Charlevoix on a seasonal basis is hard to gauge, but downtown merchants have some definite feelings.

"We welcome the condominium owners," says Jeannine Wallace of the Shop of the Gulls. "The condominium owners are different from cottage owners because they can use their condos year round. That fact alone has helped us stay open year round.

"Condominiums have been a real help to Charlevoix's economy in general," the retail store owner continues. "Usually second home owners have money to spend. They come when cottagers and boaters are not here. I hate to think what we'd do without them."

At Mettlers of Charlevoix, Andrea Bogart says "They are practically our life blood and I know the condo owners are extremely important to other businesses. I have been in Charlevoix 120 years and I have seen positive changes as condominium units were sold."

Mrs. Bogart added, "I would like to see more activities that would attract condo owners to Charlevoix in the winter."

At Ski and Shore Real Estate Company, Suzi Reis, who has been involved in the development and sale of many condominium projects in town, and who is a year round condo dweller herself, is naturally enthusiastic about the impact of condominiums on Charlevoix.

"All these people don't just travel to their condominiums in Charlevoix, they are widely travelled. And when they travel they talk about the places they love, including Charlevoix.

"Recently we sold two units to lawyers from St. Louis who had heard about Charlevoix from other condominium owners. It's the word-of-mouth advertising that does so much good for Charlevoix," the realtor and unabashed Charlevoix booster states.

A life-long Charlevoix resident Ms. Reis feels there have been positive social changes as result of the development of condominiums.

"As the condominiums have been built and maintained there has been additional employment op-

Proposed budget drops .1 mill

by DAVE KNIGHT

For the second year in a row, the City of Charlevoix will lower slightly the mill rate on city property taxes if a proposed budget presented to City Council last week is approved.

The budget will be considered for final approval following a public hearing at 7 p.m. March 4.

City Manager Michael Wiesner, in his first budget document for Charlevoix since becoming city manager last October, proposes a total expense for fiscal year 1985-86 of $5,250,445. ~~This would be an~~ increase of .77 percent over the 1984-85 budget figure of $5,210,272. With no major construction items planned, Wiesner cited fuel cost increases in the electric fund - which accounts for 47.3 percent of the city's total expenses - as the sole reason for the budget increase. Without fuel cost adjustments, noted Wiesner, the budget would be 2.7 percent lower than last year.

Under Wiesner's proposal, the current mill rate of 13.7 would be lowered by .1 mills to 13.6 which includes 10.6 operational mills and 3.0 mills for debt retirement. The 13.6 mills would generate an estimated $852,700 in revenue for the city.

In a memorandum accompanying the budget figures, Wiesner characterized the proposal as "a business as usual budget with a major emphasis on planning." He pointed out that while there are no large construction items budgeted for streets or utilities, a major planning effort will begin this year toward developing master improvement plans for the city's water and sewer systems and city sidewalks.

Wiesner earmarked $16,000 for aerial maps of the city which will be used as base maps to inventory existing sewer and water lines. He plans to use survey crews comprised of part-time high school and college students to work on the inventory this summer and fall and then use their data in the formation of a master plan.

Said Wiesner, "This type of approach will guide us to better maintain our infrastructure and further allow us to make good engineering decisions in any additions or modification to our infrastructure."

Other major expense items in the budget proposal include $15,300 for outfitting the new fire truck set to arrive this spring ($36,000 has already been reserved for this expense) and $45,000 to create a tax appeal reserve. Wiesner proposes to also create for the first time a contingency account in the general fund of $41,000, or 4.3 percent of the general fund, as well as capital improvement accounts in the electric and water funds.

At a February 20 budget planning session with city council members, there was speculation about the impact of trichloroethylene (TCE) contamination of city water on an unexpected drop in water usage in fiscal 1984-85. Water sales for the year now ending amounted to about $192,200 while an anticipated revenue of $223,866 had been budgeted. The coming year's budget figure for water sales is $194,200.

No major personnel changes are proposed other than the reinstatement of a city clerk's position. The post had been combined with the city treasurer but; following the appointment of a new clerk earlier this year, now will be seperate again.

If approved March 4, the fiscal 1985-86 budget will take effect April 1.

Accord reached on mayoral office

Charlevoix mayor Hal Hill received approval from City Council last week to use the meeting chamber on the second floor of city hall to meet with his constituents.

Hill had requested an office in city hall and, meeting at a retreat Wednesday, council reached a compromise with Hill under which he will be able to use the phone, filing cabinet, conference table and other facilities in the former council chamber.

Council specified, however, that Hill not be allowed to have regular office hours and that contact with city officials and employees be made through the city manager's office.

The Wharf: it started it all.

To condominium designer Begrow, the future lies in condo-hotels - and it is bright

by DAVE KNIGHT

While condominium residences have long been popular in the Charlevoix area, it is the condo hotel concept that is enjoying the most significant boom right now - and which holds the greatest economic promise for the community.

This outlook comes from no less an expert than the designer of 500 existing condominium units in Northwest Michigan and twice that number on the drawing board right now.

Since moving his architectural practice to Charlevoix from Birmingham in the 1960s, H. Jack Begrow has probably been responsible for more condominium designs in the region than all other firms or individuals put together. He introduced Charlevoix to the condo with his design for the Wharf in 1967 and since then has virtually specialized in condominium development, ranging from huge projects like Shanty Creek with hundreds of units to the recently completed 23-unit Weathervane Terrace expansion.

Over his experience of almost two decades, Begrow has seen the peaks and valleys of condominium growth in the area. He remembers well the "Slump of '74" when it seemed the bottom had fallen out of the condo movement after a period of frantic growth that saw such major projects as LaCroft, Le Harve and The Dunes spring up.

"The crunch was a combination of two things," said Begrow, "First, everyone was getting into the action at the same time and, second, from an economic standpoint in general, it was a bad time."

But bad times for condos are a thing of the past, assures Begrow. In his annual condominium review for Emmet, Antrim and Charlevoix Counties, he projects sales of 475 units in the three-county market in calendar year 1985.

Most of that growth, says Begrow, will be in condominium-owned resort hotels and motels. He notes that in just the past couple years since the concept caught on in this area, 160 condo hotel units have been built, another 600 are either ready for construction or are being built and 700 more are in various planning stages.

In Charlevoix, the Weathervane Terrace pioneered the condo hotel concept in which units are individually owned but managed and rented out as hotel rooms. Recently the Lodge, Charlevoix's other major hotel facility, converted to the condominimu form of ownersh[illegible]

Begrow alone has co[illegible]ted 150 units and has some 1,000 on his drawing boards. The condo form of ownership sults hotel and motel operations well in Northern

Chamber Chatter

As heard by the Chamber-Maid...

THE CHAMBER IS YOU!

A Chamber of Commerce has been defined as "people, working together to solve the economic and socio-economic problems of the community in order to make their community a better place to live and make a living."

THE CHAMBER IS YOU!

At a recent retreat, President Gary Gleason led the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors to a decisive turning point in the direction the Chamber will take in 1985.

Realizing that Commercial-Industrial retention and expansion are of grave importance to the future of Charlevoix, (and YOU who live here) and realizing how many local businesses have, in fact, come into Charlevoix "via Round Lake" the Chamber will be tapping the "second home" and "resort" resource that is already well established. Rather than focusing primarily on the "transient tourists" as in the past, the emphasis will also be on the established summer trade.

Better visability and communication with you and the Chamber is also a major 1985 priority. This weekly news column, along with a monthly Chamber-Gram will be tools to provide better communication.

THE CHAMBER NEEDS YOU! because
THE CHAMBER IS YOU!

Council agrees to buy new sweeper; will seek legal fees from Martin

Charlevoix will have a new street sweeper on the job this season following action by City Council at its regular meeting February 18.

Council voted 4-2 to purchase a 1984 FMC Vanguard 3000 D sweeper from Miller Equipment in Grand Rapids. Miller was the low bidder of three dealers submitting bids including Bell Equipment of Grand Rapids and Schamber Inc. of Muskegon Heights.

City Manager Michael Wiesner had first recommended replacement of the city's 1974 sweeper at a February 4 council session but council opted then to further study the feasibility of rebuilding the existing sweeper before committing to the purchase of a new model.

Council members Robert Timms and F. Earl Muma voted against buying a new sweeper, maintaining that the existing sweeper could be adequately repaired for continued use.

In another matter, council voted unanimously to seek up to $12,000 in attorney's fees from Charlevoix police officer Patrick Martin. Martin sued the city for $750,000 (including $500,000 for himself and $250,000 for his wife) following what he claimed was a wrongful firing from his position in 1980.

The suit was dismissed February 6 in federal district court and, according to City Attorney Jeffrey VanTreese, the city has a good chance of recovering the costs incurred defending itself.

On the recommendation of VanTreese, council passed a resolution authorizing the city attorney to file a motion in federal district court seeking an award of actual attorney's fees "on the basis that (Martin's) complaint was frivolous, unreasonable and without foundation."

In other action, council:

-Authorized the city attorney to seek a declaratory judgement in Charlevoix County Circuit Court determining whether deed restrictions placed by the city in [illegible] on a northside property are still binding to the present owner of the property, Jack Malpeli. If the restrictions, which prevent no more than two residential structures from being built on the property, are found by the court to be still effective, a determination is also being sought as to whether they can be lifted without a vote of the people.

-Approved a site plan presented by the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix for a 52' by 28' addition to the church as recommended by the City Planning Commission.

-Agreed to participate with ten other cities in a Michigan Public Power Agency joint power supply study with a cost to Charlevoix of $9,750. Projected savings to the city as a result of the study are estimated to be in excess of $5 million over a 19-year period.

-Approved a fire and ambulance service agreement with Hayes Township.

-Set a March 4 public hearing for changes to the city ordinance on parking requirements.

Lake plan committee to address water quality

by PEG OHLE

The quality of water in Lake Charlevoix will be the first area of study by the newly-formed Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee.

Following much discussion at its first regular meeting last week, the Committee decided to invite three or four water quality experts to its March meeting. They will be asked what kind of information is presently available about the lake, whether or not it is valid, what further information is needed for a comprehensive study, and how to go about getting it.

County Planner Larry Sullivan advised the Committee that the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) plans to make a water quality study of the lake this summer, which may provide the Committee with all the information it needs. Also, the DNR might make an effort to acquire special information needed by the Committee if advised before the summer study is undertaken.

An estimate from a private environmental study group indicated that the cost of such a study could run up to $100,000 if done by a private organization.

The April meeting of the Committee will be devoted to a study of soils and wetlands as they pertain to development. The County Soil Survey prepared by the Planning Department will provide a basis for this study.

The May meeting will be taken up with a discussion of an "attitude survey" – a survey of local people to learn how they feel about Lake Charlevoix. Sullivan suggested that a survey expert from one of the universities might be invited to this meeting to help formulate questions to make it a valid survey. Also, it must be decided exactly who will receive the survey forms – residents, property owners, boat owners, beach-goers? etc.

As indicated above, meetings of the Committee for the first several months will be devoted to educating the Committee about features of the lake and the land surrounding it. Not yet on the calendar are such important features as fisheries, along with spawning grounds, salmon runs, pollution from the Jordan River Fish Hatchery, and many other related matters.

The Lake Charlevoix Management Advisory Committee was formed last fall after many problems involving the lake and surrounding areas were brought to the public's attention. Most of the problems involved housing developments and marinas and speculation about how they would affect water quality and fish life, and create crowding of the lake surface with watercraft.

The Committee started its work with a fund of $12,500. The Planning Department has applied for a grant from the Coastal Managemednt Division of the DNR, and expects other funds will be available from public sources as needed.

Members of the Committee were appointed by the County Planning Commission from a list of people representing government bodies of the seven townships and three cities bordering Lake Charlevoix, environmental groops, and housing developers.

Dr. John Hall, a director of the Lake Charlevoix Associatrion, is serving as temporary chairman of the Committee.

CHS Band rates a "I"

The Charlevoix Symphonic Band, directed by Terry Isenbarger, won a first division rating in the District II Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association festival at Petoskey Saturday.

One of 18 bands in the festival, the band received two I's and a II in concert and a I in sight reading to receive the top rating. This qualifies the band to advance to state competition lated in the spring, Isenbarger said.

Selections played by the band were "Brighton Beach March" by Latham, "If Thou Be Near" by Bach and "Festa" by DelBorgo.

Among the area bands entered, the Petoskey Symphonic, Boyne City, Gaylord and Harbor Springs bands received the coveted I rating. Receiving II's were the Petoskey Concert, Onaway, East Jordan and Rogers City bands.

Knight on the Town

Court memories

by Dave Knight

Looking through some of the vintage basketball team photos we're featuring in a special section this week stirred memories of my own.

I played ball through junior year but switched to reporting games for the local paper as a senior.

It paid better.

But I remember distinctly those cold, dark winter nights in my home town when practice for the freshman team was held in the elementary school gym several blocks from the high school.

A bus would tote us down there but we were on our own after practice. Fresh out of the shower, our hair would freeze into a neatly parted, icy helmet on the walk home.

Our coach that year was the head football coach and a semi-pro football player himself. He was into muscle building long before it became fashionable and tried mightily to preach his spartan school of conditioning to a gangly group of ninth grade cagers.

In hindsight, he probably had our best interests in mind. But at the time, he was considered by most of us to be a sadistical tyrant who'd learned his craft at Auschwitz.

Windsprints, line drills, jumping drills, weight training...when, we wondered, would we ever get around to playing basketball?

I have to chuckle when I recall some of the misfits who got as far as ninth grade still thinking they were pretty good. Until high school, coaches are - or should be - charitable to young players. I don't think anyone under thirteen or fourteen should be told they play ball like someone's great aunt.

When the game gets more serious, however, there is sifting and winnowing to be done and much of that happens in the freshman year.

Fewer and fewer players would make each succeeding cut and for those who missed, the realization that life has its tough breaks was sometimes a rude lesson.

I still know plenty of those guys who were cut. In the end, not making the freshman basketball did not seem to scar their lives indelibly.

In fact, I'm quite sure they became a little more mature through the whole process.

Clockwise

A bod ideo

by Bob Clock

I have been acquainted with Charlevoix city councils for almost 20 years and have never known them to do anything mean or spiteful.

That is why the council's decision last week to seek legal fees from Patrolman Pat Martin comes as such a surprise.

In legal circles such a move might be considered "smart," "savvy" or "slick," but I don't think members of the council — as individuals —are all that interested in running Pat Martin into the ground.

I, for one, would be relieved if the council rescinded its order to City Attorney Jeffery VanTreese to seek reimbursement for legal expenses from Martin, estimated by VanTreese to run as high as $12,000.

IN CASE YOU'VE been out of town, Martin was discharged as a city police officer five years ago after an altercation with his superiors. He was reinstated in 1981 after submitting to physical and psychiatric evaluation as they demanded.

The humiliation was frightful.

Finally in March, 1983, Martin and his wife Nora couldn't stand it any longer. They sued the city and a number of city officials, including Police Chief Jack Mol, former City Manager James Brinker (now city treasurer) and the then mayor and council. Martin sought $500,000 for wrongful dismissal, violation of rights, loss of pension benefits and age discrimination. His wife asked $250,000 for loss of consortium.

The trial started last May in U.S. District Court in Grand Traverse County and after several delays concluded in Kalkaska County in late September.

Three weeks ago, Judge Wendell A. Miles dismissed Martin's charges against the city and the city officials.

Miles said be didn't feel any of Martin's constitutional or statutory rights had been violated. He said the actions were within the discretion of the city officials involved.

However he wrote: "Quite candidly, the Court has great sympathy for Martin because of the embarrassment, humiliation and distress which he has had to endure stemming from this unfortunate affair.

"None of the defendants acted unreasonably or in bad faith...although they could have acted with more aplomb," he added.

If Judge Miles actually feels that Martin was embarrassed, humiliated and distressed by the city, I doubt he will order him to pay legal fees.

But how much better it would be for the council to withdrew its request for restitution before it reaches Judge Mile's desk.

In my book, council's decision to go after Martin was made on very poor advice.

The Pat Martin affair is over. It is high time it were buried and forgotten.

Furthermore, Martin is too fine a police office to be badgered any longer by the city.

Sidewalks appear; Spring can't be long

by PEG OHLE

It was good last Friday to walk down Bridge Street and do some long-postponed shopping. Most of the snow and ice had melted from the sidewalk and the light wind had just a touch of promise in it.

The shops that have been open all winter seemed to be awakening in anticipation of better sales, although those that are closed put on a grumpy appearance with papered window panes and unshoveled entryways.

On a day like this, it was easy to wonder why we had waited so long to do this shopping, but a quick flashback to zero temperatures with whirling snow and biting winds provided the answer. This winter we had done just what it was necessary to do. Other things could, and did, wait.

The end of winter, which we have looked forward to since last December, is still about six weeks away, but it's kind of like coming to the end of a long tunnel; we can see daylight 'way down there.

Here we are – still wishing for time to pass, wishing our time away. But we're going to be more positive now. We're going to plant some daffodil bulbs in a dish of water and watch them grow; we're going to keep our eyes open for the homecoming robins; we're going to look for the first soft touch of yellow on the willow trees; we're going to study the seed catalogs; and we're going to take off our snow boots.

Condos contribute to economy...

portunities," she begins. "As the local economy has reflected the money being spent, new businesses have opened, more young professional people have moved to the community. The schools are even reflecting the impact of the growing population, and I don't think young people feel they have to leave Charlevoix to make something of themselves as most did when I was growing up."

An examination of the property tax revenues - $500,000 annually - from 322 condominium units on less than 20 acres in the city limits shows that each unit is responsible for approximately $1,600 in property taxes. Twenty acres of land is producing that $500,000 or more $25,00 annually per acre. No other acreage is taxed so highly.

"The fact that all the $500,000 goes directly to Charlevoix city and county coffers is not always understood," Ms. Reis points out. "Many people mistakenly think some of our property tax money goes downstate. I discussed this with Joan Blanchard, Charlevoix County Assessor, who told me, every cent is spent here, either within the city or county or for our schools."

"We try to explain this to people all the time," says Anah Potter, Charlevoix County Treasurer. "Nothing of the property tax goes to the state. All property tax revenues are spent in the city, county, township, the schools, the intermediate school district and some to the transit authority."

Information for the above was furnished by the Ski & Shore Charlevoix real estate office.

Jock Begrow...

Michigan, says Begrow, where occupancy rates can be seasonally mercurial. In the summer and ski seasons, occupancy is never a problem but lack of business in the months between can pull the annual occupancy rate for a typical hotel or motel operation down to the unprofitable 30 to 50 percent range.

In the case of condo hotel units, however, Begrow points to a "pyramid approach" as the key to success. In this approach, each buyer becomes a promoter of his project, explains Begrow; and usually finds five to ten additional renters - just enough of a boost to sometimes make the difference between a profitable operation and a loser.

More often, the profits are substantial, he says. As an example, Begrow cites Hilton Shanty Creek which has an occupancy rate of 140 days a year and, for some three unit owners, is generating a gross revenue of up to $18,000 a year.

Not only do condo hotels hold promise for their investors, says Begrow, they also brighten the economic future for the entire area.

"This concept is going to have a much bigger impact than the residential condos," he said, "Our surveys show that our market area stretches from points as distant as Des Moines, Louisville, St. Louis and Cleveland. Within this area, we figure there are at least one millioo families with the means to purchase 'their little piece of the North' in the prime area between Traverse City and Harbor Springs."

It is this upscale, relatively wealthy market segment that Begrow and others are aiming for. Begrow, for one, sees a return to the heady days of Charlevoix's early resort period starting around the turn of the century when the well-to-do flocked by steamship and railroad to their vacation paradise.

Instead of cottages, however, the new resorters will be investing in coodo hotel units, says Begrow. The price of owning and maintaining a private lakeshore property has become prohibitively expensive and bothersome for the typical family, he said.

"With the condo hotel unit, the individual has a nice vacation spot and pride of ownership but fewer worries," said Begrow, "It's like buying a beautiful little yacht."

Letters from readers:

To the Editor:

The recent litigation filed by Fox Associates versus Hayes Township will be of landmark importance because of the implications the outcome will have on the ecology of Lake Charlevoix and many other beautiful lakes in Northern Michigan.

The heart of the issue in dispute relates to the respective rights of the reparian property owner versus the rights of the public. (The public "owns" the lake, the reparian property owner owns that land contiguous to and fronting on the lake). As both parties have "rights" so does each likewise have responsibilities. One of these responsibilities is simply that neither the reparian owner or the public utilize his land on the lake itself in such a manner as to cause ecological and limnological damage to the lake, or to the property of the reparian owner. Accordingly for Messrs. Pointner and Litzenburger, Attorneys for the Plaintiff Fox; to stipulate that the pending litigation does not involve environmental and ecological issues is "unacceptable nonsense and legal puffery!"

High density, condominiums on a "limnologically fragile" lake, particularly Lake Charlevoix whose shoreline has already been identified as consisting of 80 percent wetlands, will very definitely impact on the lakes ecology: the fishing habitats, utrifisation of the lake and plant and wildlife in the area. These are facts which any lake scientist will corraborate.

It is for this reason that Watch, Inc. will join with the many other environmental, federal and state organizations, in whole-heartedly supporting Hayes Township. We hereby committ our total financial, political and human resources to this fought!

Development of Charlevoix County is inevitable, welcome and endorsed by Watch, Inc. Such development should be planned sensible development with "long term" benefits to the citizenry of the area instead of "quick profits" to developers insensitive to the negative environmental impact their creations produce. This type developer is usually "long gone" when the problems they have "seeded" begin to show up.

15,396 residents, 75 percent of the countys's 20,000 total population live in the ten townships and cities fronting on Lake Charlevoix. This beautiful lake is the most precious and valuable natural resource you have. It stimulates the economical lifeblood of your community and its environmental ambience is such that in 1984, Charlevoix County was selected as one of the 100 most beautiful counties in the United States.

Charlevoix residents are aware that a Lake Charlevoix Management Committee was recently appointed to develop a master plan for the future development of the lake. The people serving on this committee are an intelligent, dedicated group of local area residents, representing the county and each of the ten cities and townships fronting on the lake. They are your neighbors and friends and represent your local best interests. These people are not "anti development" and in their future deliberations will produce recommendations and procedures which will have positive and long term benefits to the future of Lake Charlevoix and the county.

Watch, Inc. congratulates these dedicated people who serve you. We urge your support of this committee. We stand ready to assist this committee in any manner which is requested and which will be helpful to them and the people of Charlevoix.

Howard F. Nelson
President
Watch, Inc.

Vote for bon

To the Editor:

A congressional ban on production of MX missiles expires on March 1 and the administration must request Congress to release funds for resumption of new MX missile production. Those who oppose MX production should write to their Congressmen, now, to vote against funding for this missile which threatens the security of our own nation as much as it threatens the Soviet Union.

Another important issue that will be before congress in the first two weeks of March is the moratorium on testing ASAT (anti-satellite) weapons. Congress can extend this moratorium if it acts within 15 days after the President submits his report justifying the testing. Let your Congressmen know how you feel about testing in outer space.

A third important vote expected sometime after Feb. 28, is on resuming aid to the 'contras', (the guerrillas fighting to overthrow the government of Nicaragua). Both the House and Senate must vote on this, so if you oppose overt or covert military aid to the cootras, it is important to let your senators and representative know now.

Write to: Senator Carl Levin, United States Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510; Senator Donald Riegle, United States Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510; Representative Bob Davis, United States House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

During the next few weeks the public's voice must be head if we hope to steer our country away from pursuing a disastrous and extremely expensive military and foreign policy.

Margaret Duerr

Manpower Consortium's goal is to make people more employable

by PEG OHLE

The best thing that can be done for unemployed people is provide them with educational skills so they can find their place in the labor market.

This is the philosophy of the Northwest Michigan Employment and Training Consortium, a public-private partnership made up of the Administrative Board of the Job Training Partnership and the Private Industry Council, which has been in opertion for slightly more than a year.

The Consortium was formed following the passage of the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA), which replaced the Comprehensive Training Employment and Training Act (CETA), well-known in this area for its program of placing unemployed people in public service jobs and paying their wages.

During the first nine months of JTPA operation, from October 1, 1983 through June 30, 1984, 142 residents of Charlevoix County took advantage of one or more of its programs. The total number of participants in the 10-county northwsest Michigan area was 1,683.

The JTPA program has a broader base than did CETA. It consists of four major activities, each one of which is designed to provide a certain type of training for certain individuals:

1. The on-the-job training program places people in a job in either private industry or public service. Trainees are engaged in productive work while learning the skills necessary for performing their jobs. Employers are reimbursed up to 50 percent of the trainee's wages during the training period.

2. The classroom training program places people in a school. It is designed to develop the technical skills, knowledge, and credentials required to get and keep a job in the trainee's chosen job field.

3. The youth program consists of three services for in-school or drop-out young people, ages 14 to 21. The first, School to Work Transition, provides services to help graduating seniors find employment. The second, Pre-Employment Skills, trains in-school young people to identify their career interests and aptitudes, and to learn about the world of work.

The third, Education for Employment, is for drop-outs and designed to help them receive the basic education necessary to become employable.

4. The employability development service program teaches participants how to look for jobs, keep them, and succeed in the labor market. This training includes such techniques as how to decide the type of job one wants, how to transfer skills from one job to another, and how to identify job possibilities.

Also included are techniques in contacting the proper persons for certain jobs, "selling" oneself effectively, understanding the job market, developing positive work habits, and upgrading basic communication skills.

In an effort to train local people for jobs that are available in northwest Michigan, training programs are set up by combining labor market information with individual participants' interests, aptitudes, and past experience. Occupations in which people have been trained range from health care, clerical, food service, and computer technology to diesel engines, aviation maintenance, and engineering, a total of over 60 different fields.

While the above-mentioned programs were set up under guidelines of the JTPA, the Private Industry Council has been, and remains, responsible for creating and implementing all job training programs and for providing policy guidance and program oversight.

The Council is made up of 21 northwest Michigan business people, educators, social service workers, labor representatives, and vocational rehabilitation people. Of these, 13 represent the private business sector, giving them a key role in the job training programs and assisting northwest Michigan in its economic development.

East Jordan, Grayling steamrolled by Rayders

By ULF EVALDSSON

Visiting East Jordan last Tuesday, the Red Rayders easily made up for their 55-53 loss to Gaylord two weeks ago. East Jordan didn't come close to repeating Gaylord's feat, but had to accept the Rayders' easy 87-54 win with 25-13, 45-23 and 67-41 at the quarters. And when Rayders were hosted by Grayling, Friday night, they really hit their stride, beating the Vikings 94-62 in another fast moving game.

Starting out Tuesday's game, the Rayders grabbed hold of the lead right from the beginning, producing an 8-4 lead in the middle of the first quarter. Mike Goebel and Scot Hart, the two top scorers for the Red Devils, helped East Jordan to make the score 11-9, and when Aaron Spence scored for the Devils, the scoreboard showed 15-13. But this was the closest the Devils would get to the lead, because before it was time to start the second stanza, Rayders had brought it 25-13 through baskets by Doug Sloan and Brent Cole. Rayders continued to reign on the floor, bringing it to 37-14 in the beginning of the following quarter. Goebel, Spence and Gary Coolman eased the pain a little bit through some baskets, but Sloan, Cole, Jody Putman and Sean Ferguson kept on pouring in buckets for the Rayders, making it 45-23 at halftime.

Beginning the second half, Cole, Ferguson and Putman extended the lead 53-27 in no time, and hallway into the third quarter, Ferguson and Cole brought it 59-31. Even if the teams shared the baskets pretty well in the second half, East Jordan had fallen too far behind, and there wasn't anything they could do about the better Rayders, cruising in the comfortable lead. Coolman helped his team to make the score 61-37, but Cole responded and poured in another three field goals, which meant 67-39, following Goebel's two points. In the final quarter, Cole emerged again and made it 69-42, and even if Hart and Coolman canned two field goals for the Devils, Sloan made sure to keep Rayders' distance, bringing it to 74-46. Goebel made it 74-50, but soon Putman and Sloan had regained the distance by making it 80-50 in the last minutes. Packy LaBlance left the bench and helped Rayders to a 85-54 lead, before Marc Himebauch brought it to 87-54, setting the final score.

East Jordan caused lots of turnovers, which is one of the reasons for the easy win. Pacing the score for the Rayders, Cole had 30 points, Sloan 17, Ferguson 16, Putman 11, LaBlance six, Pearl four, Syvertsen two and Himebauch two. Best scorers for the Devils were Goebel, 26 and Hart with 15 points.

Friday's game in Grayling became a real blow-out for the Rayders, who controlled every inch of the floor, winning 94-62 with 15-13, 46-22 and 71-35 at the quarters. The Vikings still had some kind of contact with the Rayders in the first quarter, but the longer they moved into the game, the longer grew the distance between the teams, and at the end, Grayling were too far behind to be able to catch up with the superior Charlevoix Rayders.

Mike Lovely and Brad Nightin started out by giving Grayling a 6-3 lead, which was to become a short respite for them though. Pearl showed up and grabbed hold of the lead by bringing it to 13-6, along with Jim Martin, Cole and Putman. Generally, Vikings are very stubborn people, and the ones in Grayling are no exceptions. Nightin came back and along with Jeff Branch, he climed to 13-9 hallway into the first quarter.

And even if Cole extended the lead 15-9, Nighin and Rod Patterson made sure to make it 15-13, ending the first stanza. Opening the second quarter, Jon Nicholas knot the score 15-all, before Cole, Putman and Pearl could jump to a 20-15 lead. Although Nightin and Nicholas brought it to 20-18, the Vikings started to lose their foothold, and Syvertsen, Pearl and Ferguson could increase the lead 26-18 through three field goals. Nicholas poured in a layup, but when Cole turned up again in Grayling's zone, he didn't waste any time to make it 31-20, followed by Ferguson's layup, which gave us the feeling that Rayders were heading for a new victory. With four minutes left of the first half, Rayders really took off and clung to a safe 39-20 lead through baskets by Cole and Putman.

Even when Lovely managed to make 39-22, the Vikings couldn't break Rayders's stride. Martin, Putman and Cole ended the first half by bringing it to 46-22, and now Rayders were on their way to their 17th victory for the season. In the first hall, Grayling's offense usually was sent packing by a solid Rayders defense, and this didn't seem to change much moving into the second half. Beginning the third quarter Cole made it 50-24, before Lovely, Nightin and Nicholas could help the Vikings to 52-29 halfway into the quarter. Putman and Syvertsen increased the distance bringing it to 56-29, and even if Nightin canned another bucket for the Vikings, Rayders went on a new rally surging to a 66-31 lead through six quick points by Sloan and two baskets by Cole. When the score was 68-35, Tim Plagge, Sloan and Joe Hayes finished the third quarter by making it 71-35. Moving into the final quarter Plagge, Hayes and LaBlance extended Rayders' lead 81-40. Now, with five more minutes to play the Vikings put in a higher gear and managed to move from the 81-40 deficit to 82-53, mainly thanks to Nightin and Patterson, who made a good effort especially in the final quarter.

Plagge defended the lead bringing it to 84-53 before Nightin emerged again pouring in a basket. Tim Salmonson and Plagge made it [illegible] and later when Hayes brought it to 90-54, people started to believe that they really were making over 100 points.

Two baskets by Patterson and two by Plagge and Salmonson gave the score [illegible] and in the last remaining seconds the final score, 94-62 was settled and that put Rayders at a 17-1 record so far for the season.

Again sharpshooter Brent Cole ended up as top scorer for the Rayders. Cole had 30 points, Putman had 12, Plagge and Syvertsen [illegible] each, Sloan [illegible], Hayes and Pearl [illegible] apiece, Salmonson four and LaBlance and Martin [illegible]. Nightin paced the score for the Vikings with 25 points.

Rayder wrestlers fail to advance to state meet

The trio of Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers who qualified for regional competition at Montebello schools at Blanchard Saturday did not advance to the state level Coach Greg Bryan reports.

Dan Kelly, wrestling in the 155 weight class, won over David Kendall of Muskegon Catholic in a pin in 2:34 but lost in the semi-finals to a Traverse City St. Francis matman, Kelly Powers who downed him in a pin in 1:46. He had met Powers four time during the regular season and in the district tournament.

In the consolation bracket he lost to Ernie Lotta of Kalkaska in a pin in 5:07.

Chad Thorp (98) and Chris Roberts (105) lost their first two matches and were out of competition.

Bryan said the wrestling was tough at the regional level with some of the competition qualifying for state.

This marks the close of the mat season at the high school level. There are no seniors on the 1984-85 wrestling team.

The middle school program will begin this week.

Students who excel

Chaya Moore finds fulfillment in artistic ways

by ANNE KELLY

Charlevoix High School junior Chaya Moore, is a diminutive, soft-spoken young lady whose sensitivity serves others as well as herself.

Artistically, Chaya has earned recognition for her renderings and designs in metalwork, knitting and batik.

"I'm especially interested in design." Chaya recalls that she's always been drawing or making things. A grandmother who gave her scraps of material from her sewing to create doll's outfits, a class at North central Michigan College and "special arts class" in the elementary school - all encouraged a growing talent and involvement in art.

Some years later, Chaya still finds the art room to be a haven where she feels best about herself. She would describe herself as "kind of a shy person" who "can express myself best in the art room. It's easier for me to excell there than in academic areas."

Chaya participates in volleyball and track and has been a member of French Club and has run cross country. She makes many of her own clothes and hand-made dolls and other gifts for friends and relatives. Being an all-around good citizen is what others admire in her beyond her artistic talent.

"Chaya has done very well for us as a peer group facilitator" conselor Gayle Genett reports. Peer group facilitators are certain 11th and 12th grade volunteers who undergo a 2 or 3 week training period in the fall in order to learn to deal with feelings - their own and those of people around them.

Students in this special guidance program, learn how to become sensitive listeners for the problems and concerns of their fellow students. They also "adopt" a younger student with whom they spend time on a weekly, one-to-one basis.

"I enjoy being a part of this program" Chaya said, and would like to see more boys participating.

"As far as art goes, I know a lot of kids who are scared to take art because they don't think they're good enough in it. But I think they shouldn't give up before they give it a try. You can use art in all aspects of life."

Apparently, Chaya's artistic sensitivity has carried over into all aspects of her own life.

One of Chaya's metalwork pieces, a stained glass lampshade.

School board reviews guidelines for naming honor students

by FRAN MARTIN

Honor student guidelines as compiled by the policy committee of the Charlevoix Board of Education were approved by the board at its Feb. 18 meeting.

Under the guidelines, those students in the top 10 percent of the graduating class or those students who have achieved a 3.5 or better grade point average will be ranked as honor student; students in the special education program will not be ranked; to be considered as valedictorian and salutatorian, a student must have been enrolled before or during the first full five days of the senior school year. Earlier a policy stating that a student must have completed four full years of high school study to graduate had been adopted.

In other action, the board approved and encouraged Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren to apply for grants through the DNR to build a community all-weather track at the high school site and to construct a restroom-shower-laundry-exhibition building at the Beaver Island Environmental site at the Beaver Island Lighthouse property.

Mary Ann Chew advised the board of the upcoming In-service training sesion, a reading conference, to be held for the entire faculty of the school on Thursday, Feb. 28. School will be dismissed at 11:30 a.m. on that date so all faculty members can attend the conference.

The program for the academically talented students in the Charlevoix schools was reviewed by Kathy Martinchek of the Char-Em Intermediate School District, Carol Elliott who is in charge of the program at the K-5 school and Tom Sothard who heads the program in the middle school. Mrs. Elliott said that 25 students were in the program in the fourth and fifth grade in the Elementary school. Sothard said that 28 studetns including 19 boys and nine girls were in the accelerated and enrichment program in the middle school.

The board congratulated the Performing Arts Class for its fine show in state competition.

The board adjourned to executive session to discuss negotiations.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled for Monday, March 4.

Tournament Special

Special feature: 20 years of Rayder basketball teams

Regular season successes mean little when tourney time rolls around; Smith is anxious

by DAVE KNIGHT

With two games remaining in the 1984-85 regular season, the Charlevoix Rayders find themselves in what has become a familiar position in recent years.

Now at 17-1, the team must only beat Rogers City (0-11 in conference play) on Wednesday to clinch the Michigan-Huron Shores title outright. The win would produce a fourth straight M-HSC crown for the Rayders, the last three of which they have held alone.

Conference titles are one thing, however. Tournament play - as Coach Dave Smith well knows - is another.

"Everyone starts with a clean slate," said Smith of the annual March Madness.

Drawings were held Monday for the District tournament to be held in East Jordan. Charlevoix drew a first round bye and will make its first appearance Thursday, March 7 at 7 p.m. when it plays the winner of the March 5 Boyne City-East Jordan game. Finals of the tournament will be Saturday, March 9.

Posing the most potent threat to Charlevoix's bid for a District title is Lincoln Alcona which is presently 18-0 and ranked ninth in the most recent UPI Class C basketball rankings for the state. Charlevoix, which rose as high as third in the rankings, is now sixth following a February 8 loss to Gaylord.

"While you hate to say a loss is good, I think the Gaylord was beneficial to us in a couple ways," said Smith, "We had gotten complacent in practice, both the team and myself as a coach. We now practice and play with a better intensity. Also, we found out that we were not prepared for the end of a tight game like that. Since then we've been working hard to improve in that area. You know, you learn much more from your losses than from your wins."

For tournament play, Smith plans no major changes in approach. And well he shouldn't. Charlevoix has outscored its opponents by an average of over 16 points a game. The team's average output is 70.78 points.

Much of its dominance originates under the basket where the tall ~~Rayders have~~ grabbed a total of 355 offensive and 382 defensive rebounds compared to opponents' totals of 212 and 300 respectively.

If anything, said Smith, he might use his team's rebounding muscle to speed things up a little more for tournament action.

"We've been playing up-tempo recently and I think we'll continue that into the tournament," said Smith, "We're also working hard on cutting down turnovers."

While the massive snowfall of two weeks ago caused headaches for many area residents, Smith considers the storm an unexpected - and well-timed - blessing.

"Those four days out of school couldn't have been better for us," he said, ~~"It gave us~~ a chance to rest a little bit, get healthy and get our minds in order."

Smith takes special pleasure in working with the 1984-85 Rayders, a group he calls a "team" in every sense of the word. Asked

Rayders have valuable experience

if any individuals' progress surprised him this season, Smith said the best surprise has been the chemistry that has developed among the players.

"This group has been very close," he said, "Everyone gets along and they all blend together real well. Even my 11th and 12th men have really pleased me in the past few weeks when they've gotten a chance to play. That's just the kind of effort we'll be needing."

"In fact," added Smith, "this is a great bunch of guys to be around on and off the basketball court. They're good students and just generally pleasant to work with."

One distinct advantage for Charlevoix is the tournament experience it will take onto the court next week. Both John Pearl and Doug Sloan, as sophomores, were on the Rayder squad that barely missed a trip to the state semi-finals in 1983.

"The experience will definitely make a big difference," said Smith, "Those players who have been in the situation before know what it's about. They approach it with a much more mature attitude and a little less nervousness."

"Last year we were surprised that someone could beat us," said Smith referring to a 55-52 upset in the District finals to Traverse City St. Francis. "This year we have a more businesslike attitude and more intensity."

Here are rules for tournament tickets

Tournament tickets will be distributed with the following guidelines:

1. All tickets will be sold from the east foyer entrance to the high school gymnasium.
2. Season ticket holders may purchase tickets from 7:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. at one ticket per person.
3. General student ticket sales (non-season ticket holders) will be from 10:00 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at one ticket each.
4. General public ticket sales to include senior citizens, complimentary ticket holders, Charlevoix Public Schools faculty and staff members, will be from 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. at two tickets per person. (School district residents)
5. Remaining tickets will be on sale from 3:00 to 4:00 p.m. for out-of-district residents. Two tickets per person.

The number of tickets available will depend on Tournament Directors. There will be a limited number of tickets available at the door of the host school.

The Courier team

Providing Courier coverage of the Charlevoix Rayder basketball squad this season has been an unusual photographer-reporter team. Peter Plagge, left, who has been a Courier sports photographer for the past three years, was joined on the basketball circuit this season by foreign exchange student and budding reporter Ulf Evaldsson. Evaldsson, who is spending a year away from his home in Norway to attend Charlevoix High School, just happens to be Plagge's American "brother" - which gives the Courier one of the more unique brother acts in the business.

EPA, DNR build case for pressing on with 2 mgd plant

by DAVE KNIGHT

Michigan Department of Natural Resources and U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials urged the City of Charlevoix last week to continue its arrangement with the EPA to build a 2 million gallon per day (MGD) lake water treatment system.

There will be further discussions at EPA Region 5 headquarters in Chicago this week to discuss the feasibility of expanding the plant's capacity - using proceeds of a $500,000 bond issue approved by city voters last summer - once the EPA completes its obligation.

At a February 27 meeting in Lansing involving representatives of the city, DNR, EPA, Michigan Department of Public Health and District Health Department No. 3, both Ron Willson, of the DNR's Groundwater Quality Division and Greg Vanderlaan of the EPA Region 5 office said that any alternative other than continuation of the EPA-headed 2 mgd project would mean that Charlevoix would not have a new water system until mid-1987 at the earliest.

Under a consent agreement entered into last year by the city, the DPH and the State Attorney General, the city faces a January 1, 1987 deadline to have a new water plant on line with production capacity of at least 2.4 mgd. That capacity requirement was based by the DPH on recent peak usage rates.

Going into Wednesday's meeting, Charlevoix City Manager Michael Wiesner sought to have the project lead shifted from EPA to DNR and the plant capacity increased to from 2 to 3 mgd. Wiesner maintained that not only would a 3 mgd plant meet the DPH capacity requirement but would provide for future growth and save up to $40,000 annually in operating costs.

Charlevoix's present water system is contaminated with the industrial chemical trichloroethyene (TCE), a suspected cancer-causing agent first detected in the system in September, 1981. Most recent tests indicate TCE levels around 30 parts per billion.

Said Vanderlaan, "The critical issue here is time. Charlevoix needs safe drinking water and the alternatives to providing it should be discussed in relation to that issue."

In addition to continuation of the EPA as lead agency in an expandable 2 mgd plant, Vanderlaan outlined two other alternatives available. One had the state taking over as lead agency for a 3 mgd plant and another had the city taking the lead in the larger capacity project.

Although EPA had originally agreed to participate in a 3 mgd plant as requested by the city - with the city picking up the cost for the extra 1 mgd capacity - the agency determined in December, 1984 that it could not be involved as lead agency with a facility that resulted in "betterment" of the existing system's capabilities.

Should either the state or the city take over as lead agency, Vanderlaan said, the EPA can still provide what it determines is 90 percent funding of a 2 mgd plant. But major delays to the start of actual construction would result in both those scenarios, he said.

"Should the state assume the role of lead agency, we estimate that it will take a minimum of three months to complete a design and another six months of materials procurement," said Vanderlaan, "Our most optimistic projection is a start in the spring of 1986."

EPA project manager Jack Kratzmeyer set a construction period for the plant at 12 months.

Vanderlaan went on to say that if the city took over as lead agency with Superfund money used as an outright grant, just the uniqueness of such an arrangement would require half a year of legal review alone. Again, he said, the earliest construction start would be in the spring of 1986.

"We don't believe we could sort through the administrative process in less than six months for the simple reason that this has never been done before," said Vanderlaan of a shift to city lead of the project. "We are being strongly advised against this alternative."

Said Willson, "It has been our experience that, within Superfund, when you do something new, the concern and paranoia in Washington makes it almost impossible to get a decision in a reasonable, acceptable period of time."

Vanderlaan said the most expeditious means to provide Charlevoix with clean water is to continue progress on the EPA-led 2 mgd plant. If that route is taken, he set a timetable of having the plant design finalized in 80 days, a procurement stage of 70 days and a construction start as early as July or August, 1985. Assuming a construction period of 12 months, the plant would be then be completed in the summer of 1986.

Kratzmeyer assured that "we can design a plant that does not preclude expansion." He added that by incorporating into the design such features as removable walls and plumbing fixtures to acommodate expansion, the city will easily be

Intake project to be rebid; may start this spring

While plans for a lake water treatment plant for Charlevoix remain uncertain, progress is being made on the intake structure that will provide water to the proposed plant, according to EPA officials.

Jack Kratzmeyer, EPA project manager, told participants of the February 27 meeting in Lansing that construction of the intake could start as early as the end of March if plans to engage a new contractor proceed on schedule.

The 1,500-foot underground intake structure was to have been completed last fall and much of the materials for the project were delivered to the site near the city's existing well and pump station. However the contractor originally chosen by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, South Shore Construction of Ohio, was fired by the Corps for lack of progress.

Kratzmeyer said last week that arrangements are being made with the firm holding perfomance bond guarantees on the original contract to rebid the project. Originally set for February 22, the new deadline for bids has been set at March 6.

Kratzmeyer estimates a construction period of 90 days for the intake structure.

He also confirmed that its design will accomodate a treatment plant capacity of 3 mgd. While a policy decision in December, 1984 ruled out EPA participation as lead agency in a 3 mgd plant, Kratzmeyer said that approval of the design of the intake had been granted the summer before and is not going to be reversed.

The materials now on the site, mostly large sections of PVC pipe, are to be inspected for damage, said Kratzmeyer. If found suitable, they will hopefully be used in the project, he added.

Charlevoix now looking at $3.5 million project

Substantially inflated cost estimates for the intake structure and lake water treatment plant proposed for Charlevoix do not appear to stand in the way of the EPA's committment to funding 90 percent of the project.

Gregory A. Vanderlaan, chief of the EPA Region 5 site management section, stated in a February 25 letter to the Michigan DNR that Superfund is prepared to provide funds totalling $3,142,800 for the project. That figure represents 90 percent of a total estimated project cost of $3,497,000.

The new price tag for the plant represents almost an 80 percent increase over the original estimated project cost of $1,954,000.

In a January 23 letter to City Manager Michael Wiesner, T. Eftaxiadis of the DNR's groundwater quality division brought up several concerns about the Charlevoix water situation. Most prevalent among those was the legal decision by the EPA that it could not proceed as lead agency for a 3 mgd plant.

He expressed equal dismay, however, over the dramatically escalated cost estimates for the total project for which the DNR said it would fund the ten percent not covered by Superfund.

In the "focused feasibility study" conducted in the spring of 1984 to examine all possible alternatives to dealing with Charlevoix water problem, the cost of a lake water treatment system, including intake and treatment plant, was estimated at $1,954,000.

This was compared to cost estimates for other alternatives including $1,304,000 for air stripping and $1,815,000 for carbon treatment. The lake water system was eventually chosen because of its lower operation and maintenance costs.

When it came time for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to bid the project and prepare final designs, however, it was realized that the city's estimates were "grossly underestimated", said Eftaxiadis.

"Such major cost escalation raises serious questions regarding the cost effectiveness of a lake water intake project," he wrote.

Vanderlaan responded to the DNR's concerns stating that, following a review by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, it was determined that the cost estimates for the present design concept were higher than originally thought but that they were still within established guidelines.

According to Vanderlaan, a "priority adjustment" has been made in the fiscal 1985 Superfund budget to allow for EPA involvement totalling $3,142,000.

That is based on a cost estimate for a 2 mgd filtration plant of $2,699,000.

No rest for Cutter Mesquite

by FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix-based USCGC Mesquite, on winter duty in the Caribbean, continued to see its share of action last week in both rescue and law enforcement roles.

The Mesquite had made a delivery to Port au Prince, Haiti Saturday, February 23 when it received a call to go the the assistance of a ferry, the Mona Island, which had gone aground.

The orders were to off-load fuel so the ferry could re-float itself; however, in the interim, the ferry freed itself.

It was then that the Mesquite was ordered to rendezvous with the 378 foot USCGC Dallas, a high endurance cutter, which had taken in tow a 45-foot fishing boat of unknown registry laden with 15 tons of marijuana and a crew of seven Lt. Cmdr. Robert E. Young, commanding officer of the Mesquite said in a telephone conversation Thursday after the ship had arrived in Miami.

The Mesquite rendezvoused with the Dallas, took the seven crew members aboard and the 45' fishing vessel, "Star Trek" in tow on Feb. 23 after putting three of its crewmen, Lt. j.g. John Sturtz, William Eilley SA and Thomas Lally, Fn., aboard the tug.

Everything went well, he said, until an electrical fire in the engine room of the tug, caught the tug on fire, sending its crew into the water. One bale of the contraband was taken aboard the Mesquite but the remainder went up in smoke.

When the tug caught fire, the Mesquite set it free and returned to pick up its three crewmen. Meanwhile, the Star Trek drifted into shallow water off Cuba. With a Cuban gunboat standing by, the Mesquite was able to take the tug in tow. However, before arriving in Miami Feb. 28, the tug was eventualyy scuttled in deep water. The tug with its cargo estimated at $12 million street value burned to the waterline before being sunk.

This is the second such incident in which the Mesquite has had a part. Earlier in February, it had taken a 35' fishing boat laden with 10 tons of marijuana in tow from the Gallatin and taken it into Miami.

At the time of this incident, the ship was in Haiti delivering 20 tons of materials purchased by the Rotary Club of Orlando, Fla. The material was bound for a small island off the coast of Haiti which had only a limited water supply, Young said.

In the cargo was an 18,000 poound

Charlevoix Yesterday

Dog sled races were a popular form of winter entertainment over 50 years ago. The above picture of two competitors on Bridge Street was sent to us by Eberdeen LaBlance Livingston of Kalamazoo.

Notations on the back of the picture indicate that it was taken "about 1929" and the competitors were George LaBlance and George McKinzie. LaBlance was the winner.

Names In The News

JANNA WIELAND, an Alma College sophomore from Charlevoix is now in Paris, France, studying French at the Alliance Francaise. Wieland is one of 37 Alma students studying in international programs this winter term, the largest group that Alma has ever sent to other countries.

Eighteen other Alma students are also studying in Paris; eight are in Madrid, Spain; six are in Germany; two are in Lund, Sweden; one Is is Aberdeen, Scotland; and one is in Mexico City, Mexico. In addition, 102 students from other colleges are guest students in Alma's International Studies Programs.

"International study is necessary because it gives the students experience of learning or using the language within its own cultural context. It is no longer a foreign language since everyone there speaks it," says Earl Hayward, director of Alma's Program of Studies in France. He notes that perfecting oral skills and seeing new ways of doing things are also important aspects of international study.

Janna, a 1983 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is the daughter of Thomas and Ardeth Wieland, Charlevoix. She is majoring in history at Alma College.

Growth Alliance coming together

The three-county Community Growth Alliance set up last fall by Charlevoix, Antrim, and Emmet Counties is in its final stages of formation.

Last week, Charlevoix County agreed to take the lead role in the Alliance, accepting the responsibility of seeking grants and allocating funds for the Alliance.

It is expected that the State Department of Commerce will underwrite the Alliance up to $175,000, with local business and industry supplying more money for operating expenses.

Several similar Community Growth Alliances are already operating in the State, addressing the specific problems of their areas and trying to retain and promote industry, improve the business climate, and assist small businesses.

The local Alliance has an office in the Boyne City City Hall with Richard Beagle in charge.

County Board approves new sanitary code

by PEG OHLE

The County board of Commissioners last week accepted the new Sanitary Code for Charlevoix County.

The Code will now go to the District Board of Health for its input and the holding of a public hearing. Twenty days after the hearing, the Board of Health may adopt the Code, after which it will go to the four counties in Health Department No. 3 (Antrim, Emmet, Otsego, and Charlevoix) for final approval. The Code will become law 45 days after approval by the last county.

The new Code is a revision of the Sanitary Code which has been in effect for several years and was written by a committee appointed by the Board of Commissioners. It covers rules for installing and operating all types of sewage disposal systems except those that are publicly operated, water wells, and garbage and rubbish handling.

Commissioners also:

–Appointed a committee to study necessary changes in the county building complex to bring the buddings up to Federal specifications for accomodating handicapped people. The committee will consist of Gerald Chase, Administrator of District Health Department No. 3; County Prosecutor Kraag Lieberman; and County Commissioners Larry Matthew and Donald Smith, with Commissioner I. Lee Moerland serving in an ex officio capacity.

–Heard Circuit Judge Richard M. Pajtas report on his activities since taking office in January.

–Accepted the $6,985 bid of the Montel Construction Co. of Walloon Lake for making some modifications in the County Jail.

–Heard County Planner Larry Sullivan explain the Wetlands Act, which governs the use of designated wetlands areas.

–Agreed to contribute $1,000 to the Crooked Tree Arts Council on the condition that a similar sum is contributed by Emmet County, and that the State agrees to match the contribution.

–Heard a report from Richard Beagle on the Community Growth Alliance and agreed to be the lead County in applying for State funds to operate the Alliance.

New plat book out

by PEG OHLE

The 1985 edition of the Charlevoix County Plat Book came off the press last week and is now available at the office of the County Treasurer in the County Building.

Complete with new color picture cover, new format, new informational material, and a new, lower price, the Plat Book is the work of the Charlevoix Soil and Water Conservation District, which was assisted by several other County agencies and Township officials.

In recent years, the County Plat Book has been published by a commercial printing company. The Soil and Water Conservation District last year decided it could do a better job for less money. It received the help of the County Planning Department, Equalization Department, Road Commission, and Township assessors to bring the maps and other material up to date.

There is a map of the County as a whole; plat maps of each of the 15 townships; street maps of the three cities; maps of Beaver Island and the other outlying islands; names and telephone numbers of all County, Township, and City officials; and a list of approximately 4,000 landowners noting the page of the Plat Book on which their holdings are indicated.

The 1985 County Plat Book sells for $7 and is also available at the office of the Soil Conservation District as well as the office of the Extension Service in Boyne City.

Local students test above state averages

Charlevoix students scored well above the state averages in the annual State Assessment Tests given in September Condit Drury, Charlevoix Middle School counselor who serves as the coordinator for the program, has announced.

Each September, shortly after the students return to the classroom, the tests are administered in reading and mathematics in schools throughout the state. Fourth, seventh and tenth grade students write the tests to measure mastery of the state's objectives in the two subjects, Drury explained. The test results are also used to alert administrators and teachers to the areas where additional emphasis on a subject is needed.

Drury went on to say that the areas of greatest concern to Phillip Runkel, Michigan Superintendent of Schools, have been those of seventh and tenth grade mathematics. The state average of seventh grade mathematics in 1984 was 65.7 and at the tenth grade level 66.4 percent. This means that approximately 66 percent of the students writing the test achieved the objectives while Charlevoix's seventh and tenth graders were well above the state average as shown in the accompanying graph.

The graph will also show how Charlevoix students have achieved in comparison to state averages during the past four years in reading and mathematics in the fourth, seventh and tenth grades.

In announcing the tests results, Drury said that everyone involved in the educational process, the administration, faculty, board of education and students as well as their parents should be proud of the results that reveal that the Charlevoix students in the three grades achieved better than 82 percent of the objectives in mathematics and more than 87 percent in reading.

Knight on the Town

Weather up to old tricks

by Dave Knight

Of all Charlevoix's events, Winter Cup is the most snake-bitten.

Lately, we can't seem to buy a decent weekend for this affair which could and should provide at least one successful promotion to temper the long winter doldrums.

Having seen February thaws consistently thwart its well-laid plans, the Chamber of Commerce finally threw up its hands last year and turned the whole affair over to the City Recreation Department.

Actually the change of command resulted as much from logic as frustration. The Rec Department operates the Mt. McSauba ski hill and is therefore in a much better position to organize the ski events around which Winter Cup is built.

Following the blizzards of early February, it looked as though, for once, Winter Cup would be blessed with enough snow for the cross country and downhill races on the 23rd and 24th respectively.

But, as if playing out some cruel joke, the temperature stated edging upward three days before the races. And if that weren't enough, a miserable rain turned much of the white to gray.

The Saturday cross country race suffered the most. Only 13 racers showed up. I know there are hundreds of cc'ers in town and hundreds more who could be attracted from parts elsewehere for a good race. No way can it be done, however, without Mother Nature's cooperation. Even the prestigious North American VASA held in Traverse City came precariously close to oblivion when there was no snow for the 1984 edition.

Local organizers are now thinking about a major Winter Cup cross country race on the railroad right-of-way from Ellsworth to Charlevoix. That's the sort of thing that could really catch on - if we can plan on the snow.

Saturday's fiasco aside, this year's Winter Cup really came on strong Sunday. Over 150 kids and adults participated.

The downhill races were popular as ever and there was no small irony in the fact that some parents who had kids racing on Mt. McSauba Sunday would be traveling to Crystal Mountain Monday to watch older siblings ski in the state high school meet.

The Rayder ski team had one of its most successful seasons ever this year and, watching the enthusiasm and intensity of the little kids in the Winter Cup races, one realizes that good athletic programs don't just happen. They are built... built by supportive parents, good instructors and decent facilities with which to learn.

It helps to have the snow, too.

Big Coffee Day

To the Editor:

Recently the March of Dimes asked the local restaurants and coffee shops to participate in a "Coffee Day". The response was very positive. On February 13 and 15 they were ready. The weather was not as cooperative but the public, the hearty ones, did respond!

The total donations of $355.21 came from the following participants: Nanny's Old Place, Duffy's, Ricciardi's, Village Inn Pizza, J.R.'s Cafe, Market Mall Cafe, 7-Eleven, Fireside Restaurant, Juilleret's and Dockside Pharmacy. The folks who drank the coffee and those who served it are to be commended...good job!

Just wait until next time and see if we can top this total!!

Thank you for the part you played in making our Barn Dance and Auction a huge success.

Because of your generosity in publishing and writing an article in your newspaper, we were able to raise in excess of $1,300.

We plan to make this an annual event and hope we might prevail upon your repeating your kind service.

Again, many thanks.

Chamber Chatter

As heard by the Chamber Maid

The Chamber is You!

You all seem to agree that it is time to "put the lid" on Charlevoix's water issue. No debate.

As leaders in the community, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, led by Dave Strawbridge, recently passed a resolution concerning our water problem. Copies went to Mike Wiesner, city manager, Hal Hill, mayor and to the members of the city council. The resolution reads:

"The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, its membership and its Board of Directors, urge the City Council and the City Manager to proceed in taking immediate action with the construction of a 2 million gallon per day water-plant, allowing the above named city officers to explore the feasibility for added storage facility in the case of need."

Endorsing such a resolution is another step in the right direction to getting the entire water issue behind us. Once that is accomplished (and the city government is really trying) the Chamber can then get on with promoting our little "crown jewel on Michigan's Gold Coast."

Let's give the news media something good to write about!!

Clockwise

End in sight

by Bob Clock

I spent Wednesday in Lansing listening to the latest on Charlevoix's proposed water treatment plant, and I got the impression that our problems are nearing resolution at long last.

The Environmental Protection Agency's Jack Kratzmeyer has yet to hold his meeting with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and others, but it seemed fairly clear at the end of last week's meeting that a plant capable of being expanded can and will be built in the near future on the Lake Michigan shore.

Details still must be worked out, but I am optimistic that Charlevoixans will be drinking uncontaminated water in the not too distant future.

We may have a few problems with the state Health Department over the immediate construction of additional pumping and treatment capacity. But that problem is not insoluble, particularly if the city can work out an agreement with Charlevoix Township for stand-by water, if it is needed.

There also seems to be some question as to whether Charlevoix actually used 2.4 million gallons of water a single day, which the Health Department is using as its benchmark. That particularly peak now is believed to have been reached at a time when Charlevoix was selling water to the township.

Kretzmeyer, for one, thinks it is odd that the city reportedly pumped 2.4 million gallons of water one day, and only 1.1 million gallons the next.

But not to worry. It appears the bureaucratic infighting is over and the next step is to build a water plant.

YOU'VE GOT TO let me gloat a little about being able to spend a few hours in Lansing — land of green prairies and running candidates.

It certainly was nice to leave the snow covered woodlands for a glimpse of honest-to-goodness terra firma at the tag-end of a long, cold winter.

The grass on the capitol lawn was actually green and the compulsion to do a hand-stand was almost overpowering. But I didn't, for fear the governor was watching.

THE TRIP BACK into the snowbelt also was exciting. Near Kalkaska we saw a pair of young deer standing in knee deep snow alongside the road. They turned to run as we approached, but the snow was so deep they fell repeatedly.

The hard winter has kept them lean, but they both looked healthy.

However, with our heavy snow cover they would have been helpless prey for a hungry dog. Better keep fido tethered or fenced a while longer.

Out of the Blue

I've had it with snow
That's dirty gray
It's high time now
That it went away!

--Amos

All eyes north as Coast Guard ship wraps up special assignment

The following was recently received from the USCGC Mesquite which left Charlevoix November 25 for duty in Grenada and other locations in the Caribbean. See the story on page 1 for more on her recent exploits.

Northbound, at last! Granted, we've got a few stops to make before reaching homeport, but with more than half the patrol behind us, all attention is riveted due north.

Our month in Grenada is already history, though we are carrying plenty of souvenirs and memories back with us. With visibility our primary mission on the island, our final weeks were generally dedicated to underway time. Day-long patrols included surveillance trips around the island, sailing among the Grenadine chain islands and practicing ship maneuvers outside St. Geroge Harbor.

To break up the routine, a few morale trips were also scheduled. A three-day trip to Barbados highlighted such expeditions. The crew was ecstatic to be back in a city with real roads, drug stores and fast-food restaurants! Another overnight trip was made to Palm Island, a small island north of Grenada that boasts beautiful beaches and coral reefs. A cookout on the buoy deck was followed by small-boat runs to the beach for those wanting to go ashore.

Back in St. George Harbor, in-port days were filled with shipboard maintenance chores. The deck force totally repainted the hull and buoydeck, while the engineers worked to keep the engines at peak performance for the long trip home. In the operations department, on-going projects in the chart room and on the bridge kept the crew at "full-ahead".

Helicopter surveillance missions are conducted regularly by the Army and arrangements were made for two MESQUITE crewmembers to go along for the patrols. The flights provided a spectacular overview of the lush mountains and rugged coastline that comprise Grenada, not to mention some pretty exciting flying experiences for our troops. Another Army-sponsored program was a scuba-diving course that several of our crewmembers were able to take advantage of. A remarkable collection of coral and ship-wreck artifacts are now accumulating onboard as a result of our newly qualified "diving team".

The arrival of our replacement, the 180-foot CGC SALVIA out of Mobile, Alabama, on January 31 marked the end of our stay on Grenada. A 2-day relief process was conducted to break-in the SALVIA's crew to the Grenadian experience. On the afternoon of February 2, we pulled out of St. George's Harbor for the last time, leaving behind a send-off group of our island friends. As we steamed along the Grenada coastline, an Army helicopter flew alongside to escort us from the island.

The next two days of sailing provided a rude reawakening to life on the open seas, with stiff winds and choppy seas tossing us along our trackline. We sailed into St. Thomas Harbor the morning of February 4 for two days of liberty. St. Thomas' reputation as the marketplace of the Caribbean was quickly confirmed by the multitude and variety of jewels, clothing and other giftwares from around the world.

With orders to be in Miami by February 10, we got underway from St. Thomas on the morning of February 6, allowing ourselves plenty of time for an anticipated leisurely sail north. However, we were quickly indoctrinated to sailing in the Coast Guard, 7th District style, when the afternoon of the 7th was interrupted by a message diverting us to a law enforcement mission.

The 378-foot CHC GALLATIN had just intercepted a 35-foot fishing vessel with 6 tons of marijuana on-board and our assignment was to escort the captured vessel to Miami. We rendezvoused with the GALLATIN on Friday morning north of Cuba and assumed custody of the F-V LUZDARY and her crew of 6 Columbians. Handcuffing the 6 prisoners on our fantail was no problem, but resolving the dilemma of how to get the tiny boat through some 500 miles of rough seas was a different matter. Attempts to start the LUZDARY's engines were in vain and our only choice was to take the boat in tow, leaving a custody crew of 3 on-board to pump a leaking seam. Towing watches, small boat supply evolutions and custody crew rotations were quickly organized and when we resumed our journey north, it was at the creeping pace of 6 knots.

While we never encountered any major storms winds of up to 24 knots made for a ride on the LUZDARY that amusement parks charge admission to. But for all the tossing and rolling, the tiny boat and her custody crews plowed along behind us. The elusive Miami Harbor finally became a reality the afternoon of February 11.

The rest of the week in Miami will be dedicated to a law-enforcement training class for our boarding team and a much needed CHARLIE period for ship's maintenance. After leaving Miami, it's off to ferry supplies to Haiti and then conduct a Law Enforcement Patrol on the way north.

As we slowly move northward, talk of home and families is becoming more prevalent on-board. Now that we are back in the States, communication will be much easier - a big morale booster for all of us. With the end of our patrol in sight, it's just a matter of waiting for the St. Lawrence Seaway to open-up - we're ready to be the first through.

able to add the extra capacity.

DPH official James Cleland questioned the wisdom of building a 3 mgd plant in two stages instead of including the extra capacity in the first place.

"You can never build an expansion for the same amount of money that it would cost to build a bigger plant in the first place," said Cleland.

Vanderlaan responded saying, "The issue is that the alternative we recommend will get the plant built and provide clean water to Charlevoix the soonest."

Cleland warned that his department will not issue an operating permit for the 2 mgd plant without a solid commitment from the city to make up the additional capacity of at least .4 mgd. He added, however, that the extra capacity will not necesarily have to come from the lake water plant and that the city has the option of providing the equivalent of .4 mgd capacity from any other approved source.

truck, TVC pipe in 21' lengths totaling two miles, and 20 3x3x5 foot boxes of other supplies. Because of the shallow water around the small island which was its destination, the Mesquite delivered it to Port au Prince from where it would be transported by a smaller vessel, Young said.

The ship had departed Haiti and was asked to assist a ferry, when it received the orders to rendevous with the Dallas.

Lt. Cdr. Young said the Mesquite is scheduled to depart Charleston, S.C., March 9, enroute to its homeport, Charlevoix.

Wagner is candidate for DAR award

Ann Wagner, Charlevoix High School senior, is among the nine high school seniors from throughout a wide area of the state being sponsored by the Farmington Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) in the national "Good Citizen" program.

Candidates for the "Good Citizen" award are chosen for their qualities of leadership, dependability, service and patriotism.

The names of the nine seniors sponsored by the Three Flags Chapter of the D.A.R. will be forwarded to the Michigan Good Citizens Committee of the D.A.R. which will choose the 10 outstanding Good Citizens from the state.

The ten representing the state, in turn, will be among those competing with their peers for the national title.

The ten who will be named from Michigan will be given monetary awards during the D.A.R. state meeting to be held in Lansing April 3.

Ann, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Wagner, has had an active high school career having been a member of the student council for three years, a Peer Group Facilitator, lettered in basketball for four years and league scoring titlist as a senior and a member of the track and baseball teams. She has also been active in forensics, as a state finalist in Individual Events (storytelling) and a member of the Performing Arts group for four years, two years of which the group won the state C-D title and this year she received an excellence award at both district and state levels.

She has a 3.9 grade point average and has been accepted at Kalamazoo College.

Campbell to address Garden Club meeting

John Campbell of Sit Planning Development Inc., will talk to the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, using slides, on Tuesday, March 12, at 1 p.m. at the Library. Members are urged to note this change of location. The subject will be geared to home garden needs and the care and planting of various shrubs and plants.

The club is also anxiously awaiting the last of the snows, so that the final stages in development of the Memorial Garden in the intersection of East Dixon and Mercer can get under way. This civic beautification project is chaired by Marge Dinwiddie, and committee of Mary Biddick, Lois Lewis, Ann Mikulski, and Keith Morris working with Campbell.

At the March 12 meeting, Anna Burlin, long fondly referred to as "The Rose Lady of the Club" will become an honorary member in appreciation of her twenty-five years of service, 1959-1984. For the Golden Anniversary of the Club, to be in four years, long time members are asked to look among keepsakes for old year books, predating 1977. Please bring these, and the current book for minor corrections.

Since a blizzard cancelled the February meeting, the March hostesses, Derith Lane and Ruth Ann Curtis urge members to reinvite those whom they had planned to bring in February.

CENTERPIECES *for the tables at a dinner held last week for participants of the Northern Michigan Reading Teachers Association annual meeting in Charlevoix (see page 10) were provided by members of the Charlevoix Elementary School special art group. The group, which is comprised of second through fifth graders, fashioned book cover diaramas, above, interpreting famous book titles in a three-dimensional style. Women's Club "visits" Hawaii

An afternoon in Hawaii was enjoyed recently by the members of the Charlevoix Women's Club when they gathered at the home of president, Lucy Witthoeft, for a regular meeting.

A video tape of Polynesian Culture done by students at the University of Hawaii taped by Ivan Witthoeft during a recent visit to the islands was presented as part of the program. There were also scenes of the flowers, trees and shrubs of Hawaii and the eruption of the Mauna Loa volcano showing the red hot lava flowing to the sea.

Mrs. Witthoeft, a native Hawaiian performed the hula to the music of "Beyond the Reef".

Carrying out the Hawaiian theme, Mrs. Wittheoft served refreshments which featued several island dishes including island fruits and nuts.

As each guest arrived, garbed in clothing typical of the islands, they were presented with a flower for their hair and a lei of eight koa seed or seashells.

At the business session, Mrs. Witthoeft named a committee to review the club's financial status and make recommendations relating to civic contributions to be made.

The next meeting of the club is scheduled for Tuesday, March 19, at the home of Mrs. Mildred Campbell at 1:30 p.m. The program will be "Oh, My Aching Back!" by a representatiave from an area chiropractic clinic.

Will Syvertsen fights for a rebound in action against Rogers City last week.

Rogers hands Rayders conference crown

by ULF EVALDSSON

Wrapping up an easy 81-41 win against Rogers City Wednesday night, the Red Rayders, also celebrating their Winter Homecoming at the time, put themselves at an 18-1 record for the year and won the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference title outright.

Again, Charlevoix brought out an alert and convincing team on their home floor, and with 20-8, 42-13, and 62-25 at the quarters, it was obvious right from the start that the Rayders would post another victory. When Rogers City Hurons hosted the Rayders in January, the Rayders rolled up a 66-51 win.

Opening Wednesday's Homecoming game, Sean Ferguson, Jody Putman and John Pearl brought the Rayders to an immediate 8-0 lead, before the Hurons could score. Cole made it 10-2, and even if Robert Miller helped the Hurons through a basket, Ferguson brought it to 14-4, pouring in two more field goals for Charlevoix halfway into the quarter.

Later, Ferguson, top scorer for the Rayders, made it 18-6, followed by Cole's field goal, and already the Hurons started to fall behind. Ending the first quarter, Mike Krajnik helped the Hurons to make the score 20-8, climbing a little bit to Rayders' lead. But the Rayders took good care of their lead not allowing the Huron offense to get into their zone, and beginning the second stanza, Rayders struck, going from the 20-8 lead to 31-8 in a couple of minutes through baskets by Ferguson, Sloan, Cole and Putman.

Gery Felax made it 31-10, but soon Putman and Jim Martin extended the lead to 35-10, and with 2:27 left on the board, coach Dave Smith emptied his bench, putting in the whole second string. Packy LaBlance, Tim Salmonson and Marc Himebauch helped the Rayders to 40-13, and ending the first half, LaBlance scored a basket again, settling the score 42-13.

Rayders impressed with good rebounding, controlled the grabbing under the baskets through the whole struggle. Altogether, Rayders had 46 rebounds, while Hurons had 22. Cole had no less than 11 rebounds, Syvertsen 6, Ferguson 5, Putman and Martin 4 each, Sloan, Pearl and Joe Hayes 3 apiece, Tim Plagge, Salmonson and Himebauch 2 each and LaBlance 1. Rogers City's careless offense sometimes gave away the ball, causing the Rayders to score and causing themselves to fall farther behind. Hurons had 36 turnovers, Charlevoix only 14.

Moving into the second half, Rayders kept on whipping their visiting opponents, and not far into the third quarter, Putman, Pearl and Cole jumped to a 49-15 lead for the Rayders, before Chad Malocha could can a basket for the Hurons. When Sloan scored again, he made it 55-19, and although Tom Spomer provided the Hurons with another bucket, Sloan returned and brought it to 60-21 along with Martin's field goal. Malocha and Spomer scored one basket each, followed by Putman's field goal, which meant 62-25. Scoring two more baskets in the beginning of the final quarter, LaBlance made it 66-27, and after Ron Smolinski had poured in a basket, Salmonson made sure to bring it to 68-29. Plagge put the Rayders in a comfortable 40-point lead by making it 70-30 halfway into the quarter, a lead that would sustain through the whole quarter. When the score was 72-37, Rayders made a last strong effort, and LaBlance, Syvertsen and Sloan could finally bring it to 81-41, and Rayders had posted their 18th win for this season.

Top scorer for the Rayders, Sean Ferguson, scored 14 points; Sloan had 13, Putman 12, LaBlance 10, Cole 9, Pearl 6, Syvertsen and Martin 4 each, Salmonson 3 and Plagge, Hayes and Himebauch 2 apiece.

Best scorers for the Hurons were Felax with 9 points and Malocha with 8 points.

Jason Brindel, above, and Sue Miller, below, were two Rayder skiers who participated in the state high school meet held last week. See the story on page 7.

A bucket by Scott Blanchard for the Clothing Company at the buzzer knotted the score. In the first overtime both teams scored four points to make the score 59-all before Wojan's outscored the Clothing Company 6-4 in the second overtime for the win.

Dave Swanson had 18 points, Ray LaVoie 15, Randy Holecheck and Clay Jones 12 each for the victors. Dave Cole scored 18, Woody Pearson 14 and Scott Blanchard 13 for the Clothing Company.

Dr. Bigler addresses the Reading Teachers' Association annual meeting.

"Best textbook is teacher," Bigler tells Reading Assoc.

by ANNE KELLY

Over 400 Northern Michigan educators convened at Charlevoix High School recently to visit book company displays, enjoy dinner, and to learn the art of "Teaching With Pizzazz", with Mary Bigler. The ocassion was the 9th annual Reading In-Service sponsored by the Northern Michigan Reading Teacher's Association.

Dr. Bigler, an internationally known educator and humorist, has a lengthy list of qualifications inculding: being a classroom teacher for nine years, a university professor for eight years, serving as field consultant for two years and traveling widely in the U.S., Canada, and Europe conducting inservice and staff development sessions for K-12 teachers.

"Teaching with Pizzazz" is Dr. Bigler's style of encouraging the love of reading and writing in students. Her philosophy revolves around the principle of making the children love reading early. Good readers, according to Ms. Bigler, become better readers because they read all the time. Poor readers, conversely, never progress because they read very little.

Dr. Bigler cited teachers as the instrument of inspiration in the classroom. "You are what you want your students to be" she explained. As Ghandi once said, Dr. Bigler quoted, "The best textbook for a pupil is his techer." This; she believes is an awesome thougtht. Teachers, in their quest for imparting knowledge effectively, should possess these qualities: teachers should be dreamers, be positive and enthusiastic persons, possess a keen sense of humor, and be willing to welcome failure, to take risks.

With jokes and riddles and countless creative ideas, Dr. Bigler suggested that there are many ways to stimulate the love of and interest in reading.

"It's laughter that makes the atmosphere more condusive to learning," Dr. Bigler concluded. "We can't personally get to all the children we teach, but if we're all the best teachers we can be we'll get to all of them eventually."

Meeting participants were able to look through displays set up by numerous textbook publishers. (Photos by Anne Kelly.)

LENT! What's it all about? Prayer, Fasting, Good Works? Why?

Every so often we go on diets, exercise, do aerobics, lift weights, jog, etc., etc., etc. All of this to bring our bodies in line with our self image; because of ads, "thin is in", it's better for our physical well being, we'll live longer or whatever.

However, besides our physical nature, fortunately we have a spiritual nature, our soul. The lord gave us many examples of ways to get this part of us in shape. Read the Scriptures: both John and Jesus spent time in the desert praying and fasting; Jesus took a few apostles into the garden to pray; Jesus went about doing good for others. Each year the Church helps us by setting aside 40 days of Lent to bring our souls closer to the image of Christ. We are reminded to pray more frequently and more fervently, to cut down on our food and drink, to do something kind for someone, forgive someone, read the Scriptures, attend Lenten church services.

Just as all of the physical exercises are good for our bodies to help us look and feel good, so too, the spiritual exercises are good for our souls and will help them reach their goal of heaven.

From now until Easter, let us examine our conscience each night before we retire, asking ourselves, "How am I doing with my spiritual exercises?"

Loss of revenue sharing will be felt by local govt.

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County Commissioner I. Lee Moerland was in the audience in Washington last week when President Ronald Reagan told the assembled County Commissioners that "The Federal Government has no revenues to share."

The President was talking to members of the National Association of Counties, in convention in the nation's capital, and the revenues he referred to are those known as "Revenue Sharing" funds, which account for $279,753, or 8.7 percent, of this year's Charlevoix County budget income.

"The fiscal 1986 budget stops the built-in momentum of spending increases in its tracks," the President added to emphasize the finality of his decision.

Ever since Charlevoix County began receiving Revenue Sharing funds several years ago, the monies have been put into the County's General Fund and spent on County operations. What will happen when this source of income dries up?

Moerland says the County will have to do two things: Figure out what services it can stop offering and how to raise more money locally. Since property taxes are the County's main source of revenue, they would naturally be studied for increase possibilities, according to Moerland.

"It's a tough nut to crack," he said of the projected demise of Revenue Sharing, "and personally I don't think they can get it through Congress. Congress just doesn't have the guts."

Moerland, who is a firm believer in local power and local responsibility, says he can go along with the loss of Revenue Sharing as long as other programs are also cut. In fact, he would not mind trying to run the County without Federal funds and Federal regulations. He pointed out that Revenue Sharing funds are local monies taken from local taxpayers and repaid to them at about 65 cents on the dollar.

Moerland is chairman of the 10-county Northwest Michigan Employment and Training Consortium and attended the convention in that capacity. The Consortium, which operates job training and job procurement programs for the unemployed, also receives Federal funds that would probably be discontinued under President Reagan's budget cuts.

In fact, according to Moerland, many programs in Charlevoix County could be drastically cut or discontinued by the unavailability of Federal funds. These include the Transit System, highway construction and repair, human services such as Services to the Aging, environmental protection agencies such as the one paying for most of Charlevoix' new water system, and even public school activities.

Moerlaod said that attendance at the National Association of Counties convention was higher than usual, due largely to the threat of killing Revenue Sharing, which so many units of government have come to rely on. County Commissioners from all over the country were most vocal in expressing their desire to keep the program alive, despite the severe deficit problems of the Federal government.

In addition to Federal Revenue Sharing funds, Charlevoix County receives State Revenue Sharing funds, which this year amount to $178,140. Discontinuance of the Federal program would not affect these funds, Moerland explained.

Chx. farmers not as bad off as some

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix County farmers are not getting rich, but few of them are in the grave financial straits of so many in "America's breadbasket".

That is the gist of comments from several persons who have close contact with farmers and their farming operations.

There are about 240 farms in Charlevoix County, 40 of them dairy farms and 200 grain and livestock farms and orchards. Of these, only about 100 are full-time operations, with the farmers deriving all of their income from the farm.

Because of these numbers, there isn't much chance of many local farmers "going under", according to County Extension Agent Rod Cortright.

Another fortunate factor for many Charlevoix County farmers is that their farm land has been in their families for two or three generations so they do not owe mortgage money to lending institutions. Only the few who bought land at the inflated prices of the seventies have mortgage problems, according to Cortright.

However, there are other problems over which farmers have no control, Cortright points out. These include huge farm surpluses, lower price supports, rising operating costs, and the balance of trade situation. Nationwide, the average farm is losing bout $10,000 a year to foreign trade, Cortright says. The only farmers who are coming out ahead price-wise are livestock farmers becaose of the steady price of meat.

Looking to the future, Cortright believes that if the economic climate doesn't improve within the next couple of years, local farmers could be in for more trouble.

How can a farmer tell if he is in a good financial situation? If he owes only $1 for every $4 of his assets, he's doing okay, Cortright says.

Most loans to local farmers are made by government-related agencies. The Farmers' Home Administration (FmHA), with offices in Petoskey, is one of these agencies. Keith Greenwald of FmHA says his office covers Charlevoix, Emmet, and Cheboygan Counties and has 42 farmer borrowers on the books. Of these, only 20 made application for the "debt set aside" program designed to help them over the period of financial stress. Under this program, borrowers can set aside 25 percent of their debt for five years, making no payment on the principal and paying no interest. If times were really tough for local farmers, it would seem that more than half of the FmHA borrowers would take advantage of the "debt set aside".

A court order is prohibiting FmHA from foreclosing on farmers who are in arrears in payments.

Elaine Richardson of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, another Federal agency, agrees that local farmers as a whole are "not too bad off, nothing like we've been hearing on TV". She cites the reasons for their solvency as being the relatively small size of area farms, the length of time they have been family-owned, and the fact that most small farmers have other jobs.

New fire hall plans include post office

by DAVE KNIGHT

Two new proposals involving relocation of the Charlevoix post office and redesign of the city fire station are now being studied by postal officials in Southfield following action by city council last week to pick up an option on the existing post office property.

In closed session during its March 4 regular meeting, council decided to obtain, for $1, an option to purchase the post office property at 109 Mason for $74,800 from owners Eleanor Carson and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Willis.

According to City Manager Michael Wiesner, the price equals twice the 1983 state equalized valuation for the property.

Wiesner explained two plans in which property now owned by the city just north of city hall would be sold, preferrably to a private owner for $85,000, with a new building then deeded to the post office. Postal authorities have been looking for a larger facility this past year and have indicated that they normally prefer a lease arrangement over owning a building in a town the size of Charlevoix.

The original plan to expand the fire station to accomodate the new fire truck arriving this spring had about 6000 square feet added onto the north of city hall. The house on the city property to the north would then be razed for a parking lot. This plan, according to

Campus jobs not hard to find at MSU

by LAURA L. COEN

Each fall, many Charlevoix High School seniors who do not qualify for financial aid or work study at Michigan State University could find on-campus jobs if they know where to look.

According to Jim Bowling, assistant director of Placement Services Center at MSU, there are plenty of on-campus jobs for students who finance their own education.

MSU, located in East Lansing, has an annual fall enrollment of over 40,000 students. About 16,000 of these studetns work on campus and another 10,000 work off campus. Of the 16,000 who work on campus, only 4,000 receive any financial aid or work study. The on-campus students earned $18.4 million last year, Bowling said.

"Many freshmen need jobs once they get here for spending money and to help pay for school," Bowling said. "Every prospective student is sent a letter about Placement Services Center resources and orientation workshops available to them."

Bowilng said that freshmen often wait until winter term to apply for a job and that it is a lot tougher to find one that fits their needs.

He added that students should apply in their dormitories and that the majority of jobs involve food service and house keeping. He also said there are more jobs for students who are familiar with computers, typing or shorthand. He said, "With any of these skills, you're practically guaranteeing yourself an on-campus job."

Bowling said that a national study showed that students who didn't work were less likely to graduate than those students who did work. "Students who work generally don't feel as lost when they enter a university; they make friends with the staff, and they feel like they fit in." He added some students find working beneficial because they manage their time better.

The minimum wage for MSU is $3.85 which is higher than the national minimum wage of $3.35. Working hours are limited to about 29 hours per week, but most students choose to work about 10 hours per week.

Bowling added that the "University likes hiring students because they have proven themselves to be good workers."

In addition to the immediate rewards, students who have worked will also be more attractive to employers. "Future employers put a lot of emphasis on whether students worked while going to school," Bowling said. "Recruiters tell us that career jobs or any type of job is important; It could make the difference when employers are comparing applications."

He also said MSU's job program is more extensive than that of several universities.

"Most universities only hire students with financial aid or work study programs and other students have to seek jobs off campus on their own," Bowling said.

Placement Services Center also carries a complete listing for off-campus jobs. Students just make an appointment with a counselor to find out what jobs are available, and they they must get the job on their own. "We want students to apply for jobs because we feel it is a valuable learning experience and it parellels the real job market," Bowling said.

High school seniors interested in additional job information or financial aid can contact their high school counselor or Bowling through Placement Services Center of MSU.

Laura Coen is a Michigan State University senior and a 1981 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

New recreational facilities sought for Beaver Island Community School

by PEG OHLE

The 62 children of the Beaver Island Community School, their adult friends, and summer visitors will soon have some recreational facilities if their grant application to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) for a ports complex is approved.

For years, the only play area on Beaver Island has been a softball field. When Shari Hogue took over as principal of the school last year, she noted the lack of facilities and decided to do something about It. She enlisted the help of Mike Davis, County Recreation Director, and together they devised a plan to fit the present needs of Island residents.

The proposed play area is adjacent to the school building. It consists of platform tennis courts, a tots' playground with timber equipment, a soccer field, portable bleachers, and a par cour (a fitness trail with exercise stations every 100 feet or so along the way).

The total cost of the project is estimated at $60,000, with the Recreation Services Division of the DNR being asked for a grant of $30,000 and the remaining $30,000 coming from the school district in the form of services and materials.

Sports-minded Ms. Hogue did not wait for this sports complex to be completed before bringing a sports event to the Island, however. Last fall, she arranged an International Island Soccer Tournament, with teams from Washington Island (Wisconsin) and St. Joseph Island (Ontario) competing against the home Beaver Island team. The games were played on a make-shift field behind the Circle M.

Council okays budget

by DAVE KNIGHT

Following a public hearing March 4, the Charlevoix City Council approved a 1985-86 city budget totaling $5,257,645 in expenses for the fiscal year starting April 1.

By a 5-0 vote (Councilman F. Earl Muma was absent) Council accepted without comment the budget as proposed by City Manager Michael Wiesner. Expenses were held to a .91 increase over the 1984-85 budget, largely due to the abscence of any major construction projects for the coming fiscal year.

While earlier reports based on information provided by the city indicated 1985-86 expenses totaling $5,250,445 - a .77 increase over 1984-85 - the actual figures approved by council included a +$7,200 adjustment in the major street fund due to a mathematical error.

Income totaling $5,339,545 is projected with the lion's share coming from electric sales of $2,537,200.

A total tax revenue of $852,700 is to be generated by a levy of 13.6 mills. That includes 10.6 mills for operational purposes and 3 mills for debt retirement and represents a decrease of .1 mill from last year's levy of 13.7 mills.

The only fund balance which will experience significant change in the new budget is the sewer fund for which a positive balance of $47,318 is projected. The sewer fund, in recent years, has been operated consistently in the red.

For contribution information, those interested are to contact Terry Isenbarger, Charlevoix High School.

Top 'O' Michigan to sponsor D.C. trip

Two high school students from the area will be chosen by the Top O'Michigan Rural Electric Company for an all-expense paid trip to Washington, D.C., scheduled for June 9-14.

The selected applicants will join 1,000 other young Americans from all over the country for the annual Rural Electric Youth Tour.

Activities during the busy week-long stay at the capital include visits to historical sites and congressional offices, a dance and an "Energy Battle" competition among the various state delegations.

Only sophomores or juniors will be considered for the trip. Interested students must write a letter in 500 worlds or less, explaining why they want to represent Top O'Michigan and, secondly, what it means to be a rural electric co-op member. Send letter by May 1 to Dave Guzniczak, Top O'Michigan, PO Box 70, Boyne City, MI 49712.

The Michigan Electric Cooperative Association in Lansing Is arranging travel plans and accomodations for participating rural electric state co-ops. Chaperones will accompany the Michigan delegation.

In Washington, the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association will coordinate the tour's special program. NRECA has directed the tour for over 20 years.

Knight on the Town

Spring comes to Frobischer

by Dave Knight

As luck would have it, Sunday - the day the clouds parted and the warmth of a new season shown upon a winter-weary land -, we ran into the irrascible Edmund K. Frobischer whom we know as The Man Who Hates Spring. He was strolling rather aimlessly downtown and fumbling with a tiny cassette deck, earphones. clamped to his balding head.

Courier: Mr. Frobischer...Mr. Frobischer!

Frobischer: What?

Courier: How are you today?

Frobischer: What?

Courier: I said, how are you?

Frobischer: What?

Courier: I said, how are...wait a minute, why don't you take those earphones off?

Frobischer: What? Wait a minute. Let me take these earphones off.

Courier: Listening to some beautiful music to accompany this beautiful day, were you? Most likely something classical, I'll wager.

Frobischer: Why no. Nothing of the sort. It's a tape of sound effects. Train whistles, squeeling tires, screaming women...I guess they use it for radio plays and commercials. (He keeps twisting a dial on the cassette deck.) But I just can't get it loud enough.

Courier: Loud enough?

Frobischer: Yes. Even at top volume, I can still hear all that blasted cheeping and chirping around town.

Courier: You mean the birds?

Frobischer: Is that whose responsible? Can't city council do anything about it?

Courier: I'm afraid not. Birds aren't technically city residents. They're more like resorters; they leave in the fall and come back in the spring.

Frobischer: Well, I wish they'd keep to themselves.

Courier: Most people find the sound of birds singing very relaxing.

Frobischer: Who has time to relax? I've still got too much snow to shovel.

Courier: That's odd...It hasn't snowed for days.

Frobischer: Precisely. My walk is clear and I can't seem to keep the snow on it for more than half a day with these temperatures.

Courier: You shovel snow onto your walk?

Frobischer: Of course. I read in the paper where the city will fine anyone who doesn't keep shoveling their sidewalk. Once you clear all the snow off, you have nothing to shovel so, to keep shoveling, I just keep throwing snow back on. But it...

Courier: Keeps melting.

Frobischer: Why, yes! Do you have the same problem?

Courier: Tell you what. I don't think the city would mind if you quit shoveling for a few months. Next time I'm in city hall, I'll tell them you're taking a break until, say, next December. I think they'll understand.

Frobischer: Gee, would you? That'd be great! Life sure would be easier if we didn't get this damnable warm weather every year this time, wouldn't it?

Courier: Uh, yes I suppose it would. Just one of the hardships of living below the Arctic Circle.

Frobischer: (Putting his earphones back on.) What's that?

Courier: Never mind.

Frobischer: What?

Post office ...

Wiesner, had the advantages of sooner completion and wider exit onto State St, Disadvantages, however, were that the post office would most likely wind up outside of the downtown area, there would be no access to the back (east) of the fire station and parking would be remote from city hall.

In one of the two new proposals, the current post office site would be turned into parking and the plan to expand the fire station northward would remain the same.

In the other, the fire station would expand eastward onto the post office property and additional parking would be provided on the site of the former Erber building.

In both the new proposals, about 47 feet of the back yard of the Sybil Levinson property would be purchased for more parking also. Both will also depend opon post office approval. Wiesner said the cost for all three plans is approximatley the same, an estimated $300,000, and all three provide about the same sqare footage for the new fire station.

Wiesner said that as soon as the real estate office of the U.S. Postal Service responds to the proposals, the matter will go back to city council for further work. City Planning Commission Chairman Walter Hufford urged the council, at the March 4 session, to involve the Commission in the process as well.

Since the new fire truck to arrive this spring is too high for the present fire station doors, Wiesner said that the floor of the Erber building, where some fire trucks are now stored, will be lowered about six inches to accomodate it until a new station is built.

Clockwise

Born too soon

by Bob Clock

I have been busy examining the nooks and crannies of Jennifer's luggage to see if there isn't some way I could disguise myself as a package of chewing gum or a roll of life savers and stow away to Paris for a few days.

Several members of the French class, chaperoned by Richard and Yvonne Wendt, are making the trip this month, departing from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., March 22 and returning to the Soo March 30.

Except for a last-day visit to Versailles, the students will spend the entire time exploring the wonders of Paris in the spring.

Not only will they visit the Louvre, the Arch of Triumph and the Eiffel Tower, but they will sample the best of French cuisine every blessed day — up to and including a glass of amusing claret or outspoken burgundy with dinner. Wine is an integral part of dining a la francais, and Mme. Wendt has been thoughtful enough to ask parental permission for students to have one glass of wine with the evening meal.

All of which brings me to the point:

Kids do far more interesting things today than they did when I was young.

At Detroit's Northwestern High, students traditionally traveled to Washington and New York by train for their senior trip. My sister went in 1942 and the entire week-long junket, including meals, travel ond lodging, cost $45. I thought such an outlandish expense would ruin the family, but it didn't.

Four years later when I graduated, I had already saved enough money to visit Washington by bus and I didn't want to waste the fare visiting someplace I had already been. So I stayed home. I was a real tightwad.

In those days, no one even considered going to Europe. For one thing, almost all overseas travel was by ship and a nice relaxing "Grand Tour" would take forever. Furthermore, no one had the money.

But all that has changed. Our Kate visited Quebec Province and spent a summer studying at the University of Valencia — at her own expense. And now Jenny will soon be off to Paris, footing most of the bill herself. Allison is talking about Spain in 1986.

Meanwhile, mom and dad get all excited at the prospect of having a baked potato at Wendy's in Traverse City on a Saturday afternoon.

Either we were born too soon, or happiness is relative. I'm not sure which.

Au revoir.

Memories of a great father-in-law

by DENNIS GRUSE

It was an early Wednesday morning phone call that carried the message: "Tell Denny they have smoked fish at Cross'."

I hadn't even begun stirring in bed yet let alone gotten up on that sunshiney day of Feb. 20 that would see me heading for a series of flights to my final destination in New Orleans.

Yet my father-in-law, Bob Withers of Stover Road, had gotten on the phone from his hospital bed in Petoskey and checked to see where I could get some smoked fish to take home with me.

I sit here with tears in my eyes recalling one of those final memories of the 21-plus years during which Bob had been one of the finest in-laws a guy ever could want.

Initially, I was surprised that Bob had bothered to find out where during the cold winter that I could get one of my favorites - smoked fish. For Bob was fighting physically to stay alive and enjoy many more years with his wife Millie, daughter Monte, three grandsons and the many friends for whom he cared so much. And those battles included the psychological struggles that come with knowing death could be near.

In effect, Bob was in a Catch 22 situation with a serious asthma problem triggering serious heart problems and vice versa. Even his fine doctors weren't always certain which had caused which attack, sending hum back to the hospital for more badly needed emergency care.

I'm ashamed somewhat now for being surprised by Bob's call. The evening before I had asked him where I might find some, and Bob knew how much I enjoyed smoked fish and always brought me some when ever he visited.

You see, I shouldn't have been surprised because Bob always cared. And once again I found him caring, this time just a few days before he would be taken to the operating room to try to give him a longer and more meaningful life.

Unfortunately that Feb. 26 heart operation couldn't save him. He died that night.

Bob always had cared. I know that not just from the way he treated me and my family and from my association with him and his life, but also from what the many people I've met in Charlevoix have told me.

Bob enjoyed people. And part of that enjoyment incloded concern about their welfare.

The people of Charlevoix held a special place in Bob's heart, for he had lived there all his life and appreciated the various roles they played in the community he loved so much.

And Bob's love of those people and his town carried over into his travels. When he visited, he always spoke of his townsfolk and their accomplishments, whether major or minor. And he always was thinking and talking about his hometown and all that makes it the beautiful site it is.

Bob Withers

That same fondness also involved concern for Charlevoix's welfare. He might be worried about one project having a bad effect on the town. Another conversation might find him proodly describing a development be thought would help Charlevoix.

I remember vividly many conversations we had in the kitchen of Mont's Cafe, which he had helped his parents, Mont and Zelma Withers, operate until it was closed in 1981. And from that restaurant's downtown location on Bridge Street across from the park overlooking the lake, Bob also kept tabs on many of the thing's happening in town.

"There must be a wreck on the north side of town. Meg (Don Meggison) just headed that way with his wrecker," he'd note back when that special friend operated a service station where the Seven-Eleven store now stands at Bridge Street and Belvedere Avenue.

Bob had many special friends - too many to list without inadvertently omitting some names. And many a discussion about the latest news in Charlevoix would take place when they'd drop by to sit down at the round table in the back of the restaurant kitchen and have a cup of coffee while Bob kept pace over the stoves with the busy procession of food orders the waitresses would bring.

Some of those friendships were with people he had known all his life. Some were with people who had come to town and been folks he thought of as assets to the spirit that makes Charlevoix the place he liked so much.

Charlevoix High School played a much bigger role in the life of Bob Withers than I'm sure he ever thought it would when be graduated from there in 1936. For Bob continued to be an active booster of the school's athletic programs for the rest of his life. He developed many special friendships at those games, both from the fans and from the younger generations of athletes and their peers.

Bob found Charlevoix High sports more than just a series of games to kill some time at, for he would discuss the team and its accomplishments out of town as well as in town. In fact, one of the more enjoyable moments of one of Bob's later hospital stays was a special leave to attend a Rayder game.

Charlevoix's waterways and woods carried special meanings for Bob too. Every morning before the restaurant would open he'd always make an inspection of the lake fronts.

And often when I was visiting he'd call to his house from the restaurant telling us to make sure we didn't miss seeing a big boat in the harbor.

I'll be back to Charlevoix again with my family to visit with Bob's wife of 45 years, the former Millie LaBlance. And we'll have more good times and see many of the things we see now and many new places still to come. However, Charlevoix just won't seem the same without Bob around because this town meant so much to him.

When Bob Withers died, Charlevois lost someone special to so many people here. And I think he was special because he cared. He fully appreciated the good-side of people here and realized what an important asset that is to any community.

Bob is gone from Charlevoix now. However, for many years memories of Bob withers will remain a part of Charlevoix. For Bob's concern and caring spanned many local generations ranging from those years older than he to the community's newest generation. Bob was a friend of old and young and those inbetween like me.

Bob's spirit undoubltedly will continue in Charlevoix for the years those generations continue to live here for he had a positive impact on many. And I know in my heart that Bob has taken with him to his new spiritual world a love and zest for Charlevoix that will continue forever after.

DAVE BUDAY, son of Edward, Sr. and Joan Buday of Charlevoix and a student at Aquinas College in Grand Rapids, is spending the winter semester in Tully Cross, a small rural town in County Galway, western Ireland.

As one of the 27 students participating in Aquinas' 14th annual Semester in Ireland program, he will experience Irish culture firsthand by living among the people of Tully Cross until April. He will also study Irish literature and history, among other subjects, and have the opportunity to work in the local shcools and visit places of interest.

Tully Cross itself consists only of a church, a town hall, two grocery stores, two pubs, a gas pump, and nine thatched holiday cottages which the students use during their stay. Here they do their own cooking and housekeeping, and nearly double the town's population.

Annis is featured in McCune display

Fifteen prize winning artworks, designed for publication as postcards, will be on display in the sales gallery at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center through mid-April.

Among the winning oils, watercolors, photographs, and pastels is an acrylic, "Pair of Spawning Rainbows," painted by Charlevoix artist Jim Annis.

Annis entered the annual postcard competition, sponsored in 1984 by the Traverse City Arts Council. Winning artworks have been reproduced for sale in packages representing each of the final fifteen selections. Packets of the postcards are also available in the arts center sales gallery.

Annis, a self-taught artist, began to portray wildlife scenes after establishing himself as a painter of nostalgic rail ahd ship and automobile scenes. Game fish have always been among his most successful subjects.

In 1980, Annis was chosen a National Wildlife artist for three of his fish scenes, one of which was chosen by Roger Tory Petersen as the illustration for that year's Wildlife Federation stamp.

His artwork has appeared on the covers of "Fur, Fish and Game", "Michigan Out of Doors", "Salmon Trout Steelheader", "Michigan Fisherman", and the "Michigan Angler's Guide."

This is the second time Annis has had work chosen for a postcard competition; he was co-winner of the Little Traverse Conservancy artwork competition with his winter scene portraying the lighthouse on the Pine River channel in Charlevoix.

Annis' prints are displayed in numerous galleries throughout the country; including the Art Tree, a sales gallery in the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center in downtown Petoskey. His most recent print edition, the Medusa Challenger in the Chicago River, is on exhibit in the current gallery show at the Arts Center, entitled "The Great Lakes Art and Artifacts". The show runs through the end of March.

Assembly of God sets prison ministry program

On Sunday March 17 at 6 p.m. the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church on Highway M-66 will present a program on prison ministry. Michael Lash, the Michigan State Director for Prison Fellowship will be the speaker. The program will include information about Prison Fellowship and its relationship to the local churches in terms of their involvement in the criminal justice system. A film showing the ministry at work within the prison will also be shown.

Prison Fellowship was founded in 1976 by former presidential aide Charles W. Colson following his seven month prison term for a Watergate-related offense. The organization has ministered to more than 40,000 prisoners, with the assistance of over 30,000 volunteers. Prison Fellowship has been acknowledged by the Associated Press to be "one of the fastest growing, most dynamic movements of modern times to reform prisoners - and prisons." Working in 358 state and federal prisons, the internationally established group assists prisoners, ex-prisoners, and their families through an extensive network of local churches and volunteer "care committees."

Efforts are presently being made to expand the work of the ministry to include those areas of need which directly impact the ex-prisoner and his family. Such things as housing, employment, transporatlon, church affiliation and the like are critical concerns that Prison Fellowship assists the church in addressing.

Lash comes to Prison Fellowship following a varied career in public education and social services. Having taught in Chicago's "inner city", he earned a Master's Degree in Criminal Justice from the University of Illinois at Chicago. He, then, moved into the social service field in Boston, Massachusetts where he worked with unskilled minority youth and the chronically mentally ill in vocational training and rehabilitation.

Lash, his wife and 15 year old son live in the Grand Rapids area.

For Saints and Sinners

Assembly of God

The presence of TCE and other potentially carcinogenic chemicals in the water supply for the city of Charlevoix is a matter of great concern not only to those of us who live in the city but to folks throughout our region. And so it should be. Local, State, and Federal agencies are involved in finding the sources of the pollution and grappling with tough issues that surround the solution to the problem. Lives are at stake.

As a spiritual leader, I am concerned about another serious kind of pollution. The pollution of the minds and souls of people through the immoral influences pervading our printed, audio, and visual media. Filth by the ton is dumped upon the minds of Americans daily through the printed page and through the broadcasting media with an ultimate affect that is just as serious as the pollution of our water and air. Common sense, and Biblical values, should rally us to as much action over the latter concern as over the former. Again, lives are at stake.

Canada's Ambassador to the United Nations recently said, as one example, that some television programs do "permanent damage to the most decent and precious parts of the human spirit". Stephen Lewis told a teacher's conference, "What children are watching is, more frequently than not, violence, sexism, a debasement of human values, and a destruction of the English language. There are no more secrets, there is no more childhood · children see everything, know everything."

This statement regarding the moral pollution on television is cited only as one example. Suggestive music on our radios and the proliferation of porno literature on our newstands are more sources of deadly spiritual pollution.

The old adage says that while we cannot keep the birds from flying over our head we can keep them from nesting in our hair. While we cannot always deal with spiritual pollution at its source we can deal with the television programs we allow into our living room and the prono that is sold in the stores of Charlevoix the Beautiful. While dealing with chemical pollution let's also deal with spiritual pollution.

Rayders capture District crown

by ULF EVALDSSON

The Rayders are rolling!

Unleashing a furious attack on Lincoln-Alcona in the District finals at East Jordan Saturday, the Charlevoix cagers made it abundantly clear that they are not ready to hang it up for the season quite yet, thank you.

A stunning 80-52 victory clinched the District crown for the Rayders, whose 86-74 victory over East Jordan Thursday put them in the title game.

The two games were a curious reversal of expectations as the East Jordan Red Devils, whom Charlevoix had overwhelmed twice in the regular season, gave the Rayders a surprising battle while Lincoln-Alcona, 20-1 and ranked, rolled over.

More on that later.

First, mention should be made of the Rayders' March 1 regular season finale at Cheboygan, their most exciting game of the year so far.

Cheboygan trailed 18-10 and 35-30 at the first two quarters but surged back to a 55-46 lead at the end of the third period, much thanks to sharpshooter Tim Johnson, who scored 10 points in the quarter. Rayders realized what was going to happen and began to catch up with the Chiefs, and when Sean Ferguson scored, be made it 62-all. Ferguson also gave the Rayders the lead back by bringing it to 64-62.

The Chiefs knotted the score again, and when Greg Hollstrom canned a basket, making it 66-64, the clock showed 0:34. Tom Donovan extended the lead to 68-64, and with 18 more seconds left in the game, Judy Putman helped Charlevoix to make it 68-66. In the last remaining second, John Pearl hit the two-pointer to send the game into overtime.

The Rayders evidently had the most energy left and went on to a 80-74 win, capping a 19-1 regular season. Scorers for the Rayders were Brent Cole 22, Ferguson 16, Putman 14 Pearl 10, Will Syvertsen and Doug Sloan 8 each and Jim Martin 2 points.

Moving into the District Tournament, the Rayders played East Jordan Thursday night after the Devils beat Boyne City 77-59 in the first round Tuesday. Quarter scores were 17-14, one point behind 38-37 at half time and 57-50 at the end of the third.

The Devils, on their home court, put up a good fight against the Rayders who were without the services of senior forward John Pearl. Charlevoix realized it had a ball game on its hands when all of a sudden it was late in the third quarter and East Jordan held an eight-point lead.

Charlevoix jumped to a 9-6 lead in the early going but just couldn't seem to put any distance between them and East Jordan as they had in previous meetings.

Scot Hart made it 9-8, followed by Ferguson's field goal and Mike Goebel's which brought it to 11-10. Sloan and Ferguson made it 17-10 before Goebel could snap back with two buckets, making it 17-14 in the end of the first stanza.

Beginning the second quarter, Gary Coolman made it 17-16, but Cole made sure to keep the laed when he hit another basket for the Rayders. Later, Cole and Ferguson made it 23-18, but firmly determined that the Devils not fall too far behind, Goebel brought it to 23-22 with two field goals. Sloan responded by making it 26-22, but the Devils wouldn't lose contact with the Rayders. Keyplayer Goebel scored a basket and eventually, the Devils tied the score 26-all with a bucket by Hart.

Later, Goebel, who was to become top scorer for the Devils, knotted the score 30-all, and when he boosted the Devils to a 34-30 lead, a ripple of excitement started to spread in East Jordan's gymnasium. Goebel brought it to 38-33, but Putman helped the Rayders to snap back to 38-37 with two free throws.

Going into the second half, the Devils really hit their stride, springing to a sudden 48-40 lead through field goals by Goebel, Coolman and Hart. Unaccustomed to being behind by as much as eight points in a game, Sloan and Putman scored two baskets each bringing it to 48-all, and when Cole made another basket, he had regained the lead for the Rayders.

Putman turned up again and made it 53-48 for the Rayders, who now really started to loosen up and take complete control of the scoring and the play. Cole made it 57-50, and going into the final quarter, the Rayders had turned a 48-40 deficit into a 57-50 lead, and they were on their way.

Beginning the final stanza, Cole and Putman even extended the lead 61-50 before Coolman could score again for the Devils. Through the quarter the Rayders managed to keep a 10 point lead, and when Syvertsen scored in the last minutes of the game, he made it 83-69. The Devils had been able to stay close to the Rayders through the whole game but had to give up to a better and more durable Rayder team. Pacing the scoring for the Rayders, Cole had 30 points, Sloan had 21, Putman 15, Ferguson 12, Syvertsen 7 and Martin 1. The game's top scorer was East Jordan's Mike Goebel with 33 points.

Lincoln-Alcona didn't cause the Raydera any problems at all Saturday night as the Raydera seemed to dominate most of the play through the game. Immediately, the Rayders shocked the Tigers by jumping to a 20-2 lead in the first quarter, before Mike Lewis and Steve Yokom could ease the pain a little bit by making it 20-6. Pearl went on scoring for the Rayders but the damage had been done so even as the Tigers began to find their rhythm, the opening deficit bung around their necks the rest of the night.

Lewis and Yokom brought it to 22-10, Sloan hit a bucket, and ending the first quarter, Dan Jamieson made it 24-12. Thanks to their early surge, the Rayders had already put themselves in a comfortable lead, a lead they needed now when Alcona finally managed to get into the game.

Cole hit a free throw, and so did Yokom, so when Steve LeMere hit his following field goal, he made the score 26-16. Cole and Sloan brought it to 30-16, guarding the lead, and even if Jamieson and Yokom helped the Tigers to creep closer to the Rayders lead, Cole and Putman canned two field goals, bringing it to 34-20. Pearl extended the lead 38-21, and although Yokom and Jim Gunn later helped the Tigers to make it 40-26, Pearl and Putman made sure to reach a satisfying 46-26 lead at halftime.

The Rayders controlled the floor and grabbed most of the rebounds, which meant a great deal for the play. The Rayders had no less that 55 rebounds, while Alcona grabbed 31. Top rebounder Will Syvertsen caught 16 of the Rayders' 55.

Starting out the third quarter, Jamieson and Todd Friedt made the score 49-34, but Syvertsen, Ferguson and Cole jumped to a safer 57-34 lead. Jamieson snapped back to 57-38, but Cole and Sloan extended the lead again to 61-38, before Steve Braamse and Friedt brought it to 61-42.

The Rayders kept a 15-20 point lead through the final quarter, and to the end Alcona caused lots of fouls, trying to get the ball; they didn't have much of a choice. Martin and Ferguson brought it to 73-48 and even if Lewis poured in another basket for the Tigers, Pearl and Tim Salmonson took the benefit of making it 76-50. John Budreau canned the last basket for the Tigers, before Salmonson could settle the final score, 80-52, through two free throws.

"I have to say that I'm really pleased with the team. They did the right thing and it was a great effort by everyone", Rayder Coach Dave Smith said smiling after the game.

Although an 80-point output is not too shabby, it was the Rayders' defense, perhaps, that played the most important part in Saturday's contest. All-state candidate Todd Friedt, who averaged over 27 points a game this season, was handcuffed by Cole and managed only two points the entire first half and eight total for the game.

Top scorer in the game, Brent Cole, scored 19 points, Ferguson had 16, Pearl 12, Putman 11, Sloan 9, Salmonson 6, Syvertsen 5 and Martin 2. Syvertsen impressed with his 16 rebounds, of which he grabbed 10 in the first half, Putman had 9, Cole and Pearl 8 apiece, Sloan 7, Martin 3, Ferguson 2 and Salmonson and Joe Hayes 1 apiece. Scorers for the Tigers were Jamieson 12, Yokom 11, Friedt 8, Lewis and LeMere 6 each, Gunn 4, Braamse 3 and Budreau 2.

Charlevoix now advances to Regional competition at Gaylord where, on Tuesday, they will play Benzie Central (15-8), who walloped Mancelona 89-53 in its district final Saturday.

Measles outbreak downstate prompts area warning from the District Health Department

Brian Youngs, M.D., Medical Director of District Health Departments No. 3 and 4 is warning parents of the continuing danger of childhood diseases and urging them to make sure that all of their children are fully immunized.

He is especially concerned at this time because of the recent report of a measles outbreak in southern Michigan. Measles is a highly contagious and serious disease complicated by middle ear infections, pneumonia and inflammation of the brain. It is important that children age 15 months and older are protected against measles.

A vaccine can prevent measles in 95 out of 100 immunized individuals. There are four groups of people who have the greatest risk of developing measles:

1. Individuals who have not been immunized and were born after 1956;
2. Individuals who received an immunization prior to 12 months of age;
3. Individuals who received an immunization along with immune globulin;
4. Individuals who were immunized with a killed vaccine, or a vaccine of unknown type, between 1963 and 1967.

The Health Department recommends a series of immunizations that should be started at 2 months of age. The schedule for active immunizations by 4-6 years of age includes a basic series of five (5) doses of diptheria, tetanus toxoid and pertussis (DPT); and four (4) doses of trivalent oral polio vaccine (TOPV); and one dose each of measles, mump and rubella vaccine (MMR). Parents-guardians should check each child's immunization record to insure they are properly immunized against all preventable childhood illnesses, especially measles.

For more information about immunizations, contact your physician or the office of the District Health Department No. 3 in Charlevoix at 616-547-6523.

To hold dog obedience classes

A 10-week series of dog obedience training classes is being offered by the Charlevoix County Humane Society on Tuesday nights, beginning April 2, at the Boyne City High School.

Further details may be obtained by calling the Humane Society, phone 547-9711, between 1 and 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, or Pat Sturm, phone 582-9220.

Building permits pick up

Last month, 20 Charlevoix County residents apparently foresaw the coming of spring.

That many applied for permits from the County Department of Building Inspection. While only one permit was for a new house, nine permits were for residential additions and remodeling, one was for a garage, and one was for an outbuilding.

Three permits were also issued for commercial additions and remodeling, two for mobile homes, and one for a demolition.

The Building Department has issued a total of 37 permits this year for work estimated at $475,265.

Students who excel

Computers hold Gray's interest

by ANNE KELLY

"He's very clever with the computer," explained Ken Bartley, Charlevoix High School computer instructor, of student, Ken Gray. Bartley had recommended young Gray for the Conrier's series of articles on students who excel.

When the assignment of making a maze was completed, Ken had discovered a way to make a "meze program" and then recorded it on a floppy disc. His program saved 50-70 lines of computer input instructions.

"You see," quipped Bartley, "'Ken discovered that laziness is sometimes the mother of invention. If you're intelligent, you won't have to go through all the rote steps. You discover shortcuts to the solution."

Ken recalls that he's always loved the challenge of meth. Participating in the QUEST program for the gifted and talented when living in Hemlock, Michigan, he was one of two students to advance to the district level of math competition in both the 6th and 7th grades.

"We did a lot of logic and problem solving in that program," Ken recalls. Perhaps the exercise in reasoning led to Ken's fascination with computers when he reached Charlevoix High School. As a freshman, his Geometry class was held next door to the computer room. Ken found himself "fooling around" with the computers every chance he got. As a junior, taking Computers II, Ken is an outstanding student, according to has teacher.

Putting expertise into practice, this enterprising young man, at the recommendation of Bartley, already has computer-related jobs on the side. Ken programs the subscribers mailing list for Dan Iannotti, editor-publisher of an investors advisory newsletter, put out by the JS & A Advisory Digest.

He also has begun a sideline of tutoring in the operation of home computers. Buy a computer and wonder what you'll do with it now? For a mere $10 for a two-hour session, Ken will be glad to show you.

The future? Computers, of course, Ken looks toward a computer-related career and hopes to attend a Bell and Howell DeVry Tech, branches of which are located in Canada, Dallas, Chicago, and other locations around the country.

In the meantime Ken will be one of six advanced math students taking calculus at North Central Michigan College next year, and one of two seniors advanced to independent study in Computers III with Bartley.

Ken Gray and friend.

Condo developer still wants to talk

Larry Wilkinson, coordinator of the so-called Altman Project on the north bank of Pine River Channel, said Monday he is still willing to sit down with city officials in an effort to rescue the defunct project.

However, he said the development hinges entirely on control of the Charlevoix Oil Co. property on the west side of Michigan Avenue.

The property was to have been the site of a convention center and parking ramp, without which a 58-room hotel on the site of the former Finn Lumber Co. would not be feasible, Wilkinson said.

City Manager Michael Wiesner reported Friday that the city was no longer pursuing a $1.4 million Urban Development Action Grant for the convention center and parking structure.

Ron Pair, who was purchasing the Fochtman property on a land contract when he was forced into bankruptcy last spring, also reported Friday that his attorneys and attorneys for the Altman Development Corp. had not been able to reach agreement on a purchase price.

Pair said he wanted $300,000 for the property but was willing to go as low as $260,000.

Wilkerson said the company was willing to pay $175,000. He also said he understood Pair was standing fast at $300,000; he said he was unaware of the $260,000 figure.

Pair bought the property from Fochtman for $200,000, paying $20,000 down and the balance in monthly installments, with 11-percent interest on the unpaid balance. Pair said he had paid about $110,000 on the property before filing for bankruptcy.

FIREFIGHTERS attempt to contain a fire that destroyed Wojan Wood Products on Saturday night. Firemen were on the scene until noon Sunday.

Investigators sift fire ruins

CHARLEVOIX TWP. — The state fire marshal's office, Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and Charlevoix Township fire officials continue to investigate the cause of a Saturday night blaze that destroyed Wojan Wood Products on Stover Road.

Two state fire marshal investigators were on the scene Monday sifting through the burned out remains in an attempt to determine the cause.

Fighting the blaze were firefighters from the township and the cities of Charlevoix, East Jordan and Petoskey. A diesel generator for lighting was brought in from Medusa Cement Co.

Destroyed was a 110- by 140-foot cement block building, according to township Fire Chief Jerry Paul. Firefighters were on the scene until noon Sunday.

The structure is owned by Albert Wojan, who lived in a loft apartment at the rear of the building. He had left the building about one hour before the fire was reported at 8 p.m.

Paul said the fire had been burning for some time, as a section of the roof had collapsed by the time firefighters arrived.

In addition to battling the main fire, firefighters worked to protect a storage building east of the wood products building, and houses and apartments west of the building.

Fire hoses were used to pump water from nearby Lake Charlevoix as well as from city and township water sources.

EPA agrees to water plant with expansion capabilities

CHARLEVOIX — Superfund officials in Washington, D.C., have approved the concept of building an expandable water plant in Charlevoix with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency as lead agency, according to Jack Kratzmeyer, EPA project coordinator.

The project, which is intended to give Charlevoix a supply of water free from contamination by the chemical trichlorethylene (TCE), has been delayed because of EPA's policy of not participating in so-called "betterment" projects.

In other words, the EPA could legitimately play a role in replacing Charlevoix's water system, but not in upgrading the system or providing for future growth.

Charlevoix's demand for water already has hit 2.4 million gallons a day and the city council would like a 3-million-gallon-a-day plant to meet future needs.

The state Department of Public Health has ordered the city to build a plant capable of delivering 2.4 million gallons of TCE-free water a day by Jan. 1, 1987.

At a Feb. 27 meeting with state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and public health officials in Lansing, Kratzmeyer suggested the possibility of designing a plant capable of expansion that would cost no more than a non-expandable 2-million-gallon-a-day.

City officials met with representatives of the EPA, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the health department and the DNR in Chicago on March 6 and came to the conclusion that the design of such a plant was possible and feasible.

Kratzmeyer said the plan was approved last week by Bill Hedeman, in charge of the Superfund office in Washington, and Val Adamkus, regional administrator in Chicago.

He said the decision affecting Charlevoix is not exactly setting new policy for the EPA, since the agency does not expect to be involved in many water replacement projects. He said Charlevoix was "unique" in that respect.

The EPA executive said he was contacting the engineering firm of McNamee, Porter and Seeley in Ann Arbor immediately to begin design work, which should be completed in 90 days. He said contracts should be let and construction started as early as August, with completion sometime during the summer of 1986.

The DNR has agreed to help fund the project, with the EPA paying 90 percent and the DNR 10 percent. The city will pay for the expansion, which apparently will involve outfitting the last cell in a four-cell filtering system.

Kratzmeyer said South Shore Equipment Co. of Avon, Ohio, was expected to start moving equipment and supplies to the Lake Michigan site Friday and cement work on the intake system should begin April 1.

South Shore which was originally contracted by build the intake system and then was fired by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers after numerous delays, was rehired by the company's bonding company, Union Indemnity Co. of New York, N.Y., to complete the project. Union Indemnity reportedly will have one of its own engineers overseeing the work.

Completion date for the intake system is June 15.

School board seeks millage renewal, addition

By FRAN MARTIN

A one-year extension of the 15.25 mills for operations and an additional 1.25 mills for one year to underwrite the cost of a renovation program at the Charlevoix Elementary School will appear on the annual school election ballot in June.

The 1.25 mills would fund a new roof, insulation and a new furnace.

In explaining both the proposed millage issues, Vincent Olach, Charlevoix School District business manager, said the extension of the 15.25 mill levy for one year would save the cost of a special election and would allow the school district to conduct the summer tax collection. The present 15.25 mill levy expires Dec. 31.

In order to have a summer tax collection in 1986, it would be necessary to have a special election next winter. By extending the opertaional millage for one year in June until December 1986, the school district could save the expense of the special election, approximately $2,000. Olach stressed the millage was not an increase, but an extension.

WORKERS AT the Big Rock Point nuclear power plant positioned the first of three new spent fuel storage racks in the spent fuel pool last week.

The new racks will raise the number of spent fuel bundles that can be handled on site from 193 to 441.

The request to expand the capacity of the pool was made in 1979 by Consumers Power Co., owner of the plant. Citizen activists fought the expansion, however, and the go-ahead for installing the new racks came in late 1984.

Nuclear plants across the country have been forced to store the highly radioactive spent fuel bundles on site, because there are no reprocessing plants in the country.

Two racks were installed last week.

If the new racks were not installed, the plant would have had only enough space to refuel the reactor one more time. A refueling is scheduled for later this year.

Charlevoix Yesterday

A couple of weeks ago, we ran a picture of a dog sled race on Bridge Street in which George McKenzie was one of the participants. George's brother, Louie, furnished us with the above picture of a race between a horse-powered cart and a horse-powered sled on Bridge Street. He says his father was the driver of one of the vehicles but he doesn't know whether it was the cart or the sled. The buildings in the picture occupied the area where East Park is now located.

Murder trial to be held in Chx. courthouse

By Peg Ohle

There was no official confirmation, but everyone inside the County Building and many people outside the building seemed to know last week that a murder trial was coming to Charlevoix on Monday, March 18.

The first word we had about the trial was a news story in the Traverse City Record-Eagle of March 5, which stated in part, "The murder trial of 20-year-old James Gainforth apparently will be held in Cbsrlevoix beginning March 18...witnesses in the case have been ordered to report to the Charlevoix County Courthouse March 18 for the Gainforth trial..."

However, Janet Dean, Clerk for Charlevoix County Circuit Court, and others in the County Clerk's office would only say they had been instructed to refer any questions about the trial to Traverse City. An inquiry there brought the reply that there was "nothing definite".

According to published reports, Gainforth, a Traverse City resident, is accused in the July 15 murder of James Burton, an attendant at a Shell Mini Mart in Traverse City. Two other Traverse City men, 20-year-old Douglas Hutchinson and 25-year-old Kevin Snyder also faced murder charges in the case. However, through plea bargaining, Snyder has pleaded guilty to armed robbery and Hutchinson has pleaded guilty to second degree murder. They are expected to testify against Gainforth.

The trial is being held in Charlevoix County instead of Grand Traverse County through a process called "change of venue", a relocation ordered by Grand Traverse Circuit Judge Charles Forster because of what he called "excessive pretrial publicity" in that County. Such publicity, he contended, made it impossible for Gainforth to receive a fair trial in Grand Traverse County.

When trials are moved from one County to another, everyone and everything moves with them – the judge, the accused, security people, witnesses, court reporters, and everyone else participating in the trial.

The biggest burden of the trial for Charlevoix County is probably on the jail, which must furnish maximum security for Gainforth as well as Hutchinson and Snyder. (Gainforth escaped from the Grand Traverse jail on January 24.)

Also, Charlevoix Circuit and District Courts must move their proceedings to another location for the length of the Gainforth trial.

According to officials, Charlevoix County does not have to bear the cost of any extra expenses incurred by a change of venue trial. Such expenses are billed to the visiting County.

SIGNING UP potential donor Danielle Johnson, left, is Kathleen Buday, right, of the Charlevoix High School Student Council which sponsored a blood drive in the high school library last Thursday. Ms. Buday said that the drive came close to nearing its goal.

For Saints and Sinners

by Pastor Thom Black
First Baptist Church

A few years ago a group of distinguished historians amused themselves by writing a book called "If" or "History Rewritten". Among these historians were: Van Loon, Maurois, Belloc, Chesterton, and Ludwig. Some of the "if's" which they discussed were these:

If Lee had not lost the Battle of Gettysburg;
If the Moors in Spain had won;
If the Dutch had kept New Amsterdam;
If Louis XVI had had an atom of firmness;
If Booth had missed Lincoln;
If Napoleon had escaped to America.

The attempt to reconstruct the past on the grounds of these hypotheses and to imagine what might have been was an interesting intellectual enterprise. But there is no "if's" in history.

The greatest fact of history is the incarnation of God in Jesus Christ; and therefore the greatest possible imagination - would be "If Christ had not come". Such an "if" is almost to staggering for our minds. It is like imagining the world without a sunrise, or the heavens without a sky. Yet one of the best ways to get at the value and importance of the incarnation and to rescue Christians from mere commercialism and festivity and sentimentalism is to try to think of the world without Christ. Try to think of your own life without Christ. IF I had not come......" John 15:22.

May not replace Island warden

By PEG OHLE

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) does not believe it would be cost effective to appoint another full-time officer to Beaver Island to replace retiring officer Bill Wagner.

That information waa contained in a letter written by DNR Director Ronald O. Skoog to State Senator Mitch Irwin, with a copy to County Commissioner Don Smith.

Skoog'a decision was based on an analysis of work done by Wagner during 1984, which cost the DNR $32,000, including Wagner's salary. The analysis, made by Michael D. Moore, assistant chief of the Forest Management Division, indicates that the work could be done on a part time basis or farmed out at a cost of approximately $5,000 a year, thus saving the State some $27,000.

When the problem of finding a replacement for Wagner was first discussed last October, Smith, who represents Beaver Island on the County Board, made the suggestion that perhaps the DNR job could be combined with that of a part time Sheriff's Deputy. The Sheriff's Department has provided part time law enforcement to the Island for some time. However, residents of the Island indicated this arrangement was not satisfactory to them.

In his analysis of the Beaver Island situation, Moore also indicated that the DNR staff was "strongly opposed to cost sharing a Deputy Sheriff on the Island". However, Director Skoog, in his letter to Senator Irwin, noted that he was "willing to consider this option in exchange for services to be rendered to the DNR" snd was "still willing to discuss that option."

Female inmates pose problems for jail

By Peg Ohle

Women who are apprehended when driving while under the influence of alcohol are causing more than their share of problems for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff George T. Lasater brought this problem to the attention of the County Board of Commissionera last week.

During the first two months of this year, 30 women have served jail sentences for drunken driving and-or violating probation restrictions. Since women must be separated from men at the jail, this means that only two or three, or sometimes only one, occupy a four-person cell, further burdening the already crowded jail facility.

Also, a matron must be on duty whenever a woman is in jail, so extra employee hours are added to jail operation costs. So far this year, overtime hours have amounted to $2,400.

Because the Charlevoix County jail cannot always accomodate women prisoners, the County has a contract with Emmet County to use its jail facilities when needed. In January, Charlevoix County paid Emmet County $2,080 for housing four women prisoners in November and December.

In addition to the 30 women prisoners incarceratedd in January and February, there were 100 men prisoners.

Advertising committee named

Directors of the three Chambers of Commerce in Charlevoix County were recently appointed to the County Advertising Committee by the Board of Commissioners.

Gloria Anderson of Boyne City, Claudia Kenifeck of Charlevoix, and Judy Shea of East Jordan will assist with advertising promotions for the County.

To address Republicans

C. W. McClellan of Harbor Springs, the fifth vice-president of the Republican party of Michigan, will address Charlevoix County Republicans this Thursday (March 21) evening at 7:30 p.m. in the County Building.

In his vice-presidency, McClellan represents senior citizens, and his talk will center around the role of senior citizens in today's Republican party, especially participation at the polls.

McClellan told the Courier that his interest in politics dates back to his college days at Miami University in Ohio, where he could not get a job in the Democrat-run State Highway Department because his mother was an avid Republican.

He renewed his interest in the Republican cause during the Eisenhower campaign, and since his retirement to northern Michigan, Republican politics have taken up most of his time. He is chairman of the Emmet County Republican party, was a delegate to the Republican convention last summer, and was a member of the last Electoral College for the 11th Congressional District.

Opinion

Knight on the Town

Common sense

by Dave Knight

Economic development is an inexact science, to be sure.

How do we make controlled development happen? Who is responsible? How much does it cost? How long does it take?

If there were pat answers to all the above, things would be a lot easier. But there are not so we continue the process of trial and error, pursuing what we consider the most logical avenues as they present themselves.

As unemployment rose to unacceptable levels over the past five to eight years, we watched the local emphasis on job development grow accordingly. There has probably not been a single candidate for city or county office over that period who has not campaigned on the platform of creating more jobs.

The concern has been shared by the private sector as well. For at least the past four years, the Chamber has been actively involved in not only soliciting more business and industry, but also seeing to it that the jobs we have in the community are not lost.

Since 1980, a perceived need for a more agressive approach to economic growth has resulted in the formation of such bodies as the Charlevoix County Economic Development, the Chamber's Industrial Retention Committee and the Business and Industry Task Force to name three. There have been others.

Nobody can say we haven't been trying.

What some are hinting, though, is that the modern approach to economic development is administratively clumsy and unnecessarily expensive.

The Charlevoix Development Corporation has been in existence for about thirty years. Many of the individuals who created CDC are still involved with it and they look back proudly at an solid track record. LexaLite, American Mold (now D-M-E) Hoskins Manufacturing, Freedman Artcraft (now Harbor Industries), Brumm Studio, Phillips Mill...all these firms have been aided in some fashion by CDC.

Treasurer Ed Shanahan figures the group has arranged over half a million dollars in loans and other aid to local entrepreneurs, the result being the creation of countless jobs over the years.

Although it is by definition a financial instrument, CDC has provided its share of moral support to local business and industry, too.

Says Vice President Max Novak, "I don't think most of the people we helped really needed the money as much as they needed some sign of support from the community."

The point CDC members are quick to add is that their achievements have been accomplished without benefit of paid staff, an office, regular meetings or other accoutrements.

"We don't make a lot of flash," says Novak.

So if the more passive, less resource-intensive approach of CDC has been so successful, do we then assume that the more aggressive methods to create jobs are a waste of time and money?

It all depends on how you look at it. Much of modern problem solving on the community level involves the "if-we're-going-to-pay-for-it-we-want-results" attitude. If the results don't show in what enough people think is a reasonable amount of time, the axe falls.

But what's a reasonable amount of time? And what were the expected results? Too often, these parameters aren't as clear at the outset as they might be.

If we're going to approach economic development by continually forming more "alliances" and thus more offices and executive salaries, let's set concrete, measurable goals and plan to evaluate progress toward those goals regularly.

Economic development may be an inexact science but that's no excuse for not using common sense as we venture forward.

Oyster Bay development a good plan

To the Editor:

I must respond to previous letters pretaining to the Oyster Bay Project Proposal, located adjacient to Lake Charlevoix aod presented by Fox and Associates, Inc.

Fox and Associates, Inc. has pursued the best avenue of development planning by choosing the Planned Unit Development Zoning path. Of all zoning guidance procedures, this avenue, the P.U.D., offers the greatest benefit to the neighbors, adjoining property owners, township officials and Lake Charlevoix riparians. In no other procedure is negotiation available to the developer and the public. P.U.D. provides the opportunity to produce the best project for all. Multi-family housing can result in excellent land use more sympathetic to enviornmental preservation then single family. Guidance and education will reward all of us with good land use preserving the natural beauty of Lake Charlevoix ... and maybe all will see the benefit of condensed housing and the P.U.D. procedures.

Let us look at the present plan of the project:

- 126 units on 338 acres, a total of 23 building of approximately 400 sq. ft. each touching the earth, a total coverage of a little over 2 acres.
- Of the total 338 acres only 23 acres (7 percent of the total area) will be in the building and harbor area.
- Drives, parking and tennis courts cover 2.2 acres. The marina (all inland) covers 1.6 acres formerly used as an athletic field by the camp.
- There are a total of 23 building in the project. All of the building except two are in the same area as the existing camp building. Of the four buildings within view of the lake, the closest to the water is 80 feet and the farthest is 200 feet.
- 12 of the buildings are set back from the lakeshore 200 feet or more. 7 of the buildings are set back 500 feet or more. P.U.D. allowed these setbacks to be negotiated.
- The remaining 315 acres will be a designated reverse protecting the adjoining wetland and stream.
- The purpose of the development is to build a project that is environmentally, architecturally, and socially desirable, both for the collective owners and for people of the Township and County. The proposed P.U.D. plan accomplishes this goal.
- All surface drainage is handled on site to preserve the water quality of the existing site and to preserve natural grades. This approach will maintain more natural lake shore than conventional development.
- The proposed harbor and 28-dock facility is all inland, creating a new habitat. This habitat is protected and the harbor partially screened by a 100' wide, 400' long, 10' high berm covered by indigenous plant material, trees, shrubs and grasses ... would the same 28 docks exposed to storm damage and lake view provide the new habitat or the natural appearance of the proposed harbor?
- Municipal sewer and water, constructed at the owners' expense, serve the site and will be available for public use. The systems will be owned and oeprated by the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township respectively. There are many areas along the route with existing homes that desperately need a solution to sewage problems. The developer will provide this opportunity.

Consider these positive remarks:

- Good development and good land use.
- The project will be maintained and serviced by people who live in Charlevoix 365 days a year. New neighbors, good neighbors who wish to enjoy the Northwest as we do, and these neighbors will be an asset to our area.
- Remember we are speaking of families just like yours and mine.

We need to build bridges of cooperation and friendship, not fences of separation and exclusion.

I too have a stake in Charlevoix - 35 employees and their families, friends and a business with a foundation of excellence in the ability to enhance the environment, beauty and desirability of Lake Charlevoix. I desire to live with my wife and family in Charlevoix, enjoy Lake Charlevoix, and retain its beauty, so that we all may enjoy it in the years ahead.

I believe in the Oyster Bay Project, its concept, the people who will use it, and welcome our new neighbors, work with them and we all will enjoy our Great Northwest.

John W. Campbell, President
Site Planning Development, Inc.

Clockwise

Water plant OK welcome

by Bob Clock

When is the snow going to melt?

I can't recall another year in recent memory when the high banks have lingered so long.

Oh yes; we always have a little skiff of snow on St. Patrick's Day and another on the first day of spring, March 21.

But the banks and drifts usually have subsided — or vanished — long before this.

Maybe we're in for a cold spring and summer.

I remember my Canadian kinfolk talking about a year in the early part of the century that never did warm up. The sun's rays supposedly were blocked by volcanic dust or some such in the upper atmosphere. At any rate, they called that particular year "Nineteen-hundred-and-froze-to-death."

We couldn't have two years like that in the same century, could we?

THE LONG WAIT is over.

City Manager Michael Wiesner reported Friday that the top brass in the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency have approvedthe concept of building an expandable two-million-gallon-a-day water treatment plant for Charlevoix.

This means that engineering can begin immediately and that construction of a new water plant could start as early as August. Completion is practically assured by the following summer.

Charlevoix will then have a supply of water free from contamination by the chemical TCE, which may or may not cause cancer.

Some Charlevoixans have been buying bottled waterever since TCE was discovered in the local supply four years ago. Other residentss, and the Clocks are among them, have continued to drink Charlevoix water, which I have always considered the best-tasting water in the world, TCE or no TCE.

The new water supply will come directly from Lake Michigan, without contamination by the ground water aquifer which presently supplied about one-half of our water. The remainder seeps into the intake system from Lake Michigan.

One benefit that no one even talks about is thatour new water supply should be quite a bit softer than our present water. If you've ever taken a bar of soap down to Lake Michigan you'll know what I mean. The Great Lakes, surprisingly, are very soft compared to groundwater sources.

THE EPA DECISION means that when the plant is completed, Charlevoix will be able to do whatever is needed to expand capacity to 2.4 million gallons a day, as required by the Michigan Department of Public Health.

Hopefully the expansion will cost no more than the $500,000 already approved by the voters for the water project.

Of course, we also were supposed to get some road and sewer improvements for that money, but at this point no one seems to be quibbling.

Watershed Council opposes development

To the Editor:

Tip fo the Mitt Watershed Council is a conservation organization representing 6,000 citizens in Emmet, Cheboygan, and Charlevoix counties. Last June the Watershed Council passed a resolotion of support for Hayes Township's zoning code. We recently reconfirmed our support in light of the lawsuit Fox filed.

Hayes Township demonstrated tremendous foresight by planning for a clean environment. The Watershed Council supports land use planning which promotes wise use of water resources and protects water quality. Uncontrolled growth in Northern Michigan will inevitably result in a decline in environmental quality. One only has to look to the polluted overdeveloped lakes in Southern Michigan to see what the future holds if Hayes Township's ordinance is overturned.

We are not trying to close the door on future growth and development, but we are trying to plan for that growth so we can maintain the beautiful environment we all enjoy. Northern Michigan is special and we want to keep it that way.

The Hayes Township suit is a landmark case. The outcome will determine the ability of townships to regulate future waterfront developoment in Michigan.

The Township code addresses the fact that the cumulative impact of many high density developments will cause degredation of water quality and will reduce recreational enjoyment. Besides being unattractive, polluted lakes are extremely expensive and often impossible to clean up. Instead of being a boost to the local economy they become a drain.

Loss of Hayes Township's code would be a giant step backwards when it comes to protecting our precious water resources. Therefore, the Watershed Council is taking aggressive steps to help the Township. Our Legal Consultant is conducting research for the Township's attorney. Our Science Advisor is compiling lake data. We are spearheading a public information and fundraising effort. We also plan to file an Amicus brief in court.

We are proud of Hayes Township for the foresight and strength they have demonstrated in adopting and standing by a code which will keep Northern Michigan lakes clean and beautiful for the enjoyment of future generations.

THE CHAMBER IS YOU!

As the March winds blow, lots of people GO!

The question is not WHY do people GO, but rather WHERE do people GO?

(The Chamber would like everyone to stay around, or course, but March and April are exceptable options for WHY people GO. "Snowbirds" miss some of the best mud, slush and daffodils though!)

Anyway, back to the question at hand ... Where do people go?

- Sunning in the South - Ft. Lauderdale or the Grand Canyon.
- Sailing on the seas - the Virgin Island or the Keys.
- Skiing out West - Aspen, Vail, or Heavenly Valley.

The fact is, in the next few weeks lots of local people will be traveling.

THE CHAMBER NEEDS YOU!

If you are lucky enough to be going somewhere, help us out.

Please take a minute, visit the local Chamber on your travels, and bing us bakc some good ideas. We are always open to suggestions.

The Reverend Casimir J. Zawacki officiated at the double-ring ceremony before an altar decorated with baskets of pink gladioli and white chrysanthemums.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory organza gown with a Queen Anne ruffled neckline, bishop sleeves of Chantilly lace, and a bodice of matching lace and pearls. The ruffled skirt fell to an attached chapel-length train, and the bride wore a silk flower halo attached to bridal illusion. She carried her mother's daily missal topped with ivory satin and lace, silk gardenias, and ferns.

Linda Empey served the bride as maid of honor, and Sandra Clark and Teresa Brodin were bridesmaids. The maid of honor wore a gown of periwinkle blue, and the bridesmaids wore frost rose gowns with sweetheart necklines, puffed sheer sleeves, and flounced overskits of polyester sheer lined in acetate taffeta. They carried crystal bells accented with silk lilies and ferns.

Poison Prevention Week now being cited

"Children Act Fast ... So Do Poisons." That is the theme of National Poison Prevention Week, March 17-23.

Charelvoix Area Hospital is joining the Northern Michigan Pharmacists Association and other area hospitals to promote an awarenesa of the dangers of accidental poisoning, especially in the home and particularly for children.

As part of the activities to create local awareness of the dangers of accidental poisoning, the pharmacy association has asked the hospitals to join them in sponsoring a "Poison Prevention Poster Contest" for children in the first through third grades in schools throughout Charlevoix, Emmet, Cheboygan and Antrim Counties.

Lani Ochs of Central Drug in Charlevoix is representing the local pharmacy association to area schools, giving poison prevention talks in the schools and promoting participation in the poster contest.

Finished posters from Charlevoix and Antrim Counties will be brought to Charlevoix Area Hospital for judging. The top three posters from each school in the two county area will be hung in the hospital's main lobby and entryway. A reception is planned at Charlevoix Area Hospital for all participating children in Charlevoix and Antrim Counties.

A panel of judges, led by Jim Williams of Charlevoix's Dockside Pharmacy, will select the three top posters and cash prizes will be awarded. In addition the first prize winner from the Charlevoix Area Hospital contest will be automatically entered in the area poster championship, along with winning posters from each of the other participating counties.

Previous missionary activity involved the Loutons in work among the Basuto people in the African kingdom of Lesotho, and the Pedi people of Lebowa in the Northern Transvaal. Two of their four children were born in Southern Africa.

Mr. Louton has been a missionary since 1958. He is a graudate of South African Bible Institute located in the vicinity of Johannesburg. Both he and his wife have studied at Central Bible College, Springfield, Missouri.

Slides of South Africa will be show during the special missions service. Pastor Anderson invites the public to hear Mr. Louton speak.

Rayders title hopes fade

By ULF EVALDSSON

This is it!

The Red Rayders' season was ended Friday night, when they lost to Roscommon 65-59 in the Regional Tournament Class C finals. To qualify to meet Roscommon, Rayders had beaten Benzie Central in a high scoring marathon on March 12, 100-95.

Friday night, the Rayders cold shooting coupled with the near flawless play of Roscommon proved to be the difference. Right from the start it was not to be the Rayders night as an outstanding 22-2 season came to an end.

Charlevoix fell behind early and never did catch up. The Bucks broke to a quick 20-6 lead before the Rayders settled down.

By the end of the first period Roscommon was up 22-10 and increased that margin to 36-22 and 52-37 at the next two quarter breaks. The Rayders biggest deficit was 40-22.

Down by 15 points headed into the last period, Charlevoix suddenly started coming to life. Buckets by Brent Cole and Doug Sloan closed the margin to 57-52 and then to 59-55. Cole made it 61-57 with a minute left but Roscommon successfully starved off any further threat.

For Charlevoix, Cole closed out his career with 28 points, Sloan hit 16, Will Syvertsen eight, Sean Ferguson four and John Pearl three. For the Bucks, Tom Valko hit 24 points and Scott Thompson 22.

On Tuesday is was run and gun all night as the Rayders held off a real good Benzie Central team despite falling behind at one time in the second half.

The Rayders took a 19-18 first period lead and pushed that margin to 50-38 at the half.

Benzie started coming back in the second half and with a 28-19 margin cut the deficit to 69-66.

Early in the final period Banzie finally moved ahead 70-69 but Sloan hit a free throw and Ferguson followed with a bucket to put the Rayders ahead to stay, 72-70.

With four minutes left Charlevoix was back on top by eight points, 83-75, and two minutes later it was 91-81.

Restorting to fouls, Benzie kept sending Charlevoix to the free throw line and the Rayders responded with Ferguson hitting a charity toss with time running out for the 100th point, the first time a Charlevoix team has ever cracked the century mark.

For Charlevoix, Cole finished with 29 points, Sloan had 23, Ferguson 14, Syvertsen 11 Jody Putman 20, Pearl seven and Jim Martin six.

The Rayders will lose five seniors from their Michian-Huron Shores Conference championship team, Cole, Sloan, Pearl, Syvertsen and Martin.

DISAPPOINTMENT filled senior Jim Martin as Roscommon ended the Rayders title hopes Friday.

SENIOR BRENT COLE is consoled after the Rayder's loss Friday. The team ended the season 22-2.

SENIOR DOUG Sloan gets off a shot in the high scoring game against Benzie Central March 12 during the first game of the regional tourney. The Rayders won 100-95.

Students from Charlevoix in the OM competition display some of the creativity they were tested on at competiton in East Jordan Saturday.

March of Dimes challenges student readers

Students at Charlevoix Elementary School are being challenged through the Reading Champions program to read as many books and newspaper articles as they can while raising money for March of Dimes during the month of March.

At an assembly, the students were shown how birth defects in newborn babies can be prevented through proper health habits of the expectant mother, which includes good nutrition and abstinence from drugs, alcohol and smoking. Marlon Parker, Coordinator of the local chapter of March of Dimes, expressed the urgent need of funds to continue research and education of both the professional health care people and the public.

The boys and girls will be signing up sponsors for pledges for the books and articles they read. Olympic-style medals will be awarded to the readers as follows: 4 to 9 books, bronze medal; 10 to 19 books, silver medal; 20 books and over, gold medal. In addition, First State Bank of Charlevoix is providing special prizes for the top readers and top fund-raisers.

The March of Dimes Reading Champions Program is endorsed by National Center for Improvement of Reading, State Library Associations, National Council of Techers of English, and International Reading Association.

Studentsprepare for creativity contest in East Jordan

by ANNE KELLY

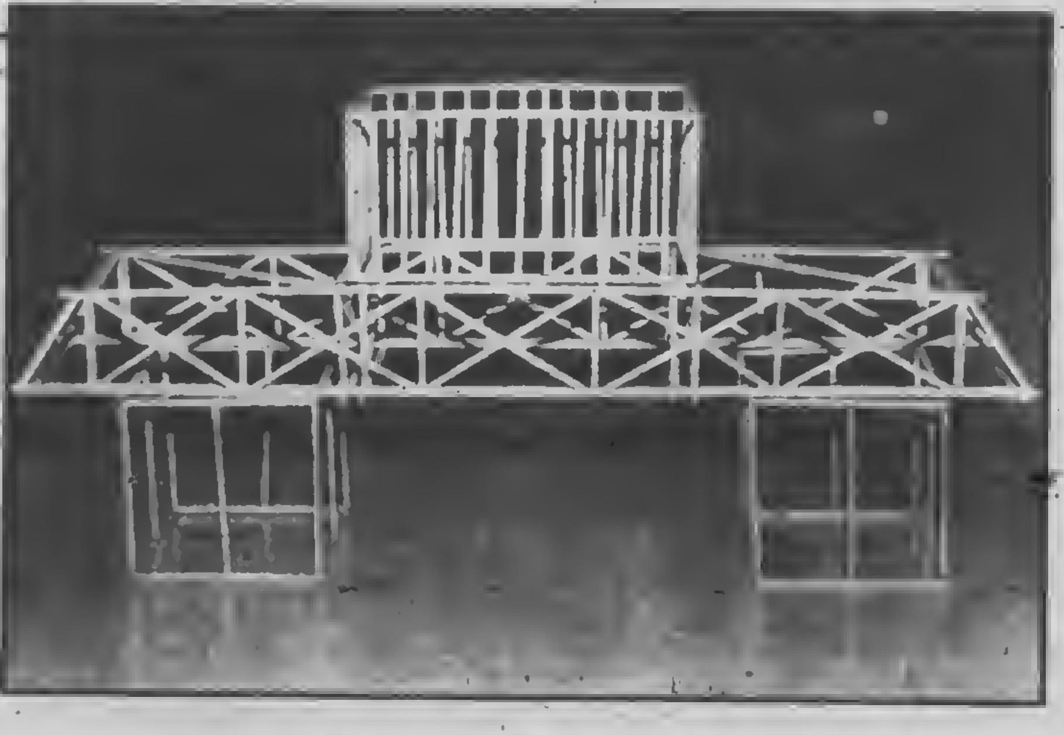
Creativity was the word of the day on Saturday March 16th when six third and fourth graders from Charlevoix Elementary School competed in the Annual Region III OM Association Tournament, held at East Jordan School.

The OM Association Tournament is a creative competition open to all students K-high school. All that's required is many months of preparation by enthusiastic students and dedicated volunteer coaches.

Since mid-December, Charlevoix's team which competed against 8 other teams in their division and participated with 177 teams, have been boning up on the problem subject, "Compound Fracture", as well as practicing to be spontaneously creative on such subjects as: "Pretend you're a piece of popcorn" or "Think of as many things as you can that have holes."

Competition involved a 3-part presentation in which all team members must participate without the assistance of their coaches. I. Spontaneous: is the part of competition in which the team must decide on a solution to a problem in 4 minutes. II. Structure: is the actual construction of 25 grams of balsa wood which will be tested as to how much weight it can withstand before it collapses or the time is up. III. Style: is a skit in which the solution to the above structure problem is dramatically presented.

Coaches Sue Sheets, Neva Himbaugh and Ginny Schairbaum agreed that whatever the outcome of the day, their team learned much about teamwork and sportsmanship.



The Charlevoix students' balsa wood structure.

Artificats on display at McCune

When the legendary steamer Edmund Fitzgerald sank in Lake Superior a variety of floating debris was found two days later. The flotsam from the ship included a few life rings or bouys, one of which is now on display at the Virginia McCune Arts Center.

The Arts Center's Great Lakes Art, Artists and Artifacts has drawn many people during the short time it has been open. On display are paintings by artist's Mary Demroske, Helga Flower, Betty Beeby, William Kuttruff, Steven Kendall, Russell Bolt, and Jim Annis.

Many artifacts have been furnished by the Dossin Great Lakes Museum of Belle Isle, Detroit. Artifacts are also displayed from the White River Light Station; Mackinaw Island State Park; and the Jesse Besser Museum of Alpena.

Artifacts, in addition to the life ring, include the capstan plate from the Pere Marquette 17, the bell of the Penobscot and an arch from the Gothic Room of the City of Detroit III.

The exhibit is open to the public admission free Monday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Information about any art or artifacts is available from the Arts Center office.

Beaming faces reflect 4-H program success

by DAVE KNIGHT

Charlevoix Farms 4-H Exceptional Riders is not your typical 4-H club.

Its members are children with mental, physical or emotional handicaps. Its program is based on the premise that, while there are many activities in which handicapped children cannot participate, horse riding is not one of them.

And its success is written on beaming faces of youngsters bouncing on horseback around the Charlevoix Farms indoor riding arena under the watchful eyes of parents, volunteers and specially trained instructors.

Although the program was introduced to the Charlevoix area for the first time this winter, it is not a new concept. According to Barbara Lane, director and chief instructor for the Charlevoix Farms program, horseback riding for the handicapped was first developed in England. It made its way to Canada and eventually to the United States where it has become a popular activity in many areas.

In Midland, where Lane was first exposed to a horseback riding for the handicapped (HRH) program, the available facilities could not handle the demand. She recalls waiting lists of from 50 to 75 children wanting to participate.

Horse riding enthusiast Doris Sarns of Harbor Springs was the first to offer the program in Northwestern Michigan. For residents of Charlevoix County, however, the drive to the other side of Little Traverse Bay was too inconvenient and an effort started last year to establish a local program.

Newspaper articles appeared in November soliciting volunteers from among the many "horse people" in the area. The response, said Lane, was astounding. Over 35 people have volunteered as sidewalkers, handlers and other helpers.

Uae of the Lake Charlevoix Farms facility was donated by Corky Price, who also fed and took care of the horses which were provided free of charge by Frank Leist. Carol Graham did most of the scheduling and other chores as Lane's chief assistant.

A dozen youngsters have been taking part in the current HRH program which wrapped up its first eight-week series this week. Participants and volunteers have gathered at Lake Charlevoix Farms every Tuesday evening over the past two months, sometimes despite bitter cold temperatures and heavy snows.

Though one of its objectives is to simply provide a fun experience for the children, HRH is a highly structured program aimed at improving the physical and mental health of its participants as well as teaching them many fundamentals of horsemanship. It involves much more than walking horses around a circle.

Lane explained the exhausting process, which she went through, of becoming a certified HRH instructor at the 4-H Cheff Center in Augusta, Michigan: "To even qualify for admittance, you must pass two entrance examinations, one written and one on horseback. If your scores are good enough, you start a five-week course during which you live, breathe and think of nothing else other than the program. At the end, you take a final exam and if you fail, you have to start right over again with the entrance exams. The average ratio of those who pass is less than fifty percent."

The training is stringent, admits Lane, but in view of the serious responsibility the instructor holds for the fragile physical, mental and emotional well-being of her charges, it is obviously necessary.

Each week, the dozen or so participants split up into two groups. For the first hour, half are given classroom instruction on horses and riding while the other half is on horseback in the arena. For the second hour, the two groups switch places.

Before any kids meet the horses in the beginning of the eight-week series, they are taught how to handle the reins sitting on a sawhorse. Eventually everyone gets to ride. A typical evening's activities include walking the horses, going through some physical exercises upon the horses, trotting and playing games in which the participants learn to handle their mounts.

While on the horse, each child wears a helmet and a special belt with handles. The handles are used by the sidewalkers, two of whom escort each rider.

Lane hopes the success of this winter's pilot program will carry over to next fall when she plans to hold the next HRH session at Windmill Farms. Ideally, she said, two eight-week sessions a year might be held, one in September-October and another in March-April. No sessions are scheduled for the summer months since Leist's horses are in use that time of the year on Mackinac Island and other riding stables around the area.

Corky Price, right, assists Sylvia Potter in one of the physical exercises in which the rider lays back on the horse.

Sidewalkers Frank Hamilton, left, of Charlevoix, and Jeff Joneson of Petoskey guide the pony Smokey and rider Anneke Rader.

Beaver Island doctor to retire; state subsidy in question again

By Peg Ohle

Beaver Island residents are once again wondering who will provide them with health care in the future.

Dr. Leonard J. Siudara, 71, who has been the Island's doctor for over five years, has expressed his desire to be relieved by July 1, saying, "It's time to get out from under."

Dr. Siudara's salary of $42,000 a year has been underwritten by the State of Michigan on an annual basis. Each year when the subject comes up for renewal, the legislature questions the propriety of the subsidy, and a battle to keep it ensues.

In an exploratory meeting last week, members of the Beaver Island Medical Centere Board and others discussed what might be available in the future so far as funding and services are concerned. Some mention was made of putting the Island's medical care under the direction of the State Department of Health and District Health Department No. 3, and perhaps staffing the Medical Center with a paramedic, physician's assistant, or professional nurse, rather than a licensed physician.

The Beacon, Beaver Island newspaper, recently carried a story on the Medical Center, which is operated with patient fees and outside contributions. Unlike the doctor, it receives no Federal or State funding., The Medical Center makes equipment and services available to the Island doctor. – X-rays, laboratory testing, physical examinations, diagnostic bloodwork, urinalyses, pharmaceutical and orthopedic supplies, and others. It holds blood pressure and immunization clinics on a monthly basis and handles simple fractures and minor surgical procedures. The Medical Center is a licensed three-bed hospital for those requiring hospitalization when travel to the mainland is not possible.

During 1984, Dr. Siudara saw 1,766 patients, including house calls and consultations, the Beacon report shows. Two Charlevoix dentists, Dr. Jeffrey Porter and Dr. Bruce Stewart, last year provided dental services to 936 Beaver Island residents from facilities at the Medical Center. The nutritional food program for women, infants, and children (WIC) operated by the State Department of Health, also has offices in the Medical Center.

Beaver Island resident Vivian Visscher, who is chairman of the Medical Center Board, told the Courier that a committee has been appointed to plan for the future health care of the Islanders.

Beaver Island has a year-round population of between 250 and 300 and a summer propulation of approximately 2,000.

Sean Slattery

Students who excel

Mechanical bent drew Slattery to physics room

by ANNE KELLY

For Sean Slattery, Charlevoix High School senior, repairing and rebuilding comes naturally. Sean recalls that he's always been interested in tinkering around with mechanical and electronic things.

"I think that's why he gravitated down here to the physics room" explained Jim Jensen, physics instructor. "He saw a lot of electronic parts laying around and just drifted down."

In 1975 and 1976, Sean helped his dad get a jeep ready for entry in the Cobo Hall autorama. They took first place both years in the off road vehicles utility class. Of course at that time, 10 years ago, Sean was basically handing parts to his dad and following directions. Next year, when they enter into competition, it's a sure bet that he will have played a more integral part in the outcome.

Sean enjoys "tearing things apart" and putting them back together. He has repaired a radio for his mom and built one for himself. He has worked on his own '79 Chevy and this year has become an indispensable sidekick for Mr. Jensen.

"It's good for Sean and it's good for me," continued Jensen. "I would never have had the time to get these project boxes ready for my classes."

The project boxes Jensen referred to, have kept Sean busy as Jensen's lab assistant. Sean spends an hour a day gaining extra credit for his efforts. The boxes, constructed of scraps of wood and panelling, will allow physics and science students to learn about electricity. Each box has taken about 10 hours to construct. From parts collect by Jensen over the years, and T.V.'s which Sean has torn apart for additional parts, each box sports a variety of switches, meters lights, a register, a motor and a speaker.

"There are a lot of kids who do well in physics," continued Jensen, "but not everyone has the physical skills to design, solder and repair equipment. Sean does. I can turn him loose and the job is done without my constant supervision."

In addition to tinkering, Sean's interests lie in woodworking and computers. He aims at attending Northwestern Michigan College and concentrating in the area of digital electronics. From there he hopes to attend Lake Superior State College.

"I can see him in electronics repair," surmised Jensen. "But you just don't know here it will all lead."

Register of deeds catching up

The volume of instruments handled by the Charlevoix County Register of Deeds office was reported to the County Board last week by Register Charlene Gaskin:

Since last October 9, when Mrs. Gaskin made her last report, the office has taken in 1,267 deeds and 897 mortgages.

In the struggle to bring its abstract work up to date, Mrs. Gaskin reported that her office has deeds abstracted through June 8, 1984, with 4,616 pages still remaining to be abstracted. Mortgages are abstracted through April 10, 1984, with 4,747 pages remaining to be abstracted.

Mrs. Gaskin also asked the County Board to consider purchasing some new equipment for her office. Specifically, she asked for a time stamp machine, which would eliminate the necessity of hand-writing the time, date, and initial on all documents that are handled, a machine to stamp the liber and page numbers on documents, and computer equipment. With proper computer equipment, the time needed to process deeds and mortgages could be reduced from 15 minutes to one minute, according to Mrs. Gaskin.

Study on stress to involve area families

Michigan State University is continuing a study of the stresses families in Charlevoix County are experiencing and the resources they need and use to cope with them.

The purpose of the study is to gain information on how various types of families cope with stress over time. Results will be useful for community agencies, educators and volunteer organizations in developing programs to help families. Questionnaires are being mailed to families, who have been randomly selected, throughout the area, and are to be completed by both spouses. Other rural counties included in the survey are Genesee, Hillsdale, Dickenson and Alpena.

Directors of the study are Margaret Bubolz and Dolores Borland of the College of Human Ecology, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Michigan 48824. Persons seeking further information may contact them at MSU.

Nursing home proposed in Charlevoix

A Charlevoix resident has taken preliminary steps to begin planning for a 70-bed home for the elderly to be located in or near the city.

Ralph McRae, a retired building contractor and former First Ward councilman, has filed a letter of intent with the Northern Michigan Health Systems Agency for the acute care and home for the aged center.

Filing the letter of intent with the agency — which oversees health matters in an 18 county area in Northern Michigan — is a first step in a lengthy process before any construction could begin.

Contacted by telephone in Florida, McRae said he believes there's a need for a private nursing home in Charlevoix. The proposed Charlevoix Multicare Center would encompass a 35-bed nursing care and 35-bed home for the aged center. McRae would like to see the facility located near Charlevoix Area Hospital and close to the city.

The proposal is in the planning stages, McRae stressed. He noted he has no funding or property for the approximately $1.3 million project.

"But, I have the inspiration, I guess," McRae said.

According to Robert Trautman, executive director of the Northern Michigan Health Systems Agency, McRae must file a certificate of need with the agency, which if approved, is forwarded to the Michigan Department of Public Health for final review and approval.

The health systems agency currently is reviewing the need for nursing homes in its 18-county coverage area.

Charlevoix County is served by the Grandvue Medical Care Facility in East Jordan and foster care homes for the elderly.

McRae said he's curious how the public views a home for the elderly in or near Charlevoix, whether they'd support the idea, and if the financial support is there. McRae said he expects to return to Charlevoix in early May and will continue working on the proposal.

Warning that the project may fall on its face, McRae said he doesn't want to disappoint anyone if the proposal doesn't go through.

McRae formerly owned McRae Lumber Co. in Pellston. In the early 1970s he served on the Charlevoix City Council and was instrumental in establishing the Charlevoix Housing Commission which built Pine River Place, a senior citizen apartment complex on Garfield Avenue.

After McRae left the council, he served as chairman of the housing commission.

Lake problems, people problems

by PEG OHLE

With the encouraging words, "You have a good lake," Dr. Darrell King, limnologist at Michigan State University, last week gave members of the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee a chemistry lesson in water quality.

Dr. King was one of a three-man panel of water quality experts addressing the county-wide group. He ended his talk with the statement, "Lake problems are people problems. Before you do anything about lake management, you must find out what most of the people want."

What one person wants may not be what another person wants, Dr. King pointed out. Algae are welcomed by fishermen because they provide food for fish, but swimmers may find algae undesirable, he noted.

The quality of lake water is often judged by its clarity, but water may be good even if it is not on top of the clarity scale, Dr. King explained. Lake Charlevoix water could be put into this category because of its high content of calcium carbonate from the limestone beds in the area. Calcium carbonate produces "whitings," or small particles of calcium which at times cloud the water.

Further assurance of the relatively high quality of Lake Charlevoix water came from Richard Mikula, water quality expert from the department of Natural Resources (DNR), who reported on the testing of his Department has made in the past and plans for future testings.

Like Dr. King, Mikula explained the natural aging of lakes (eutrophication) and told how man-made pollution can hasten the aging. The last comprehensive study of Lake Charlevoix was made in 1977-78.

This summer, the department will undertake another study, beginning with the "turn over season" (when the ice goes out) and continuing through the summer months. The study will include samplings of water from the deep basins of both the South Arm and Lake Charlevoix proper, which will be analyzed for several chemicals and algae.

Special attention will be paid to the lake area affected by the U.S. Fish Hatchery on the Jordan River and to the area influenced by the discharge of waste water into the lake in Boyne City. In fact, Mikula advised, it was the existence of these two possible problem areas that made Lake Charlevoix a priority in lake studies this year. The study will determine whether or oot there have been any great changes in water quality since 1978.

Permission to operate the fish hatchery is now under review, Mikula said, while noting that the phosphorus discharge from the Hatchery had been reduced from 2,700 pounds to 1,700 pounds a year. This was accomplisbed largely by feeding the fish a lower phosphorus diet.

James Bricker of the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, an environmeotal group, told the committee that means had to be found to stabilize the accelerated rate of eutrophication of Lake Charlevoix. He produced charts showing that water clarity had been reduced from 16 feet in 1977 to 10 feet in 1983.

Lake Charlevoix has special problems, according to Bricker, because of its shape. It has a surface area of 27 square miles served by a watershed area of 87 square miles. Because it is long and narrow and divided into two sections, it has a long shoreline, which provides more than average area for development.

Bricker also said that in northern Michigan Lake Charlevoix was second only to Walloon Lake in the length of time it takes to "flush out" — change water completely. He estimated that water in Lake Charlevoix changed only once every three years, a loog time for this type of cleansing process.

Bricker disagreed with Mikula on the type of water testing planned for this summer, saying it was inadequate and superficial. He suggested a shoreline walking study as well as sampling at all levels of the lake and taking into consideration such matters as the effect of deforestation and no-till farming on the lake.

The work of the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Committee is being funded currently by a small state grant. Some members and outside environmentalists believe the committee should hire private research organizations to make more intensive studies than can be done by departments such as the DNR. In fact, one environmentalist group has offered to fund the group with a substantial sum. Leah Green, a committee member, asked Dr. King if he thought more intensive studies were necessary. His answer was that if he had several thousand dollars to spend, he would spend it on correcting known problems and on surveys to find out what lake area people wanted.

Members of the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee are representatives from the seven townships adjoining the lake, the three cities on the lake, environmentalist and development groups, and the Charlevoix County Planning Commission.

Sharrow: Keep Grant Street sledding hill

CHARLEVOIX — John Sharrow, who was born in Charlevoix in 1907, still remembers the good times he had sledding on Dodger Hill — now called the Grant Street Hill — when be was a boy. He would like the present geoeration of Charlevoix youngsters, as well as future generations, to share the same experience.

Sharrow attended Monday night's committee meeting of the Charlevoix City Council to reminisce about the old days and to urge the council to continue to close the hill to vehicular traffic between Hurlbut and Antrim streets every winter so that kids can slide.

At the last committee meeting, irate residents in the area asked that the hill be opened to traffic and closed to sliding because the hill, as it is presently maintained, encourages kids to tresspass on priate property and invites vandalism.

"Little kids aren't getting any breaks at all," Sharrow explained. "What good is winter for little kids if they can't use the hill," he asked. "I remember the good tims we had on that hill when I was a kid."

Sharrow said the city has the hill "banked" in such a way that kids run down Newman Street and onto private property.

Dale Boss seconded Sharrow's views.

"As it is now, cars can't go up and the kids can't go down," Boss said.

Mayor Hal Hill ended the discussion by referring the question of keeping the hill open or closed to City Manager Michael Wiesner and his staff.

Wiesner said he would report back at the next committee meeting Monday, April 8.

In other business the council:

— Learned that the city's premium on comprehensive liability insurance, handled by the Charlevoix Agency, will jump "out of sight" for the balance of the year ending Nov. 1. The original premium was $9,250, but the company says it will now oeed an additional $8,750. Wiesner said he will meet Thursday with representatives of the Michigan Municipal League to see if they can come up with a better offer. However Wiesner was not optimistic, since other northern Michigan communities have learned that their local agencies usually offer the most economical rates.

— Heard a report by Wiesner on a proposal to hire Abrams Aerial Survey of Lansig to map the city for utility inventories, master plan development and for general use in zoning, planning, assessing and council presentations. Abrams says it will do the survey for $11,668, with the city providing ground control. The maps will show contour lines for every two feet of elevation.

— Reviewed an amendment to the city's agreement to buy electricity from Consumers Power Co., since the city's share of the Campbell plant is now available. The amendment drops the maximum demand from 8,600 kilowatts last year to 7,659 kilowatts this year and 8,715 kilowatts next year.

— Learned from Bruce MacArthur, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, that the petunia planting will be late afternoon and evening of Thursday, May 25, followed by a hot dog picnic in East Park for workers.

— Heard an appeal by Dale Boss for the city to remove the former residence of Dr. Walter Hoffmann on Park Avenue before summer so that the property may be turned into a park, as Dr. Hoffmann requested.

Judge Pajtas finds new job to his liking

by PEG OHLE

Richard Pajtas

Last week, just two and a half months after he took office, we asked Judge Richard M. Pajtas of the 33rd Judicial Circuit, "How's it going?"

His answer was positive. "I'm pleasantly surprised. I like the job. I put in a lot of time work weekends and at home, but I like it."

Faced with a backlog of some 350 cases, Judge Pajtas explained that he has changed saeveral procedures in order to tet the cases resolved more quickly.

The chaoges involve setting a trial date by scheduling conferences (often via telephone) with the case attorneys, then backing up from there for other procedures. If a trial is scheduled for December, the Court would back up first to November for pre-trial conference, at which time attorneys would present jury instructions and trial briefs, then back up again to September or October for discovery proceedings by attorneys. At about the same time, if agreeable and if the case is appropriate for mediation, the Court would ask that mediation procedure be set up.

Looking at his calendar, Judge Pajtas noted that his June schedule included jury trials, pre-trials, and a bench trial, "and it's that way through to December". As ao example of the specific "back up" scheduling, a three-week jury trial involving an auto accident is scheduled for August 6 and a pre-trial conference on the case is scheduled for July 26. Judge Pajtas said he has copied this procedure from other judges and made his own revisions.

Another new Court procedure is that of providing monetary restitution for victims of serious crimes. A sum of $50 from the costs of each case is being credited to a restitution fund. Concern for victirms of crimes was voiced by Judge Pajtas during his election campaign.

Even in Circuit Court, sometimes the best planning does not mean smooth going. Judge Pajtas found this out a few weeks ago when the trial for an alleged kidnapper in Charlevoix County had to be postponed because a jury could not be selected. The trial was scheduled during a period of heavy snowstorms which prevented prospective jurors from getting to Court, and also at a time when many local residents were vacationing in the south. Since it was a capital case, both attorneys had 20 pre-empt excuses and the judge had 15, so the panel of prospective jurors was soon used up.

To prevent this kind of postponement from happening again, Judge Pajtas is suggesting that the list of prospective jurors be increased to 100 people, about double of what it now is.

The Friend of the Court office, which is under the Circuit Court Judge, has also received special attention from Judge Pajtas. He considers it a most important part of the Court because of its investigative functions and support orders in divorce cases. Recently he brought the officers of both the Charlevoix County and Emmet County Friend of the Court together so they could become better acquainted and to help standardize procedures. "I wanted to get their ideas to work for betterment of the entire operation," he said.

The 33rd Judicial Circuit consists of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. Traditionally, the main office of this Court has been in the Emmet County Building in Petoskey. The staff and facilities are there, and Judge Pajtas spends most of his time there. He is in Charlevoix every other Monday for motions and-or trials and remains here all day even if he is not needed in the Courtoom all day. When longer trials are scheduled here, he, of course, spends more time in Charlevoix.

In an attempt to coordinate his work in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, Judge Pajtas has held joint meetings with the Judiciary Committees of the Board of Commissioners of both Counties. This has resulted in similar meetings by the District and Probate Judges, he commented.

Despite the diversity and volume of cases handled by the Circuit Judge, he does not have a large staff. Imogene Leik, with offices in Emmet County, is the Circuit Court Administrator, Assignment Clerk, Judicial Secretary, and Mediation Clerk. Thomas Wozniak is the Court Reporter. He also spends most of his time in Emmet County but is always with the Judge when he is in Court either here or there. George Ebenhoeh heads the Friend of the Court staff in Charlevoix County and Grace Parrot has the same job in Emmet County. Ken M[illegible]a is the Probation-Parole [illegible]cer in Charlevoix County, [illegible]l Lapins does that work in Emmet County. When Circuit Court is in session, Deputy County Clerk Janet Dean serves as Court Clerk in Charlevoix County and Sharon Bailey serves in Emmet County.

Health Dept. warns of aspirin Reyes link

from District Health Department No. 3

Due to the recent increased numbers of children developing viral illnesses, Dr. Brian Youngs, Medical Director for District Health Department No. 3 (Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties) is offering the following information to alert parents of the link between Reye's syndrome and the use of aspirin-containing products in the treatment of children and teenagers with the flu or chicken pox.

A pilot study recently completed for the Department of Health and Human Services substantially strengthens earlier evidence of an association between the use of aspirin containing drugs and the development of Reye syndrome, a rare disease that causes death in 20 to 30 percent of its victims. While the results of the pilot study are only preliminary, we are making them public because of their clear importance to protecting the health of children and teenagers. Parents are strongly urged to obtain medical advice before using aspirins to treat the symptoms ot their children's or teenagers' flu or chicken pox.

The Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences has carefully analyzed the results of the pilot study that was conducted by the U.S. Public Health Services. The study included 29 children and teenagers who developed Reye syndrome following a case of flu or chicken pox and t43 other children (controls) who had flu or chicken pox but did not develop Reye syndrome. The study showed that 28 of the 29 children who developed Reye syndrome had recently taken or been given aspirin. Fewer than half of the controls (those who did not have Reye syndrome) had not taken aspirin or an aspirin-containing drug during their illness.

It is also significant that those who suffer from the disease are increasingly older children and teenagers as well as young children; according to the pilot study some 50 percent of all cases were in children over age 10, and 15 percent were in those aged 15 and older.

This finding does not prove that aspirin causes Reye syndrome or that aspirin is not a safe and effective drug for other purposes. It does, however, strengthen existing evidence suggesting an association between aspirin and Reye syndrome.

We have reason to believe that the public education campaign conducted for the past several years by the Public Health Service has helped to reduce the number of cases of Reye syndrome, particularly in young children who receive medication from their parents.

Charlevoix minister works on Israeli kibbutz

by Rev. Carl Gunn

Weary and happy, my wife Joanna and I returned early last week from the fourth "Blossoming Rose" tour sponsored by Jordan College, Cedar Springs.

The tour and project takes its name from Isaiah 35:1 & 2..."the desert shall blossom as the rose..." Tours are working and sightseeing, specifically designed to give help to Kibbutz Ir Ovot, 3,000 acres located just southwest of the south end of the Dead Sea in Israel. Until recently an Israeli military outpost, the kibbutz land has been given by the army to a group of Messianic Jews led by Rabbi Simka Pearlmutter. Jordan College is offering help to them in the areas of renewable energy, agriculture and housing.

The tour teams spend about half of the time working at Ir Ovot and the balance touring attractions in Israel. Ir Ovot is a place of history where most of the nations controlling Israel through the centuries have maintained a military garrison, and in ancient times caravans passed this way to take on the water from a prolific flowing well. Edom (Jordan) is visable t0 miles to the east and Bedouin tents are nearby in the desert. Remains of a Roman military road are visible near the kibbutz dining hall and in the desert to the west.

The original flowing well, now inactive, has been replaced by a 5,000 foot deep artesian well providing ample water for all needs, including irrigation of crops such as tomatoes, melons, dates and kitchen vegetables. The original spring supplied water to what is touted as the oldest tree in Israel.

The Ir OVot immediate area has the distinction of being the lowest elevation in the world, 1300 feet below sea level, in the midst of the Arava, a Hebrew term for desert below sea level; nearby is the proposed route of the Med-Dead sea water canal with which the Israeli government proposes to bring sea water to the Dead Sea, making electric power by the drop in elevation.

Ir Ovot visitors, both workers and the frequent tour groups that inspect the "oldest tree", are treated to sight and sound of many aircraft, including Israeli air force fighter bombers who maintain a practice range nearby, army helicopters on training, and civilian aircraft flying over enroute to the resort city of Eilat, on the Golf of Aquaba, the southernmost tip of fsrael.

Among visitors in March were Jonathan Wale of England, a world tour bicyclist who stopped for water and directions and stayed to work a week; also Richard and Nancy DeBusman, two school teachers from Kenal, Alaska, also on a world tour, who came to work and travel for a week.

Touring Israel included two visits to the old walled city of Jerusalem, Bethlehem church of the Nativity, Hebron, shopping at the world famous Bedouin open air market in Beer Sheba, visits to Masada and the mountain stronghold of En-Gedi, where David sought refuge from King Saul and his army, the Galilee cities of Capernaum, (now a dead city) Nazareth, Haifa and Mt. Carmel, Caesarea and finally Tel Aviv. Sightseeing times were alternated with work periods at the kibbutz. Two important events for the American tourists at Ir Ovot were the complete Jewish Sabbath – from Friday sundown to Saturday evening including a synagogue service, and the two day Feast of Purim, commemorating the victory of Queen Esther (and her uncle Morcecal) over Haman the Jew-hater, when the Jews were captives in Persia under King Xerxes.

Jordan College, recognized world-wide as a leader in renewable energy education, helps Kibbutz Ir Ovot with energy applications including an unusual greenhouse, now under construction, which will gain photo-voltaic electric power as well as perform the usual greenhouse growing functions. Also under consideration is a plan to build earth-sheltered passive solar housing and to convert part of the kibbutz housing into an orphanage.

The writer is retained by Jordan College as an energy consultant and has recently completed his 55th study for Jordan clients in the field of energy conservaion and renewables, this last project being a study of the Lumbermans Bank system in Muskegon and Grand Haven.

We will be recounting our adventures to several informal groups around Charlevoix. Three churches and several individuals have made offerings to help with this trip expense. A trip diary is available by calling 547-2696 or asking us personally.

Radar base commander retires

by FRAN MARTIN

Lt. Col. Robert J. Rajewski, Commanding Officer of the U.S. Air Force Site at Bay Shore since 1979, was retired recently after 27 years of active duty.

Prior to his official retirement, Lt. Col. Rajewski bad closed the bomb scoring unit, the home of Detachment 6, tst Combat Evaluation Group since July 1963, on September 30, 1984, to all air traffic. Though an office remains open at the site and service people, presently on temporary duty elsewhere, are still attached to the unit, it will be closed down later this year. A decision by the U.S. Air Force to centralize its comparable units scattered throughout the midwest resulted in the local unit being assigned to Powell, Wyo.

On hand for the formal retirement held at the V.F.W. Post Home was Col. James H. Scherer, Jr., of Barksdale Air Force Base, La. headquarters for all bomb scoring units. Others who participated were M.Sgt. James Hamrick, who "roasted" the retiree and presented him with a "survival kit", Ed Collins, an earlier retiree who welcomed Col. Rajewski to the retirement community, and M.Sgt. Kenneth L. Olinger, presently chief of detachment opeations, who presented Col. Rajewski with a sword and sheath from his friends in the service and the community, and a picture of the last fly-over on October 2.

Mrs. Rajewski was also presented with mementos of the occasion.

A reception attended by relatives, former associates and friends followed.

In discussing his years of service with the U.S. Air Force, Col. Rajewski was asked if he had any regrets, if he would have made another choice of a career. In response, Col. Rajewski said "I have no regrets. I'd probably do it over again." He discussed at length his various experiences and added "I went in (the service) because I wanted to feel that I was doing something worthwhile. I will miss it, particularly the camaraderie you experience in the service...the places you have been, the friends you make, the experiences you share."

For the present, Col. and Mrs. Rajewski plan to remain in Charlevoix where their youngest son, Patrick, is a freshman at Charlevoix High School.

Col Rajewski is also a member and currently president of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and Post Commander of Charlevoix Post No. t153, Veterans of Foreign Wars. They both are members of St. Mary's Church.

The retirement ceremony was the climax of a military career that began in 1958 when he was commissioned in the U.S. Air Force following membership in the R.O.T.C. while attending Michigan State University. He received his commission upon graduation with a degree in packaging engineering.

The early years were to see him through several phases of training which began at Bainbridge, Ga., where he received his first pilot training. After an assignment at Enid, Okla., with plans to continue pilot training, the Air Force shattered his hopes with a decision to cut back on the number of pilots. It was at this time that he began training as a navigator at Waco, Texas, in order to continue flying. This was followed by crew training at Sacramento, Calif.

In July 1961, he became a member of a crew of the then new B-52 H and was assigned to K.I. Sawyer AFB at Marquette.

Then came an assignment at Walker AFB, Roswell, N.M., for 3½ years until the base was closed. January t967 brought him back to Michigan, this time as a member of an evaluation crew at Wortsmith AFB at Oscoda. In 1971 it was back to California, this time for training at Castle AFB in conventional weaponry in preparation for duty in Vietnam. Then came an assignment at Griffiss AFB, Rome, N.Y.

It was from this base that Col. Rajewski came to northern Michigan as Commanding Officer of Detachment 6, tst C.E.G. at Bay Shore which, at one time, had as many as t25 service people attached to it.

The closing of the site has meant the exodus of these people to other assignments around the world, to the new base at Powell, Wyo., or, in a few instances, the retirement of veteran servicemen.

Col. Rajewski is a native of Michigan, having been born at Bay City and raised in Essexville where he was graduated from St. Johns High School. His wife is the former Nancy Hugan whom he married at Flint April 12, 1958.

They have five sons, Lt. Robert J. II presently stationed at the Arnold Engineering Development Center, Tenn., John E. of Mountain View, Calif., Paul W. of Los Angeles, Richard R., a senior at Michigan Technology University, and Patrick, a freshman at the Charlevoix High School.

Clockwise

Going South

by Bob Clock

Charlevoixans reportedly are burning up the highways and the airways between Northern Michigan and Florida this spring-break season.

In fact, there are very few of us left to do the chores and bring in the mail.

Which is as it should be.

After a very long and very hard winter, it is fun to plunge right into the middle of summer from these frigid climes.

I only made the trip once — about 30 years ago — by Greyhound bus from Detroit. The journey to Miami took 40 hours, but and it was fun to ride right through spring and into the heat of summer.

I think it would be every more fun by plane, since the contrast between climatological regions would be even more pronounced if you experienced them over a shorter period of time.

My biggest surprise when I finally reached Florida was the height, size and vivid color of the poinsettias, which stood four to five feet tall in every yard — twice the size of the potted variety my mother used to buy at Christmas.

I also was impressed by the "royal palms." At first I thought they were cast in concrete with plastic fronds glued to the top. Closer examination, however, showed they were living organisms. Other palms were wrapped in what appeared to be burlap. That puzzled me until I discovered that their bark is a burlap-like material.

Live and learn.

Coming from grey, sooty Detroit, I also was struck by the pastel buildings, the colorful broad boulevards, the smart shops and the sparkling ocean.

I was only in Florida for four or five days, and as I climbed on the bus for home I vowed to return.

Since then, however, Florida has become home to all types of gaudy, highly commercialized tourist traps. Oh, I guess they're fun, but I'd like to remember it the way it was. I guess that's why I've never gone back.

HAVE YOU STOPPED at the new Karl's Pastry Shop next to Central Drug Store on Bridge St.?

It's beautiful, but the croissants unfortunately have just as many calories as they did when the shop was located at the corner of Antrim and Bridge.

The move is a homecoming of sorts, because the southern portion of the new Karl's used to be Leo Fairbank's bakery in the t960s.

Karl R. Gilewicz has done a nice job of combining Fay's Dress Shop (Fairbank's) and Bergmann's barber shop into an attractive showcase for his delectables.

Vote on contra funding coming up

Dear Editor:

As I write, the vote on the MX is getting most of the media attention, but Congress will vote on another important issue in early April. The administration already has an all-out campaign underway to win Congressional support to resume funding the Contras, or "freedom fighters" as President Reagan calls them, who are attempting to overthrow the Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

Following the revelation of the CIA role in mining Nicaraguan harbors, the Boland amendment denied futher funds to aid the Contras at least until March t, 1985, when the House and Senate would again have to vote on whether to resume aid to the Nicaraguan rebels. Prior to the Boland amendment, the CIA had been aiding the Contras secretly because this assistance was in direct violation of Article f5 of the Charter of the Organization of American States (OAS) to which the United States is a signatory, which prohibits direct or indirect intervention in the internal affairs of any member state. It prohibits not only armed intervention, but any other form of interference or attempted threat. It also violates the Charter of the United Nations which prohibits the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state. It is therefore also in violation of Article VI of the United States Constitution which provides that all treaties made under the authority of the United States are the supreme law of the land. Nothing has happened to change that situation. Nothing in these agreements limits their application to governments we approve of. A vote no, to resume either covert or overt aid to the Nicaraguan rebels would be a violation of our treaty obligations and the U.S. Constitulton.

Speaking in Quebec on St. Patrick's Day, before a Canadian audience and Canadian television cameras, President Reagan said "We cannot look the other way when treaties are broken." He was speaking of treaty violations by the Soviet Union. We have an even greater responsibility not to "look the other way" when our own administration asks Congress to violate our own treaty commitments.

Both the House and Senate must vote on resumption of aid to the Contras. Our Senators and Representatives should receive a flood of letters and phone calls telling them that we will not be "looking the other way" when they vote on this issue.

Hurrah for Cub Scouts

To the Editor:

Cub Scout Pack No. t1 celebrated with a Diamond Jubilee Blue and Gold banquet on February 19. In spite of heavy snowstorms and a no-school day, a group of approximately 160 family members and friends gathered to commemorate the boys' Annual Awards presentation at the K-5 Gym.

Recognitions were made by Kiwanian Ken Ohlinger. Boy Scoutmaster Louie Edwards, Brian Granger, Northern District Executive, and members of the Scout Committee and Kiwanis Club attended.

Special thanks go to Karl of Karl's Pastry Shop for the beautiful cake decorated with Cub Scouts.

All Den leaders and especially Cubmaster Jim Mansen were gratified with the high attendance. We would like to thank all who attended as well as those who had any part in providing help to put on the program.

We want to applaud our Cub Scouts and encourage them in the future by remembering their 1985 Blue and Gold Banquet.

Saints and Sinners

by Rev. Philip G. Schairbaum
First Congregational Church

London businessman Lindsay Clegg once told the story of a warehouse property he was selling. The building had been empty for months and needed many repairs. Vandals had damaged the doors, smashed the windows, and strewn trash around the interior.

As he showed a prospective buyer the property, Clegg took pains to say that he would replace the broken windows, bring in a crew to correct any structural damage, and clean out the garage.

"Forget about the repairs," the buyer said. "When I buy this place, I'm going to build something completely different. I don't want the building; I want the site."

Compared with the renovation God has in mind for us, our efforts to improve our lives are as meaningless as sweeping a warehouse slated for a wrecking ball. Not that our efforts are in vain; our task is to open ourselves to God, that He may work his will in us. When we become God's, then all things become new. (fI Corinthians 5:17). All God wants is the site and permission to rebuild.

As we approach Easter and the promise of new life that Easter brings, may we offer ourselves to God, receive the Spirit of Christ, and find our lives renewed in unexpected ways.

Women's Club plans tea for graduates

The Charlevoix Women's Club will meet with Mrs. Arthur Stoel on Tuesday, April 18, to plan the annual tea honoring the girls in the Charlevoix High School graduating class and their mothers.

The tea will be held at the home of Keith Morris on Sunday, May f9.

Mrs. Mildred Campbell hosted the recent meeting of the club at which the members heard an interesting and informative discussion by James J. Beno, chiropractor, on chiropractic health care.

At the business session that followed, the members voted to focus on CHICO which features attention on Native American children.

The club then dispersed funds to several organizations including $f40 to Camp McSauba Day Camp (from the CHICO fund), $200 to the Charlevoix Area Hospital, $200 to the Public Broadcasting System, and $f00 each to Fren Tollas' Music Program and the Women's Resource Center safe house.

The annual book sale held on the weekend of the Waterfront Art Fai is the club's chief source of income. Anyone having books to donate is asked to contribute them to this fundraising event.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting attended by f0 members.

Sorority donates cookbook funds to hospital intensive care unit

Jeannine Wallace, owner of the Shop of the Gulls, and Michael Holmes, owner of The Apple Tree, look over Charlevoix Area Hospital's Intensive-Coronary Care Unit's highly technical monitoring edquipment, with Nursing Services Director Mary Ann Cox, R. N.

Mrs. Wallace and Holmes were asked by Charlevoix sorority Xi Epislion Gamma, local chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, to present a check for $f,000 to the hospital because as retail merchants they had helped the sorority's fund drive for the Intensive-Coronary Care Unit by selling the most of the "Taste of Charlevoix" cookbooks.

The sorority selected the Charlevoix Area Hospital Intensive-Coronary Care Unit as beneficiary of the proceeds from the sales of cookbooks and proceeds from the summer Home Tour, and to date has donated $6,000. The hospital installed the new highly technical monitoring system for its most critically ill patients, to be used in addition to the standard ICCU monitoring, last January. The sorority joined many other individuals and groups in helping the hospital raise funds to underwrite the project.

Coalition for Impaired receives certification

Coalition of Advocates for the Impaired, a group of Charlevoix and Emmet County consumers and providers of services for mentally, physically, and emotionally impaired citizens, has been certified by the Michigan Developmental Disabilities Council as a Regional Interagency Coordinating Council (RICC).

As a RICC, the Coalition serves as a review board for Northern Michigan Community Mental Health Services' annual program plan, and provides local input regarding the needs of developmentally disabled citizens, to the Developmental Disabilities Council in Lansing.

The Coalation also serves as a forum for agency representatives and consumers to discuss their respective difficulties and solve them in a mutually beneficial way that will ultimately strengthen available services and simplify their delivery systems.

The Coalition of Advocates for the Impaired was formed in March of 1984, and originally certified as a RICC in August. Goals of the group are to increase understanding between impaired and normal populations, to encourage and facilitate hiring of impaired individuals, to ensure that appropriate services are available and accessible so impaired citizens of all ages may attain their optimal potential and independence.

The Coalition of Advocates for the Impaired meets on the fourth Tuesday of odd-numbered months, at 7 p.m., in the cafeteria at Lockwood-MacDonald Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals.

At its last meeting, held on March f9, the group discussed specifics involved with financing, staffing, equipping, and administering a two-week summer recreation program for impaired citizens in the area.

Interested individuals may address inquiries to the group at P. O. Box t53, Petoskey; or may call its officers: Audrey Collins at 535-2991; Nancy Whitmore at 347-5767; or Sandy Manning at 347-3985.

Knights of Columbus plan fundraiser

The tenth annual fund drive to assist the mentally retarded locally and in Michigan will be conducted by the Father Pierre Charlevoix, Knights of Columbus Council on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, March 29, 30 and 3f, Louis D. McKenzie, Grand Knight, has announced.

Last year, statewide, the Knights of Columbus, a Catholic men's fraternal organization, collected over $959,000 during the three day weekend drive. Locally, $769 was collected and donated to Bergmann Center and Charlevoix House.

Under the program, which is carried out in most of the 275 K.C. councils in Michigan, people are asked to donate money to the mentally retarded and are given a Tootsie Roll candy in appreciation of the gift.

Eighty per cent of the net income from the donations is retained by the local council for distribution to area groups and agencies. The remaining 20 per cent is forwarded to the state council for the Knights of Columbus to meet expenses of the program and to make donations in behalf of the 72,000 Knights in Michigan.

The principal beneficiary of State Council funds is the Michigan Associaton for Mentally Retarded Citizens. Other gifts are given to organizations assisting the mentally retarded.

George Lochner has been named campaign chairman for Charlevoix. He said that K.C. members, dressed in colorful hats, carrying cannisters and wearing bright yellow aprons emblasoned with "K of C Help the Mentally Retarded" will be at Edwards IGA on the northside, Oleson's Food in downtown Charlevoix and Glen's Market at Captain's Corners during the drive.

Senior citizen interns sought

Senior citizens interested in being nominated as this year's Congressional Senior Citizen Intern should contact their area senior centers, according to Northern Michigan Congressman Bob Davis.

The Charlevoix County Senior Center is located in East Jordan, phone 536-7831.

Davis is seeking nominations for the intern program, which will send a senior citizen to Washington for the week of May 20 to 24. The program was begun in 1973 to allow one senior citizen from each Congressional District in the country to observe and participate in the workings of the government.

"In addition to spending time in activities at my Washington office," Davis said, "the intern gets the opportunity to attend briefings on issues important to the elderly."

Because he always receives a number of highly qualified nominations, Davis has made it a practice to select the intern by drawing a name from a hat.

Deadline for nominations is April 6.

Middleschool wrestlers compete

Charlevoix Middle School wrestlers experienced their first tournament competition recently in tournaments hosted by Charlevoix and Grayling, according to Coach Greg Bryan.

"This was by far the best group of middle school wrestlers I've seen in the past five years," Bryan said of the participants in the tournaments which attracted schools from throughout the area. He went on to say that the competition and quality of middle school wrestling in the entire area has vastly improved, especially at Grayling where the Vikings' high school team placed seventh in the state this year. "I expect that in the next four or five years the Michigan Huron Shores Conference will see some of its finest and best competitive wrestling," he added.

Speaking of the Charlevoix wrestlers, Bryan said that everyone except for five wrestlers on the Charlevoix team this year had one to four years experience. "I was pleased with the entire team especially Charlie Witthoeft, Scott Novotny, Jason Whitley and Jamie Montieth. I am looking forward to next season."

The Charlevoix Middle School wrestlers and how they placed in the two tournaments follow:

Sixth grade: Brian Darrah, third in both tournaments; Eddie Penfoid, fourth in the Grayling tournament. Seventh grade: Tony Merwyn, third in the Charlevoix and second in the Grayling tourney; Brad Zoet, second in the Grayling tournament. Eighth grade: Dan Bickersteth, second in the Charlevoix tournament; Jamie Montieth, fourth in the Charlevoix tournament; Charlie Witthoeft, first in both tournaments; Jason Wiser, fourth in the Grayling tournament; Jason Whitley, first in the Charlevoix and second in the Grayling tournament; Scott Novotny, third in the Charlevoix and second in the Grayling tournament.

Others who participated were: sixth grade, Mike Moore.

Seventh grade: Willie Habel, Jordan Spencer, David Fuhl, Jacob Smith, Jim Marquardt, Fred Brosokske, Chris Pemble, Matt Seamon, Jeff Alden.

Ninth grade: Robin Merwyn.

Coach Bryan also said he would like to thank the people who helped organize and run the middle school tournament here on March 16.

WHY AN OPEN LETTER ...

There seems to be considerable misinformation generated about the Oyster Bay Project which makes it important, if not necessary, for the benefit of all to inform area residents about the project in a factual, straightforward manner. We believe the residents of Hayes Township, in particular, and the Lake Charlevoix Area, in general, deserve a clear understanding of the facts concerning the Oyster Bay Project. We believe, too, that it is only by providing citizens with factual information that they can make calm, reasoned and enlightened judgements on matters that may effect them.

We are confident the information presented here will serve .....

TO CLARIFY THE ISSUE ...

The Oyster Bay Project has been frequently portrayed as a development designed to allow large numbers of people access to Lake Charlevoix through a small parcel of lake frontage. This erroneous portrayal has caused much unnecessary confusion and concern. Simply put, the issue in question is whether or not 126 units with 56 boat slips on 2,800 feet of frontage will be detrimental to Lake Charlevoix — even though those same 126 families and 56 boats could have access to the lake through numerous other public and private facilities.

TO PRESENT THE FACTS ...

- The Oyster Bay Project consists of 126 units — housed in 23 buildings — on 338 acres with a total building land coverage of just over 2 acres. All of the buildings — except two — are in the same area as the existing (Camp Charlevoix) buildings. Of only 4 buildings within view of the lake the closest to the water is 80 feet and the farthest is 200 feet.
- Twelve (12) of the buildings are set back 200 feet or more from the shoreline. Seven (7) of the buildings are set back 500 feet or more.
- Municipal sewer and water will be constructed at the developers expense and not at the expense of Hayes Township or its residents. In addition to serving the site, the system will be dedicated by the developer for public use. The systems will donated to the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township — thus providing a needed solution to the sewage problem which now exists for some residents along the proposed sewer route.
- The project is designed so all surface drainage is handled on site to preserve the water quality at the site and to preserve natural grades. This approach will maintain the natural lake shore far more effectively than conventional development.
- The proposed harbor and 56 boat facility is all inland and is virtually invisible from lake view. It also creates a new, protected fish habitat. The harbor is screened by a 100' wide, 400' long, 10' high berm covered by indigenous plant material, trees, shrubs and grasses thus preserving the aesthetic value of the natural shoreline.
- Drives, parking areas and tennis courts cover only 2.2 acres. The inland harbor covers only 1.6 acres, formerly used as an athletic field by the camp.
- The remaining 315 acres will be designated as a conservation preserve to protect the adjoining wetland and stream.
- The purpose of the development is to build a project that is environmentally, architecturally, and socially desirable, both for the collective owners and for people of the Township and County. We feel, the proposed project design accomplishes these goals.

TO CREATE AN AWARENESS OF THE PROJECT BENEFITS ...

- It will give Hayes Township the opportunity to benefit from a residential development having a density ratio of only 1 unit for every 2.7 acres — while leaving 90% of the site in its natural state
- It will generate substantial property tax dollars for the residents of Hayes Township
- It will generate several million dollars in new construction revenues to local suppliers, merchants and sub-contractors
- It will create many maintenance and service jobs for year around residents of the Charlevoix area.
- Local studies show that condominium owners spend an average of five weeks per year in their units, yet pay a full share of property taxes and bring substantial dollars into the area economy.

TO EXPRESS THE CONCERNS WE SHARE FOR PRESERVING THE BEAUTY OF LAKE CHARLEVOIX AND THE CHARLEVOIX AREA ...

- The public should know that Fox & Assoc., Inc. purposely selected the Planned Unit Development (P.U.D.) from a variety of zoning guidance procedures because we felt it (P.U.D.) allowed the township input into the development of the project, offered the greatest benefit to the neighbors, adjoining property owners, township officials and Lake Charlevoix riparians. As taxpayers and landowners, we share a concern for, and have a stake in, preserving the beauty of Lake Charlevoix and the quality of life that surrounds it. We want to be a full partner in that mission by enhancing the beauty and desirability of Lake Charlevoix so that we all may enjoy it in the years ahead. We are simply asking for approval of what we feel is a reasonable development plan.

MEMBERS OF the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club (from left) Michael Wiesner, J.O. Crawford, Cliff Biddick and Darryl Linder, are busy boiling down sap for maple wyrup in the Kiwanis syrup shed on Carson Avenue. Syrup-making has been a Kiwanis Club project for more than 30 years. Last year, Kiwanians produced about 250 gallons of syrup, which was sold in local stores as well as in other markets throughout the country. Proceeds from the sale of syrup go to support Kiwanis projects. Old-time members recall that the syrup boiling facilities were once located on Bridge Street where Staley's Hardware now stands. They had to be moved because the steam from the boiling syrup wafted onto the highway and interfered with traffic. (Photo by Patti Olmstead)

School board shuffles principals

By FRAN MARTIN

When the Charlevoix Public Schools open in September, all three schools will have new principals, following action taken by the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night.

Vane H. Smith, high school principal since 1969, will succeed Ralph Raymer as elementary school principal. David J. Smith, middle school principal since 1981 will succeed Vane Smith as high school principal and Dennis VanGuiler, assistant high school principal since 1981, will go to the middle school.

The announced retirement of Raymer as K-5 principal in June brought about the re-assignment of principals. Raymer has served at the elementary school since 1972.

In other action:

— A detailed report on the proposed enlargement of the downtown development district and the proposed establishment of a TIFA (Tax Increment Finance Authority) in order to raise funds for improvements within those districts was given. The DDA, which presently encompasses the so-called Altman Project north of the highway bridge and a section of the downtown area, is asking that this be enlaged to include theentire downtown area of Hurlbut Ave., West to include a section on the west side of State St. and to the Malpeli property on Belvdere Ave. The collapse of the Altman project has resulted in the request for the enlargement of the district.

Under both programs monies are "captured" from taxes levied on increased valuation within the districts for a given length of time. For the DDA it is 10 years. The TIFA has not been organized and no deadline has been set. Both must have the approval of those units which receive taxes from the properties involved, the Charlevoix School District, Char-Em I.S.D. and the county.

Environmental issues explained to officials

by PEG OHLE

Environmental matters concerning Lake Charlevoix and the area surrounding it were discussed at the March meeting of the Charlevoix Townships Association, held last week in Boyne City.

County Planner Larry Sullivan told of the work of the Lake Charlevoix Management Planning Advisory Committee, which had held its fourth meeting two days earlier. He explained that this 15-person committee will spend two to two-and-a-half years studying and discussing the quality of lake water, soils and wetlands of the watershed, recreation uses of the area, land development, and many other subjects. They will also survey landowners as to their social and cultural attitudes about the lake and its shoreline.

At the end of the study period, the committee will draft a Land and Water Usage Plan, hold several public hearings on the plan, make whatever revisions and changes the public suggests, and finally recommend the Plan to the County Planning Commission along with recommendations to aid in implementation.

Hayes Township Supervisor Paul Hoadley explained his Township's position in the lawsuit filed against it by Fox and Associates, a development company. Hayes Township refused to issue Fox a Zoning Permit for a 23-building, 126-unit condominium development on 338 acres of land with 2,800 feet of shore on Oyster Bay because plans for the development did not meet the Township Zonining Ordinance's specifications for use of the shoreline.

Hoadley noted that the Zoning Ordinance permits only one single-family housing unit per 100 feet of shoreline and only one boat slip or dock space for each 100 feet of shoreline. Based on 2,800 feet of shoreline this means that only 28 housing units could be built along the shoreline and dock space provided for only 23 hoats. (Fox had proposed a marina for 56 boats in his plan).

Fox and Associates claim that these restrictions are "illegal, unconstitutional, and in violations of their civil rights." The lawsuit was filed for Fox on January 8 by the Petoskey law firm of Marco, Litzenburger and Smith and Charlevoix attorney Thomas D. Pointner.

Hoadley told his fellow township officials last week that Hayes Township had hired Grand Rapids attorney Peter W. Steketee to represent the Township in court along with attorney William McTaggart of Boyne City, who is the regular Hayes Township attorney.

Hoadley bemoaned the fact that defending the Zoning Ordinance will cost "a lot of money" which he would rather spend on a public launching ramp or something of that nature. "But we can't back down," he said, and added, "Also, the people in the Township are standing behind the Township Board. Even after coming in to the Board of Review and complaining about their taxes, they voiced their support of our zoning action when I asked them.

"It isn't often that a township gets in the middle of a suit like this," Hoadley pointed out, "but we are standing behind our Zoning Ordinance and its enabling legislation which gives us the right to protect the health, welfare, and property values of our people." He said that the lawsuit would probably not reach the local courtroom until the fall although depositions were already being taken in the case. He also said that Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas probably would not hear the case because he is a former law partner of Thomas Pointner.

Area commercial fishermen may have to relocate under pact

Charlevoix's state-licensed commercial fishermen may have to relocate under an out-of-court settlement reached in the long-pending Great Lakes fishing suit.

A copy of the pact was reviewed Tuesday by the state Attorney General's Office, Department of Natural Resorces officials and representatives of the two Indian tribes and one band that are part of the federal suit. Details are expected to be announced today.

Under the 15-year agreement reached Thursday, state-licensed commercial fishing will be phased out of northern Lake Michigan from Grand Traverse Bay north, according to a DNR spokeswoman. The fishermen would be bought out by the state or the state would assist in relocating them.

Area fishing operations include those of John Cross Jr. and Ralph Cross Jr. of Charlevoix and Donald Cole of Beaver Island among others.

The commercial fishermen could not be reached for comment by press time.

Other provisions of the 25-page pact include phasing out over a three-year period, the use of large mesh gill nets in the Little Traverse Bay and Charlevoix areas of Lake Michigan.

Sports fishing and charter fishing in this area is not expected to be affected by the pact, although details are still sketchy about a proposed lake trout refuge around Beaver Island. Sports and commercial fishing is not expected to be allowed in the refuge area.

Although he had not seen a copy of the settlement, Myrl Keller of the DNR Great Lakes Fisheries in Charlevoix said Friday "most of the reports I've heard are positive."

Keller said his job is to manage fishing for the betterment of all paties — sports and commercial — and the pact should do that.

The plan calls for $1.5 million each from the state and federal governments to pay for tribal fisheries assessment and marketing programs. Another $1.5 million would be used to buy out or relocate non-Indian commercial fishermen in tha affected areas and to assist tribal fishers in purchasing trap nets as gill nets are phased out.

The negotiations were ordered by U.S. Distrct Judge Ricahrd Enslen and were headed by boston University Law Professor Francis McGovern, who was appointed a "special master."

A court trial on the issue has been scheduled for April 22.

Petoskey Ave. rezoning sent to planners

CHARLEVOIX — The omission of two words — florist shops — from the legal notification of a public hearing saved the city council from making a painful decision Monday night on the fate of Petoskey Avenue.

City clerk Laurel Butcher said the words apparently were omitted from the copy submitted to the Charlevoix Courier for publication. The hearing was held to gather citizen comment on a proposal to amend the zoning code to allow a number of special uses on Petoskey Avenue, which presently is zoned residential over most of its length but does allow for nursery and day care, home occupations and professional offices.

The amended code would have permitted beauty shops, foster care homes, art and photographic studios, interior decorating shops, radio and television broadcasting studios and florist shops.

Instead of acting on the amendment, the council sent it back to the planning commission for further consideration.

Barbara Fels of the planning commission said both the council and the commission are faced with the same question: What to do with the old homes on Petoskey Avenue "to keep them more useable.".

The question arose last year when Expressions Unlimited, a floral shop, expressed an interest in moving into a single family residence at the southeast corner of Petoskey Avenue and Burns Street. The request was denied by the council because it would constitute spot zoning under the present zoning ordiance.

Expressions Unlimited was represented at Monday's meeting by attorney David Fershee who said conversion of the house to floral shop would enhance property values in the area.

Attorney Donald Berlage said Charlevoix is unique in many aspects, including the fact that it has been able to keep one of its main approaches free from "strip commercial development."

Berlage said that if the council amended the zoning code it would be "opening a dike, opening a can of worms." He added that five or six special uses in 10 years would change the character.

Garden club plans annual flower show

With thoughts of spring, can summer be far behind? Garden Club members think not, particularly since they are already planning their flower show for August.

With this in mind, many of the upcoming Club programs will center around workshops in preparation for varied entries. On Tuesday, April 9, at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Joseph Morris, Anna Belle Webb will demonstrate care of house plants and horticultural displays and explain what members may anticipate in the judging of these. Mrs. Jackson Beatty and Mrs C. R. Ringler will assist Mrs. Morris at this meeting.

Mrs. Jack Lane, general chairman of the show, will introduce her plans and request the cooperation of members for the needed committees.

Four Club members, Mrs. Lane, Mrs. James Block, Mrs. J. O. Crawford, and Mrs. Clifford Biddick, will go to Lansing in mid-April to attend the second session on flower show judging. This is a demanding course which includes a comprehensive examination of the participants. According to Club members, lessons learned at this training session should prove valuable for the flower show.

Self-help seminar planned

Want to understand yourself better? Want to understand those around you better?

A one-day forum to help you achieve these goals will be held April 12 from 9:30 to 4:30 at 218 Bridge Street. The forum will be conducted by Louis M. Werbalowsky of New York State, a certified teacher and consultant in the techniques of understanding people.

According to literature on the forum, learning to understand yourself will help you pursue your best work systems, recognize and create the kind of environment you like to work in, make you appreciate different work styles, and reduce potential conflicts with others.

Learning to understand those around you is called "The People Reading Workshop" – you learn how to "read" people by finding their personal preferences, listening to their speech patterns, noticing their dress and personal appearance, observing their walking mannerisms, and studying their stress response, all in 60 seconds.

The forum is sponsored by David Stevenson of David's Hairstyling in Petoskey, who participated in a similar forum himself and became excited about its potential. "I became acquainted with myself," he explained, "and it has helped my life with my work staff, my wife, and my children. I now easily understand things that baffled me before."

The fee for the forum is $50 and the number of participants will be limited. Further information may be obtained from David Stevenson, phone 347-2862.

Charlevoix among state's 'Ten Best'

Charlevoix is rated one of the state's most popular vacation areas and is a recommended stop on a seven-day West Michigan tour in the April issue of AAA Michigan Living, the most complete guide ever to Michigan tourism and vacation planning.

"This will be an issue that every Michiganian will want to keep for future reference," said Len Barnes, Michigan Living editor. "From overnight trips to week-long excursions, from luxury to roughing it, from expensive to free, this edition will cover it all."

"Michigan – A State to Write Home About," is the theme of the 80-page magazine which is circulated monthly into the homes of nearly 1.27 million AAA Michigan members.

Beaver Island, near Charlevoix, is highlighted because it offers both fishing and hunting plus picturesque scenery, rich history and a museum.

The "10 Best" of practically everything related to state travel and tourism are featured.

"We have ranked the best restaurants, attractions, places to stay, Michigan wines, beaches, fishing spots and most scenic drives," Barnes added.

Michigan Living lists the most popular vacation destinations as selected by travel experts and details seven-day tours of Michigan's four tourist regions.

Besides being circulated to AAA members, the magazine also will be available for $1 through 54 Auto Club offices and 40 bookstores statewide. It includes a reader service card which allows person planning a vacation to obtain information quickly.

The issue will be distributed to four groups important to Michgian tourism, which will hold annual meetings in the state this year. They are: the 750 member Society of American Travel Writers, American Automobile Association and Public Relations Society of America, and the second annual Governor's Tourism Conference, April 28-30, at Hilton Shanty Creek resort near Bellare.

BIRDIE MAE Gleason celebrated her 100th birthday last weekand received numerous flowers and cards including a greeting from President Reagan.

Century has treated Birdie kindly

by PEG OHLE

One hundred years of living have treated Birdie Mae Gleason kindly.

We visited her last Wednesday, the day after she celebrated her birthday. Her living room was filled with plants and flowers, boxes of candy, cards, and bright colored balloons. Birdie Mae's friends had not forgotten her.

Birdie Mae was dressed in an apricot-colored pants suit accented with bright blue earrings and necklace. While she said she did not like to have her picture taken, she posed nicely.

Birdie Mae has been a widow since 1942 and her closest living relative is a nephew was lives in Florida. He flew up from Florida over the weekend with his new bride to help his Aunt celebrate. That was the best birthday present she could have received.

Born near Kalamazoo, Birdie Mae lived in Benton Harbor and St. Joseph most of her life. She came to Charlevoix in 1958 to help care for Mrs. Laura Flanders, and later on she worked in the office of the County Treasurer as Deputy to Mrs. Flanders' daughter, Lillis, who was then treasurer. Today, Bertie Mae shares her home with another of Mrs. Flanders' daughters, Ida Welsheirmer, a life-long Charlevoix resident.

When asked the inevitable question, "What is the secret of your long life?" Bertie Mae said unhesitantly, "Well, I had an awfully good husband", and she showed a picture of him.

She also credits her good health to practicing Christian Science. "I haven't had any medicine in years," she boasts. And she has never smoked or drunk alcoholic beverages.

The only organization other than the Christian Science Church Bertie Mae belongs to is the Rebekahs, which she joined when she was 18 years old.

Bertie Mae lives across the street from the Charlevoix Middle School. She likes to watch the children come and go. "They are well behaved and orderly," she says of today's children, indicating that was not always the case.

As we left, Bertie May was proudly holding the birthday card bearing the gold seal of the Presidency and signed by Nancy and Ronald Reagan.

Prosecutor: County doesn't need mass gathering ordinance

by PEG OHLE

Charleoix County does not need a Mass Gathering Ordinance (for crowd control) to handle the problems created by Castle Farms concerts.

That is the opinion of County Prosecutor Kraag C. Lieberman, who was asked by the County Board of Commissioners to look into adopting a County Mass Gathering Ordinance.

While advising the Board that a county-wide ordinance "could be drafted, enacted, and properly structured to pass Constitution muster," he said it was his opinion that such an ordinance is unnecessary.

Lieberman based his opinion on the fact that Marion Township, where Castle Farms is located, has a Mass Gathering Ordinance which he reviewed and which he believes "to be adequate for what would be expected to be accomplished."

As far as the rest of the county is concerned, Lieberman said, "To my knowledge, there exists no other situation in the County akin to the concerts that creates problems that need to be addressed through the adoption of an Ordinance of County-wide venue."

Lieberman said he believes the present Marion Township Ordinance can be effective if stringently enforced and added, "I further believe that County Government should be willing to provide full support and appropriate assistance to the Township to help enforce its Ordinance. As Prosecuting Attorney, I will, with County Board Approval, specifically volunteer my services to prosecute Ordinance violations for the Township, if their Board desires this assistance."

In summation, Lieberman stated, "If for some reason, Marion Township does not wish enforcement of its local ordinance or chooses to revoke that ordinance, then the county certainly should take steps towards adopting a replacedment ordinance."

Castle Farms concerts have put a special burden on the sheriff's department because of the large number of traffic violations, trespassing incidents, alcohol-related crimes, and automobile accidents resulting from the large crowds. Last year, two deaths were related to crowded concert traffic.

At times, Castle Farms concert problems have been so great that one County Commissioner remarked, "If we can't control them by police force, we ought to declare them a nuisance and close them down."

Governor's conference slated on tourism

Northern Michigan's Number One industry – Tourism – will be in the fore when the second annual Governor's Conference on Tourism is held April 28-30 at Hilton Shanty Creek and Schuss Mountain resorts near Bellaire.

Travel business operators and others involved in Michigan's $11.4 billion travel and tourism industry will gather to map strategies for future growth. The conference will be co-chaired by Michigan's First Lady, Paula Blanchard, and restaurateur Hans Schuler, president and chairman of Schuler Inc.

"Travel and tourism are tremendously important in Michigan's economic well-being," Mrs. Blanchard says. "We are meeting to explore strategies for sharpening Michigan's competitive edge as the Midwest's favorite travel and vacation destination. We also will look at ways to make further inroads into the international tourism market."

Conference workshops will include sessions on increasing business in the off-season, agriculture-tourism, travel by handicapped persons, bed and breakfast inns, financial services, art-culture-history tours, outdoor recreation, and working with the travel media.

The registration deadline is April 12. The pre-deadline conference fee is $75, and tickets for the awards luncheon only on Monday, April 29, are $10. Registration forms may be obtained by calling or writing Hal Dittenber, Michigan Travel Bureau, P. O. Box 30226, Lansing, Michigan 48909, phone (517) 373-0670.

Clockwise

Burger nastiness

by Bob Clock

If other folks feel like I do, Burger King is making a big mistake by its continuing attacks on MacDonald's in its advertising.

When the nastiness started several years ago, I didn't like it but I kept my peace because I figured I was was the only one who cared.

But it bothered me that Burger King should spend good money running down its competitor, when it should have been promoting its own products, including its excellent salad bar.

In any event, I have tried to analyze my feelings about the two fast food restaurants and have come to the conclusion that I am a hopeless peace-nik. I have survived three wars in my lifetime and numerous brush fires and I have had my fill of controversy and confrontation, particularly on my TV set. I find Burger King's commercials embarrassing.

There was a time not too many years ago when it was considered very poor form for any advertiser to mention someone else's product in a derogatory manner. You plugged your own product and that was that. Very nice. Very fair. Very gentlemanly.

Furthermore, attacking McDonald's — a bonafide pioneer in the fast-food field — is something akin to attacking motherhood and apple pie.

Maybe you have to have reached a certain age to realize what a culinary wasteland much of Northern Michigan was before the arrival of the fast- food restaurant, with McDonald's in the vanguard. Oh, there were fine restaurants in the resort areas, but for travelers there wasn't much between the London Chop House and Grey Gables.

Then along came McDonald's with its standardized prices, its standardized menu, its standardized quality and its standardized cleanliness. Stopping for hamburger was no longer a risky business. You knew what you were going to get before you pulled in the parking lot. The restaurant would be clean and attractive, the food would be wholesome and well prepared and the prices would be within your range. And the rest of the fast-food industry followed suit.

Today American fast-food restaurants circle the globe. They have probably done more to improve standards of cleanliness and nutrition in Third World countries than the United Nations.

Fortunately, the world economy has room for both McDonald's and Burger King — not to mention Wendy's, Arby's, Pizza Hut, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Long John Silver, Ponderosa, Burger Chef, you name it.

Although they must compete with one another, they are also members of the same team, if you get what I mean. And I wish they would act like it.

Council should drop suit fee request

Dear Editor,

I whole heartedly agree with Bob Clock's article on Pat Martin published in the Courier on February 27, 1985.

I have known Martin for a long time, from his days on the football field with his high school team, to the time he was with the city fire department, and later as a city police officer. At one time he was working for the State of Michigan under my supervision and I always found him to be hard working, conscientious, and a gentleman.

I can understand that as a police officer he could have come under stress and strain while risking his life in the pursuit of law breakers and he could have very well lost his temper in dealings with his supervisors and they should have been understanding and generous enough to over look it. We all go through that stage at some time in our lives, and again I agree with Bob Clock, the council's decision to go after Martin was made on very poor advice, and I think the council should drop its request for restitution of legal expenses before it reaches Judge Miles' desk, and if it does, knowing Judge Miles as I do, he will very likely throw it out of court.

Again I agree with Bob Clock that Martin is too fine a police officer to be badgered any longer by the city.

Fisherman opposes land for tribe

Dear Editor,

I am writing this letter to inform your readers of a subject which is of interest to many. I will admit a bias, although there are two sides to this subject.

The Burt Lake Band of Chippewa and Ottawa Indians have voiced a claim for land now known as Colonial Point in Burt Township, Cheboygan County. Because this land is now highly developed with expensive lake front homes, whose owners would obviously fight the loss of their property, negotions are underway, under the directorship of the Governor's office, to satisfy this claim by granting the Indian group Sec. 30 of Burt Township. This land has been described as swampy, low land, apparently to suggest that it has minimal value. In realty, this section includes the mouth of the Maple River as well as the lower one mile of this quality trout stream which runs through an unspoiled natural area that serves to support wild animals, birds, and fish. Unfortunately this is also the only public land on the lower Maple River.

Indian Lands are not bound by state and local laws so uncontrolled development, fishing and hunting is a possibility. It seems other State Land would be more appropriate to satisfy whatever legitimate land claims exist.

If you have an opinion, please write Governor Blanchard, Representative Gagliardi, and Representative Pridnia. Express you opinion. Ask for public hearings.

Watch speed limit on Bridge Street

Dear Editor,

Bridge Street is a main highway that travels through the heart of Charlevoix. Bridge Street is mainly bordered by residential homes. This is why the speed limit is 25 m.p.h.

The area I walk along is from Holiday Station to downtown Charlevoix. Along this route are two churches, a Dairy Queeen were high school students cross the highway during their lunch hour, and a parochial school. Other people who cross this highway are a few senior citizens, and persons from our local Charlevoix House. I have helped many of these people across the street. Some of these people, including myself, have stood on the corner waiting for up to half an hour to cross the street.

If these cars were doing the speed limit or close to it we could cross the street easier. How many of you speeders have seen the children and lost animals that are not on the curb that may dart out into the street? How soon would you be able to stop if you were doing forty miles per hour?

It would be nice if speeders were made to stand on Bridge Street a few times a week and made to make attempt to cross the street.

Saints 'n' Sinners

My mind is a mass of confusion — too many thoughts moving too quickly in a non-organized manner — and the result is a still-blank page before me. I haven't written an article for a newspaper since my junior year in high school, when as a journalism student I covered the visit of some famous Olympic athlete to our school — I never can remember his name! And now (umpteen years later) I volunteered to write a "religious" article scheduled for publication during the most important week of the religious year.

I'd like to make an impression with an article of intelligence, inspiration, and most of all — the power to convert, but I'm just a common, everyday-type person like you, so what can I possibly say that will keep you reading, let alone make a difference in your life? That's what this article should do, you know, make some difference in your life.

It just occurs to me that ~~that's~~ what this Holy Week is all about — it makes a difference in our lives. The triumphal entry into Jerusalem, the mockery of a trial, the crucifixion, the resurrection — all make a difference in our lives. Some of us aren't aware of it, some of us won't accept it, some don't admit it, and some have an inkling of what it's all about. But whatever our position relative to the matter — whether we believe, accept, deny, know, or don't know — the events will affect our lives. We have no control over that aspect of it; the only control we have is in what we decide to do about it.

For instance, if you haven't known about Jesus, if this is the first time you ever heard how he came into the world as a servant-king to die for our sins, that you might be forgiven and thereby gain eternal life - what will you do about it now that you've heard? What you decide to do can make a difference in your life.

Or, what if you've heard about Jesus, but never believed the story? That decision to disbelieve has made a difference in your life.

Or, maybe you've known about him, believed the story, but never made a commitment to accept Him as Lord and Savior. And those of you who have made a commitment to develop a personal relationship with Jesus — what have you decided to do with that commitment?

As the resurrection of our Lord is celebrated this Easter, we all need to consider the decision we have made — or neglected to make. The effect they have on our lives is too important to put off or ignore.

Won't you come to church this Easter? It can make a difference in your life.

What, neath the snow, each year Man's Shamelessly sowed beside the road —

Weddings

Walter Holm and Mary Herriman

Holm - Herriman

Mary Herriman and Walter Holm exchanged marriage vows on Saturday afternoon, March 9, at the home of the bride's parents, Duane and Patricia Herriman, in Charlevoix.

The bridegroom is the son of the late Louis and Edith Holm who made their home in Charlevoix. They were represented at the ceremony by Gene and Barb Holm.

Mayor Hal Hill performed the rites in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride wore a gown of white lace fashioned with a standup collar, V-shape front and back yokes, and full skirt, made of polyester and lined with taffeta. Her headpiece was a hat decorated with simulated pearls and nylon lace and attached net streamer. Her bouquet was composed of pink roses and white carnations.

Kelly Herriman, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor, and Amy Holm, daughter of the bridegroom, was flower girl. They were gowned in pink and carried pink and white bouquets.

Duane Herriman, Jr., brother of the bride, served as best man.

A reception at the American Legion Hall, hosted by the bride's parents, followed the ceremony. Sue Mack assisted in serving the cake, Janet Handy attended the guest book, and Nancy Herriman, sister of the bride, was in charge of the gift table.

Both bride and bridegroom are graduates of Charlevoix High School. The bride is employed by B.S. Hair Care and the bridegroom is employed by the Medusa Cement Co. They are making their home in Charlevoix.

Former judge addresses Little Traverse League

by MARGARET DUERR

At the March meeting of the Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom, former Judge Edward Fenlon showed slides taken on trips to Ireland, home of his ancestors. In preparation for the program, Judge Fenlon wrote to a young Irish friend, now an attorney in Belfast, asking for his comments on conditions there. The answering letter said that violence in North Ireland is being perpetrated by both sides. Violence by the authorities in power is more "discreet", making use of "emergency powers" to harrass citizens who espouse a different religion. He cited examples such as strip searches of women prisoners, and even visitors to those held in the Women's Prison. Also a "shoot-to-kill" policy by police dealing with "joy-riders". The latter are mostly teenagers who take a car to go "joy-riding" and then abandon it, sometimes damaged. Joy-riding needs to be controlled but since the joy-riders have always been found to be unarmed, it raises the question of whether "deadly force" needs to be used, and whether such violence begets further violence. These incidents destroy any effort to build confidence in the concept of an impartial police force or a just judicial system, since law enforcement personnel are rarely held accountable.

More widely publicized are the violent acts of the I.R.A., such as the recent killing of nine R.V.C. officers at Newry, and two killings of off-duty police officers, both of whom were Catholics. Radical members of the paramilitary regard Catholics who are police officers or who hold government positions, as traitors who have gone over to the enemy. Thus some Catholics become special targets of I.R.A. terrorism.

The eventual aim may be to unite North Ireland and the Republic of Eire (South Ireland), but there seems little likelihood of that being achieved in the near future. Union will never be the result of a democratic process, since the Protestant majority in Northern Ireland wants to remain British. A direct approach to the British government would be useless, given what the letter-writer calls "Mrs. Thatcher's uncompromising attitude and Falklands mentality".

Northern Ireland does not have its own parliament, but is represented in the British parliament by members elected by the Protestant majority, thus limiting the Catholic minority participation in the government. To quote from the letter, "The hatred is deep, abiding and unforgiving. Understanding by either side of the other is tainted and twisted by historical hatreds and hampered by mutual suspicions. The problems are religious, political and sociological. Prospects for improvement are slim, unless drastic constitutional changes are made and pheonomenal and unprecedented changes in attitutes take place."

Apologizing for his apparently hopeless outlook he says, "I am only trying to be realistic. I honestly can see little that can be done, - even by your (U.S.) Congress, to contribute substantially to a settlement of our troubles. Policical pressure by your peace groups may be the only constructive activity that I could propose, but bear in mind that men of violence on both sides have shown little willingness to respect any laws or politics but their own."

Judge Fenlon ended his presentation with a quotation from Leon Uris: "The sorrows and troubles have never left that tragic, lovely land for you see, in Ireland there is no future, - only a past happening over and over.".

Girls track team opens season April 10

By FRAN MARTIN

"This will be a re-building year for us. We have several experienced seniors, a drouth of juniors and a young and enthusiastic group of freshmen and sophomores," Coach Hal Evans said of the candidates for the 1985 Charlevoix Rayder track team.

He said some of the candidates have been preparing for the season while others who have said they would be out have not put in an appearance at this time.

The team will make its initial appearance in competition at Traverse City on Wednesday, April 10.

"That's when we'll know who is serious about track," Evans said.

He is presently counting on Jim Martin who placed fourth in the 220 last spring in state competition, and Doug Sloan, fifth in the 400 the year before, Jim Kenney a sprinter; Mike Louiselle, a sprinter and field events competitor; and Carl Dhaseleer, mid-distance runner, all seniors.

The sophomores include Terry Bonar and Jim Gibbs, hurdlers; Scott Crandell and Kevin Shepard, sprinters; Darrin Batdorff, pole vaulter; and Mike Dohm and Joan Eakes, distance runners.

Evans said he is depending on cross country runners as his distance runners.

"Now that spring break is over we will have to settle down and be serious about our track team. It will be a young, untested team with little experience but I am confident that they will come through. If everyone comes out, we should make a good showing despite our inexperience," Evans said of the prospects for the season.

The Rayders placed second in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference last year and third in the Class C regional meet.

"We have a long way to go, but I think we should shape up into a fairly strong team. As I said, we are young and untested but with hard work and determination I think we'll field a strong team before the season is over," Evans said.

The Rayders will officially open their regular schedule at Kalkaska April 18 after the meet at Traverse City which will give coaches an opportunity to see their teams in action for the first time.

The team will particpate in five meets plus seven invitationals and relays climaxed by the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference meet May 23 at Gaylord.

Boys track team young, untested

By FRAN MARTIN

The 1985 Rayder track season will open unofficially at Traverse City next Wednesday, April 10, when the Charlevoix girls team travels to Traverse City for a meet with the Traverse City High School girls.

"The meet will be more of a scrimmage, a chance to compete against an outside team, with neither team keeping times. It will give coaches a chance to try team members in various events and to give the kids a feel of competition," Coach Dennis VanGuilder said of the meet.

Since eary March, Charlevoix girls have been in training, working out indoors with distance runners doing some running outdoors in preparation for the season which will officially open at Kalkaska Wednesday, April 18, against the Blue Blazers and Gaylord.

Charlevoix will have no home meets this season because the condition of the track at Kipke Field.

Coach VanGuilder said he has had as many as 25 girls out at various times but with other school events and spring break he has not had all his candidates together at one time.

He did list several returnees who are expected to form the nucleus of this year's squad.

Among them are seniors Dianna Loder, sprinter and mid-distance runner; Kathy Dohm, high jumper and mid-distance runner; and Molly Bolduc, mid-distance runner.

Others are Barbie Boss and Rhonda Brown, sophomores, sprinters and sprint relay runners; Chaya Moore, a junior, and Michelle Louiselle a sophomore, 220 and sprint relay members; Michele North, sophomore, and Betsy Haggard, a freshman who showed great promise as a distance runner with the cross country team last fall, distance runners.

Other candidates will likely be reporting following spring break and the easing off of obligations to other activities, Van Guilder said of his 1985 squad.

The team already has four triangular meets, one dual and five invitational and relay meets scheduled in addition to the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference meet, VanGuiler said.

Audubon Society offers scholarship

For the sixth year, the Petoskey Regional Audubon Society is sponsoring a scholarship for a Northern Michigan elementary school teacher to attend a week-long course on natural history and outdoor education offered by the Leelanau Center for Education or at the Higgins Lake Conservation School.

In announcing the scholarship, Audubon Society president Kathy Bricker said that the purpose is to enable a teacher to expand his or her knowledge of Northern Michigan's natural history and then pass this knowledge on to youngsters.

"A requirement of the scholarship is that the teacher demonstrate how our community will benefit from the knowledge gained in the course," Bricker said.

The scholarship recipient will be asked to lead a field trip for children next fall. The Audubon Society cosponsors more than 20 field trips on a variety of natural history topics throughout the year.

More information and applications can be obtained by calling 347-0991.

Cub Scouts enjoy Pinewood Derby

MORE THAN 60 Cub Scouts and their parents enjoyed the Pinewood Derby at Charlevoix Elementary School March 16. The boys made their own cars — with some help from their parents — for the race down a special track.

Cubmaster Jim Mansen said a new addition to the event this year was a parent's division which allowed adults to compete against other adults.

Top four winners in the 8 year old division were: Scott Boyer, Travis Levengood, Scott Burns and Brandon Webb.

Winners in the 9 year old division were: Ben Whitley, Matt Miller, Jesse Beatty and Chris Purdy.

Winners in the 10 year old and Webeloes division were: Vincent Voisin, Sean Young, Troy Bonar and Seth Arnold.

Winners in the parents' division were: Dave Burns, John Dobulis, Tom Arnold and Chuck Meier.

Pictured above are two parents readying their cars for the race. At the left spectators watch competing cars roar down the track.

Positions open for counselors

Local young people, aged 17 and older, who are planning a people-oriented career may be interested in a summer position as counselor-in-training (CIT) at Interlochen Music Camp, south of Traverse City.

The 1985 Interlochen summer season runs from June 18-Aug. 19. Applications for CIT jobs are available by calling (616) 276-9221, or writing to CIT Programs, National Music Camp, Interlochen, Michigan 49643.

CITs at the National Music Camp attend daily classes and workshops on group dynamics, age group characteristics, leadership, problem-solving and communication. They learn camping and recreation skills through field work, including several overnight campouts. Red Cross certification in first aid, cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), and advanced lifesaving is also part of the course.

CITs spend approximately eight weeks as cabin co-counselors, where they assist with cabin duties, divisional responsibilities, and waterfront, recreational and social activities for campers of different age groups.

The National Music Camp enrolls some 2,500 young people, aged eight through college, from all over the world. In addition to music, the Camp offers study in art, dance, and drama.

Agreement ends suit over Eveline landfill

Following somewhat of a non-hearing at the Charlevoix County courthouse Thursday, a tentative agreement was announced in the suit filed by Eveline Township against Charlevoix Garbage Service and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The suit alleged that runoff from the the landfill operated by Charlevoix Garbage Service, one of only two landfills presently licensed by the DNR to operate in Northwest Michigan, posed the threat of contamination to nearby properties and eventually Lake Charlevoix.

While participants in the case waited in the courtroom for the scheduled 2 p.m. hearing, attorneys negotiated for several hours before announcing that the litigation had been halted by the agreement.

Both Dawson Way, owner of Charlevoix Garbage Service, and Dave Willson, Eveline Township supervisor expressed satisfaction with the out-of-court settlement. The agreement is to be taken up for final approval by the Eveline Township Board at its April 9 meeting.

Some of the stipulations of the agreement include:

-Placement of at least six inches of cover over uncovered areas of the landfill daily.

-Continuance of plans for diversion dikes, retention ponds and a gravel filter.

-Quarterly monitoring of surface water runoff for a wide variety of contaminants.

-Special sampling by the township once a year of an adjoining 20-acre parcel where surface water collects.

Counter offer in for post office site

The U.S. Postal Service's counter offer to the city for a site just north of City Hall for a new post office was presented to City Council for discussion Monday night.

According to City Manager Michael Wiesner, postal officials lowered the purchase price from the $85,000 proposed by the city to $79,000 and specified several other conditions by which the site proposal will be offered to bidders.

Of three alternatives for keeping the post office downtown submitted by the city to the Postal Service's real estate branch in Detroit, the only one accepted for consideration involved a new fire station extending east onto the property now occupied by the existing post office and additional parking provided on the former Erber Auto property.

Wiesner characterized the counter offer and conditions, which include waiving of setbacks, parking for postal employees and keeping the alley open among other things, as "reasonable...in looking at the potential of keeping the Post Office downtown."

Volunteer fireman Barry Wood voiced concern that the proposal would have fire trucks exiting onto Mason St. instead of the wider State St. as originally planned for the new fire hall. He also pointed out that delays from combining the fire hall plans with the post office's future will mean that the new pumper expected to arrive this spring will not Well-wishers escort the Cutter Mesquite into port Sunday.

Mesquite makes it

by DAVE KNIGHT

As anxious family and friends waited for a joyous homecoming, Mother Nature spoiled the party Saturday by thwarting the scheduled arrival of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite in her home port of Charlevoix after a four-month tour of duty in the Caribbean.

Winds gusting to 60 miles per hour jammed the Pine River Channel so full of flow ice that even the power of the Mesquite's massive engines could not budge it. After several tries at the channel, the ship backed off in precariously heavy seas and sought refuge in Little Traverse Bay for the night.

Easter Sunday's sunny, calm morning saw the ice pack disappear completely from the channel. To a chorus of honking horns and cheering families, the Mesquite easily entered the harbor at about 10 a.m. with strains of music from the West Indies blaring over her loudspeakers.

Following a brief welcome from Mayor Hal Hill, City Manager Michael Wiesner and Chamber of Commerce executive director Claudia Kenifeck, crew members were dismissed for long-awaited reunions.

At Saturday's aborted welcoming ceremonies, Capt. David Freeborn of the Coast Guard's Sault Ste. Marie headquarters read special commendations sent to the Mesquite crew from Rear Admiral R.P. Cueroni, Commander of the Seventh Coast Guard District, Rear Admiral A.M. Danielson, Commander of the Ninth Coast Guard District and Vice Admiral P.A. Yost, Commander of the Coast Guard's Atlantic Area.

The Mesquite leans into massive seas off the Charlevoix pierheads Saturday following its unsuccessful attempt to enter the Pine River channel.

Prizes, enthusiasm growing for Trout Tournament

by DAVE KNIGHT

Momentum is building almost daily for the first annual Lake Charlevoix Trout Tournament, according to organizer Jim Withers.

Withers announced last week that prizes totaling over $13,000 in cash or merchandise have been lined up for the May 18-19 event and that Michigan Department of Natural Resources Director Ronald Skoog and his wife have been invited to reign over the first-time affair as King and Queen.

"Right now we are expecting anywhere from 100 to 150 boats and up to 400 people for the tournament," said Withers who heads an organizing committee of five and a volunteer force of over 60 working on the project.

"It's unbelievable how fast this has grown and how many people have expressed their interest in either helping out or participating," he added, "I have to think that the community was ready for this and just waiting for someone to get it going."

Withers pointed out that the tournament, originally dubbed the Charlevoix Trout Tournament, has now been re-named the Lake Charlevoix Trout Tournament and will involve participation from Boyne City and East Jordan as well as the City of Charlevoix.

New Courier editor named

Doug Truax of Charlevoix has been named as the new editor of the Charlevoix Courier, General Manager Ken Winter announced this week.

Truax, 40, replaces Dave Knight who is leaving the Courier to become director of community relations for the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A local resident for the last four years, Truax was selected after a nationwide search.

"We are pleased Doug accepted the Courier editorship and will continue the fine job that Dave Knight did," Winter said.

"Doug's personal interest in the outdoors coupled with his editing background made him a strong candidate for the job."

Truax moved to Charlevoix in 1981 to establish his own publishing company, Peach Mountain Press. The company has published books on cruising the Great Lakes, Michigan history, and natural resources. He is also a free-lance writer and photographer whose stories and pictures have appeared in such national publications as Audubon, Sporting Classics, Trout, and Rod and Reel.

Doug Truax

For 2½ years he was also editor of Michigan Trout, a newspaper produced for Trout Unlimited. In addition, Truax has done advertising and commercial photography for a variety of businesses in northern Michigan.

"It's an honor to be chosen to edit such a fine publication as the Courier," Truax says. "It has a proud tradition and Dave Knight is leaving some very big shoes to fill. It is a special pleasure to get such a job in Charlevoix - a town we felt instantly at home in."

The new editor is a native of Grand Rapids and a graduate of the University of Michigan. He worked for 12 years at the U-M's Institute for Social Research (ISR), the world's largest university-based research organization. He held a variety of editorial jobs there before becoming director of publications in 1978. In that role he was responsible for all ISR periodicals, press reports, and media contact. For a time, he wrote a nationally syndicated social

Fire guts Ione Tripp home

Mrs. Ione Tripp, 83, escaped serious injury Thursday afternoon when she was pulled from her burning home in Hayes township by her grandson, Duane, 23, and his friend, David Cole 23, of Charlevoix.

According to the Charlevoix Fire Chief John Martin, Mrs Tripp was alone in her one-story frame home located on Old U.S. 31 North approximately nine miles east of Charlevoix when she discovered the fire which is believed to have started near a floor lamp in the living room area of the house. She called her grandson who lived next door. He and Cole arrived at the house to find it filled with smoke and the walls ablaze. Young Tripp crawled on the floor in an attempt to locate his grandmother whom he found near the kitchen area. He got her to the floor and dragged her toward the door. Cole then assisted the two to the exterior of the building which was gutted by flames and extreme heat.

Mrs. Tripp was taken to the Little Traverse Hospital where she was treated for first and second degree burns on her arms and for smoke inhalation. She was released late Thursday evening. Young Tripp was treated and released.

The Charlevoix Fire Department responded to the call. The Charlevoix Township Department also responded but returned to the station when it found their assistance was not needed.

Charlevoix fire chief John Martin, left, and volunteer fireman Doug Bergmann inspect wiring in a lamp base that was the suspected cause of a fire that gutted the Ione Tripp residence Thursday.

Charlevoix Yesterday

This building occupied the southwest corner of Bridge Street and the Pine River Channel for many years. It was known first as the Lewis Grand Opera House and later as the Hotel Alhambra. The top floor was an auditorium which could be used as a basketball court. The late Charlevoix attorney Rollie L. Lewis loved to tell the story of the hotly contested game early in this century when the town's only basketball flew through the window and out into the channel. History does not record whether it was recovered in time or shape to continue the game.

Co-op adds True Value product lines

With a new look and a new name, Charlevoix Co-op Co. last week held a grand opening to introduce its True Value line of products in its newly-remodeled store on Stover Road, to which "True Value Hardware Store" has been added.

Ron Knight, manager of the store, expressed the hope that with the hardware store designation, potential customers will not think of the store as a farm cooperative which requires membership to make purchases.

Knight also said that the Co-op's Board of Directors is in the process of changing its bylaws to indicate this change in image.

The new True Value Hardware Store handles all of the regular hardware store items – electrical supplies, paints, plumbing equipment, auto accessories, bait and tackle, lawn and garden products, and hand and power tools, among others.

In addition, it handles other items not always available in hardware stores, such as animal health supplies, tac, animal feed, agricultural grade fertilizer, bulk seeds (including grass seeds), bulbs, rose bushes, blueberry and grape vines, shrubs, and trees.

In a related seed category, Knight noted that the store sold 50,000 pounds of birdseed last year. It also sold a variety of bird feeders to dispense the birdseed.

Knight expects to start stocking his garden department within the next couple of weeks, and to have most plants available by the first of May.

To get garden equipment back in shape, the store offers sharpening and repair service for lawn mowers, tillers, chain saws, and other tools.

Now over 50 years old, the Charlevoix Co-op has always been located in the Stover Road-Ferry Avenue area. Its mill, which burned down several years ago, was on the site of the present Nanny's Restaurant.

Besides Knight, the True Value Hardware Store staff consists of John Haram, assistant manager, Tom Black, Max Orlarey, Kevin Flexman, and Al Christenson.

Tom Black, Ron Knight and Max Orlarey look over some of the new product line now featured at the Charlevoix Co-op.

Elementary School musical to pay tribute to "The Lady" / two shows planned

by ANNE KELLY

Dear Mr. Iacocca,
I hope that you can come to our show, "Liberty". If you can come, I hope it will be to your liking. We have worked hard for this show and hope you will come. At the show we will be raising money for the Statue of Liberty. I think it is very important to save the Statue of Liberty because it is a national symbol and represents liberty and freedom. If we let the Statue of Liberty decay and rot it shows everyone that America has neglected the Statue of Liberty, that they just don't care anymore. That is why I am convinced that we must save the Statue of Liberty. Thank you for taking the time to help collect money for the Statue of Liberty.
Sincerely yours,
Matthew Smith

Sorority to observe 54 years

by PEG OHLE

Charlevoix's three chapters of the international service sorority, Beta Sigma Phi, will host 11 other northern Michigan chapters on April 29 to celebrate the 54th anniversary of the founding of the sorority.

Local Preceptor Beta Mu and Chapters Xi Epsilon Gamma and Kappa Sigma will welcome sorority members from Petoskey, Boyne City, Gaylord, and Lewiston at Duffy's of Charlevoix for an evening of fun and business.

Kay Ball of Preceptor Beta Mu reports there are about 60 sorority members in Charlevoix who assist in service projects for several area groups, including the Charlevoix Area Hospital, the Bergmann Center, Camp McSauba, the Women's Resource Center, the Red Cross Bloodmobile, and the Lions Club Sightmobile.

Beta Sigma Phi came to Charlevoix around 1960, according to Ms. Ball, and has been in continuous operation for 17 years. It was founded in 1931 in Abilene, Kansas by Walter W. Ross, who thought that during the depression years, "Young women needed more in their lives than work, responsibility and hardship." He thought a social and cultural outlet was needed. That outlet is now the largest Greek letter sorority in the world, with 12,500 chapters made up of 250,000 members.

Internationally, Beta Sigma Phi members donate over $3 million to charitable works each year and have set up an endowment fund which has donated over $2 million to health research groups, homes for underprivileged children, and many other worthwhile causes.

When the northern Michigan chapters meet April 29 at Duffy's to observe Founder's Day, Pat Pence, president of Preceptor Beta Mu, will serve as mistress of ceremonies. Suzi Reis, president of Xi Epsilon Gamma, will present a special message from the International Executive Council, and Pat Carlin, president of Kappa Sigma, will lead the opening ritual. Other Founder's Day committee members are Ms. Ball and Ann Hufford of Preceptor Beta Mu, Eileen Heck and Lilly Matye of Xi Epsilon Gamma, and Janet Koontz, Alicia Christoph, and Kris Schaperkotter of Kappa Sigma.

During the evening, awards will be presented to outstanding chapter members to recognize them for their sorority and community work.

JayCees to meet

The newly formed chapter of the Charlevoix JayCees will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, April 15 at Ricciardi's Inn of Charlevoix.

All members and prospective members are invited to attend.

Davis rep. sets hours

Betty Monkowski, district representative for Congressman Bob Davis, will hold office hours in Charlevoix on Wednesday, April 10. She will be at the Charlevoix County courthouse from 1:45 to 2:45 p.m. and will be in East Jordan that morning and Boyne City later that afternoon.

Appointments are not neccessary.

Knight on the Town

Sign off

by Dave Knight

It was just about this time nine years ago that the first Knight on the Town was written for a teeny, tiny weekly paper in a teeny, tiny Southern Wisconsin town named Poynette.

Other than a state-run pheasant farm and a restaurant known far and wide for its cheese dip, Poynette didn't really have much going for it.

Even the pheasants were smart enough to blow that town en masse when an ice storm brought down all their chicken wire pens. That left me, the cheese dip and a few hundred readers of the Poynette Press who never actually expected to see much news in their little paper but spent a dime on the possibility each week anyway.

That's the sort of environment in which a young journalist's mind starts to wander...and invariably gets into trouble.

Knight on the Town never intended to be a smart a–. He never held malice or disrespect for the people he wrote about. He just wanted to add a bit of salt to the soup. What he found out is that some people don't like salty soup.

Many people do, of course, but happy readers are generally quiet readers and until Knight on the Town realized this fact, he seriously wondered if he'd ever get out of Poynette alive. Suffice to say that some people thought Knight would be better Off the Town and let him know their feelings in a very direct, uninhibited manner.

Fortunately, Poynette was a temporary assignment and Knight on the Town survived, albeit with a somewhat thicker skin.

Since then, this column has easily become the most enjoyable part of newspapering for me.

While most of the paper's success or failure depends on a crucial team effort involving reporters, advertising staff, production personnel and many others, when I sit down at the terminal to write the column, it's one-on-one with the reader.

Note that I say reader in the singular. One of those lessons I learned long ago is that if you attempt to write something for this vast amorphous mass of readers, you get nowhere. Can't please all the people all the time, right?

This column is intended to be is more of a correspondence with a friend than a speech to a crowd.

Over the years I've developed other ground rules for the column. I avoid state, national and moral issues; those, I think, are well covered by other media. The focus is on the community and in Charlevoix's case, that provides plenty of material.

Knight on the Town is sometimes an editorial, sometimes a mood piece, sometimes a satire, sometimes an anecdote. It is usually the last part of the Courier to be put on the page and has sometimes singlehandedly held up the whole show.

The weekly editor is so many things: a news reporter, society reporter, sports reporter, photographer, businessman, et. al. It's easy to forget sometimes which of the above you are at any given time.

That's why Knight on the Town has been important to this weekly editor. When all is said and done and I've gone through all the hat changes listed above for the week, the column is there, plain and simple, offering me the chance...to be me.

I'll miss it.

And weather watchers.

And people watchers.

The main event, of course, was the arrival of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite from the Caribbean Sea at the height of Saturday's nor'wester.

Tied up at the municipal dock, the Mesquite is a monster. Battered by giant breakers a mile out in Lake Michigan, she is a matchstick. And not a very sturdy matchstick at that.

Spectators gathered on the south pier and at the foot of Dixon Avenue to watch the drama as the Mesquite made a valiant effort to reach Pine River Channel and the shelter of Round Lake.

But winds gusting to 50 miles per hour had packed the channel so solidly with ice that progress was impossible. A dozen times or more the Mesquite backed up and charged ahead — only to be stopped dead by the ice. The assault must have been particularly exasperating for the men and women aboard, who were less than one-quarter mile from their old berth at the city dock.

Finally, the Mesquite backed reluctantly through the broken ice and headed out to sea — pitching and yawing like a champagne cork in a mixmaster.

One by one the sentries left their posts. I walked home and called the Coast Guard station to find out what was going on. I was fortunate to get one of those super courteous young enlisted men who has been carefully schooled in nautical terms and public relations.

"We're not sure where she's going, sir," he said. "But she'll probably lay off Harbor Springs for the night and give it another try in the morning."

"Do you know what time she is expected back?"

"I'm sorry, sir. Her E.T.A. hasn't been established."

I was about to hang up, when my respondent offered some additional information.

"You see, sir, the skipper was afraid he'd get her stuck in the channel with her, er...with her, well, with her ass still out in the lake. The wind could have driven her into the pierheads."

I thanked him and hung up. He had just made my day.

EASTER SUNDAY morning, under an almost cloudless sky, the Mesquite returned to Charlevoix in a dead calm. The ice field had moved out into the lake and the channel was almost ice-free. The trip home was a piece of cake.

In light of the 20-hour delay, members of the the welcoming committee — composed of Mayor Hal Hill, City Manager Michael Wiesner, and Claudia Kenifeck, executive secretary of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce — mercifully made their remarks succinct and to the point.

Seconds after the ceremony ended, crew members and their families were reunited in ankle-deep snow on the wharf as a voice on the ship's P.A. system cried lustily: "Liberty! Liberty! Liberty!"

What a beautiful Easter Sunday it turned out to be!

Wiesner said that at this point, no direction taken by council will result in a new fire hall before sometime in 1986 and that housing for the new fire truck will be avaialable in either an enlarged Erber garage or the city street garage.

In other action, council decided to end winter sledding on the Grant St. hill by youngsters, citing the danger of nearby traffic and complaints from nearby residents.

Truax was also responsible for ISR's book publishing program, which published 15-20 new books a year.

"I got hooked on northwest Michigan early," he notes, "since my family always vacationed at lakes in the area, including Elk and Walloon. When my wife and I decided we would start our own business and I would free lance, we figured we might as well do it in the most beautiful area of the state. We have never regretted it for a minute."

Truax's wife, Grace, has been a co-director of Peach Mountain Press, and is currently an assistant teacher at the Charlevoix Children's House. The couple has a 5-year-old daughter, Stephanie.

The Truaxes live south of Charlevoix at the site of the deserted logging town of Phelps. Doug lists his interests as fishing, hunting, cross-country skiing, reading, and "chasing around after our golden retriever and English setter."

Fish tournament .....

Appearing before City Council's meeting as a committee of the whole Monday night, Withers requested "unlimited authority" for the use of East Park during the festivities. Council gave its tacit approval to the request following City Manager Michael Wiesner's assorance that he "sees no problems."

Some of the activities planned for the park over the tournament weekend include:

-Five hundred two-year old brown trout (donated by the Medusa Cement Co.) released in the trout pond for children to catch. The JayCees will conduct the operation which will include tagged fish for special prizes.

-A fish boil conducted by the Charlevoix Rod & Gun Club.

-Booths operated by such organization as the Lions Club, JayCees and Michigan Steelheaders and area firms including Irish Boat Shop of Charlevoix and Advance Tackle of Boyne City.

-Tournament headquarters in two 20' by 40' tents at which fish will be weighed in during the day and current tournament standings posted.

Tournament co-directors Joan Burkey and Norm Probert will be in charge of weekend activities which will also include a special $1 Saturday matinee for youngsters at Cinema III.

The major fish cleaning station will be at the Ward Brothers charter boat dock. According to Withers, proper disposal methods have been cleared by the District Health Department.

The tournament will involve four categories: brown trout, lake trout, steelhead and salmon. Although several prizes will be awarded in each of the four groups, the top prize will be for the largest brown trout.

The lucky fisherman who registers the heaviest brown trout will win $1000 cash and a 15 hp Yamaha outboard worth $1,695. In addition, if he catches it on a Stinger lure from Boyne City's Advance Tackle, the company will tack on another $2,000 cash prize. And if the fish happens to be the one specially tagged and released by DNR personnel in Lake Charlevoix the week before, he wins $5,000 more.

Finally, those who participate in the "Tournament Within a Tournament" will be eligible for even more cash prizes based on total weight of a five-fish limit.

Admitting that the tournament can sound complicated for those who have not taken part in similar events held in many other coastal Michigan communities, Withers said that a public meeting is scheduled to be held at 7 p.m., Wednesday, April 24 at Charlevoix High School. The purpose of the meeting, he explained, will be to entertain questions and answers about the tournament which is being co-sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and which organizers hope to make an annual event.

The following Saturday, April 27, a benefit dinner with door prizes will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion Hall with proceeds going toward promotion of sport fishing in the area and the upcoming tournament. Tickets are $15 apiece and $25 a couple.

In addition to DNR director Skoog and his wife, other VIPs who are expected to be on hand for the May 18-19 tournament include Detroit Free Press outdoor writer Tom Opre, Great Lakes Fisherman editor Ottie Snyder, Big Jon Manufactoring Co. president John Emery.

Withers expressed special gratitude to Myrl Keller of the DNR fisheries station in Charlevoix, City Manager Wiesner and Mayor Hal Hill for their support in getting the tournament off the ground.

Amen to Bob

To the Editor:

Amen to Bob Clock's recent comments on Burger King's nasty campaign against McDonald's.

Our household has long been disgusted with the ever-increasing ugliness of the Burger King commercials. They have only convinced us that Burger King is not where the "good guys" are.

Perhaps a new advertising manager could clean up the mess, given a little time, but till then, when we're MacHungry, you know where to MacFind us.

Tourism works

To the Editor:

As a member of the travel industry, the nation's third largest retail industry and one which provides enjoyment for millions of Americans each year, I am proud that the week of May 19-25, 1985 has been named National Tourism Week.

Last year, President Reagan established National Tourism Week to celebrate one of America's fastest growing industries. Because of the economic impact of this industry, I can't think of anything more fitting than this National Tourism Week's slogan, TOURISM WORK$ FOR AMERICA.

Not many people realize that travel supports 6.8 million jobs directly and indirectly. In 1985, travel and tourism will generate nearly $50 billion in wages and salaries. I hope that everyone will take the time to appreciate travel as an important part of what makes America great.

May 19-25, 1985 has been designated National Tourism Week to help Americans realize that tourism does work for America.

Back to bounty

To the Editor:

I have read a good number of articles about how inhuman it is to use traps to catch animals but you don't hear any big outcry about dogs chasing deer.

The deer have small feet and they sink down in the snow while the dogs can run on top of the snow. The doe is in foal in the spring making it harder for her to outrun a pack of dogs. If you have ever seen a deer that a pack of dogs has downed and torn off the flesh while it is still alive, you will never forget it; it is a terrible sight.

There is a law against a civilian shooting a dog chasing a deer. All you can do is call up the DNR and they say they will take care of it, but don't shoot the dogs. By the time they get out there, the deer is killed and partly eaten by the dogs which are maybe miles away waiting for another day to kill another deer.

They say keep your dogs tied up but sooner or later they will get loose and if they have that wild instinct they will chase deer. How else can you stop them except to shoot them?

The deer have survived the winter and are carrying the next year's crop of young only to be destroyed by a pack of dogs. Maybe the DNR wants it this way to thin out the herd but a better way to do this is to put on a larger doe season and let the hunter benefit by it.

Why not let the farmers shoot the dogs on their property and maybe give a bounty, say $25, for each one brought in as an incentive to stop dogs chasing deer and maybe then, by their dog tags, make the owners pay a fine.

We could know by the bounty paid out just how serious the deer killing is. Years ago they had a bounty on sparrows of 2 cents a head, rat tails 10 cents and crows 25 cents each. I took advantage of this and made quite a little spending money. They also paid for ragweed collected.

What's your opinion?

Support MS Soc.

To the Editor:

If a family member or someone within your circle of friends and acquaintances has the disease, the words "multiple sclerosis" can have a frustrating connotation, because as yet no definite cause or cure for the disease has been discovered.

Several hundred thousands of Americans are affected by this disease; in fact, more have multiple sclerosis (MS) than have muscular dystrophy, cystic fibrosis and hemophilia combined.

The disease is characterized by the development of patches of inflammation in multiple, or scattered, areas of the brain and spinal cord. The term sclerosis refers to the scarred or hardened tissue surrounding nerve fibers that results from this inflammation. This scar tissue blocks or short-circuits messages from the brain that muscles, organs and glands need to function properly. Symptoms of MS can include blurred vision, slurred speech, loss of coordination and balance and loss of function of the arms and legs. Since MS usually strikes patients during their most productive years (between the ages of 15 and 50), the emotional, physical and financial burden of MS can be especially great for MS patients, their families and the community as a whole.

The Northern Michigan Branch of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society has been active since 1980, providing education, information, therapy services and equipment assistance to MS persons throughout northern Michigan.

Last summer, the branch raised over $8,000 in a fundraising drive which culminated in a drawing held during Charlevoix's Venetian Festival. Plans for a bigger and better event are underway for this year, and the event committee's goal is to double the amount raised last year. Several businesses have again generously donated prizes, and we encourage other individuals, businesses and organizations to become involved in this exciting event. As event chairperson, I urge readers to contact me at 347-4994 and let me know how you, your business or your group would like to participate. Your support will send a message of concern and hope to the individuals and families in northern Michigan whose lives have been affected by this disease.

In four 2½ hour sessions parents are presented with issues, real life situations, facts, and the best ways to tell their kids what they think in a positive way.

Film discussion on child abuse planned at hospital

A special program for area youngsters and their parents on the prevention of child abuse will be held Wednesday evening, April 17 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Co-sponsored by the hospital and the Women's Resource Center, the session will include a film and discussion in the hospital class room starting at 7:30 p.m. It is part of a local participation in National Prevent Child Abuse Month which is observed in April.

Coordinating the program will be Terry Kilborn, elementary school social worker for the Petoskey school district.

According to Ms. Kilborn, the 30-minute film "Better Safe Than Sorry" is directed toward grade school aged children and discusses many personal safety issues. It consists of several vignettes in which children are approached by strangers or neighbors who might want to do the children harm and then explains how such situations should be dealt with.

"The film is a very non-threatening approach," said Ms. Kilborn, "It teaches the children to say 'no' when approached in a potentially harmful situation, to run away and to tell someone they trust about it."

It also tells its young audience who they should look for when threatened and to persist in telling their story even if they are not believed at first, said Ms. Kilborn.

She added that the film has been used in both the Petoskey school district and in Boyne City where it was previewed by about 200 parents before being shown to the school children.

A question and answer period will be held following the film. All Charlevoix area elementary school aged children and their parents are invited to attend the program which is free. The Charlevoix Area Hospital classroom is on the bottom level of the new addition to the hospital.

Yachting Notes

By A. NONY MOUSE

Spring has sprung! Oh sure, the temperature is in the low 20's, the wind is up to the high 50's, the white stuff is still the same white stuff that drifted in all winter long — but, it is Spring! For A. Nony is back typing these columns, on his trusty KayPro.

Many of you have, in the past, just read about all the activities that make Charlevoix summer life on the water so interesting. Make this the year in which you participate! The Charlevoix Yacht Club is offering a very special welcome to new members by providing an opportunity for anyone, who has never been a member, to pay only the regular renewal rates for either Full or Associate (only available to non boat-owners) Membership. Also, a special invitation is extended to all to join us at an Open House to be held at the same time as our Annual Meeting; 7:30 p.m., Friday, May 10, 1985. It's held at the Club, which, for the newcomer, is the old Railway Depot on Lake Charlevoix, at the foot of Dixon. This Event is a traditional social get-together, not a business meeting; it's an excellent time for you to see the Club, meet the people, perhaps enjoy a beverage and decide if "this Club's for You."

The CYC is much, much more than just the sailboat racing you read so much about in this column. Our sailing instruction program, sessions on water safety and seamanship are part of the services we provide to the community in the interests of better boating. Club Cruises and the annual Floating Treasure Hunt are fun for both Power and Sail. The Board Sailing Activities offer an inexpensive, healthy, and fun entry into water sports for both young and old. And — for those who may feel that the only good use of water is its use as a diluent for more pure bottled liquids — we offer numerous occasions that provide such an opportunity ... Join the club now; the Las Vegas Party, Saturday evening, April 20 will be one less fun event you'll otherwise miss.

We would like to remind regular racing crewmembers that they need to be at least Associate Members, if they plan to frequent the Club after the races.

Memberships are available through the Chamber of Commerce Office, Village Car Care, Irish Boat Shop, any Officer of the Club or at the Club Open House — May 10th. Just say: "the Mouse sent me."

Racers — man your boats! Tune up races are scheduled in less than a month! More on all the racing and cruising schedules in the next column.

...the End of the Mouse's Tale.

Dodge ski team, with Bonello, earns Colorado trip

by PEG OHLE

Mike Bonello, who assists with the coaching of Charlevoix High School ski teams, returned last week from Colorado, where he participated in the Grand Marnier National Ski Club Challenge.

He was a member of the Team Dodge Ski Club, a six-member amateur slalom sqwuad, which earned a berth in the national competition and an all-expense paid trip to Keystone, Colorado by winning the Grand Marnier Midwest Regional Ski Club Challenge at Boyne Mountain in February.

Competitors at Boyne Mountain came from Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Illinois as well as Michigan. Five other Regional meets were held throughout the country, and the winning Club from all six Regions made up the National Ski Club Challenge.

Besides Bonello, the Midwest Regional Team Dodge Ski Club was made up of Annie Ekstrom of Boyne City, Chelsey Davis of Harbor Springs, Gail Koski of Petoskey, and Jim Crites and Steve Spaulding of Okemos. According to Bonello, Crites had the fastest time in the country this year. Overall, the local Club came in third in the National Club Challenge, just 2.38 seconds out of first place.

Mike Bonello

While Club racing competition was the major event in Keystone, skiers also had a chance to compete against several television and movie celebrities in the second annual Grand Marnier Celebrity Ski Club Challenge to raise funds for the March of Dimes. Bonello particularly mentioned Michael Young, host of the television show, "Kids are People, Too", several Playboy playmates, and "a six-foot, two-inch blonde nurse from St. Elsewhere". He also had his picture taken with Morgan Brittany of TV's "Dallas" series.

This year was the eighth year Bonello has participated in the Regional Ski Club Challenge, but the first year he has qualified for the National Challenge.

As a true skier, Bonello and other local Club members tried out other ski slopes while in the west, including Vail, Copper Mountain, and Arapahoe.

Coming back to reality, Bonello noted that there is a need for rental equipment at Mt. McSauba, that skiing lessons should start at the elementary school level, and that next year will be a good ski season for schools in the north.

Paris trip leaves lasting memories

by ANNE KELLY

"Like a dream come true," would be a fair description of a trip to Paris over Spring break, for twenty-one lucky Charlevoix students. The tour was arranged through Cultural Heritage Alliance Tours. Along with French instructor Mme Yvonne Wendt and her husband, chaperones for the tour, the students winged their way across the Atlantic to Charles de Gaulle airport via Soo, Canada and Toronto, a culmination of many months of planning and anticipation.

For many, like Susie Annis, it was a combination of many firsts. This was Susie's first flight and her first trip abroad. To remember the highlights in detail, Susie kept a diary, from the day she packed her suitcase on March 21 until the day she was met at Sault Ste. Marie for the final leg home on the 30th.

"March 21, 1985. Today I packed my suitcase for Paris. I'm so excited! I can't wait until tomorrow morning when we leave. I'm worried about that plane ride. I hope everything goes OK!"

And it did. Susie reports with unbridled enthusiasm the excitement she experienced in seeing places and palaces and artifacts that she had studied in French class. From the first gourmet meal served aboard their trans-Atlantic flight ("We had saumon fume, poulet ua whiskey, riz creole, salade composee, frommage and patisserie), through the guided tours, and the discoveries made on their own riding the Metro and walking the boulevards de Paris in small groups - everything was even better than they had imagined.

There were arranged tours to Versailles, Paris, Chambord, Fountainebleau, Chartres, through Le Louvre and Jeu de Pom museums and attendance at the Follies Bergere, a "like-Broadway" dance extravaganza.

Susie reports that breakfast each day at the hotel consisted of a croissant, some french bread, hot chocolate and "Tang". Lunch was usually grabbed on the run. Guess what they discovered in Paris? A Burger King. "It was really neat, like a discotheque." Dinner was usually at the same restaurant where students were required to touch base and share each evening. Curfew was at 12 or 1:00 a.m., then up for another day on the town.

Susie and her friends, some of whom were students on the tour from other states, found similarities in France that helped them feel at home away from home: fashions were "about the same", except that French girls wear their jeans so tight they must have trouble sitting down. She noticed that wearing scarves was popular, that the temperature in Paris averaged about 40 degrees, with some rain each day until the sun broke through, and the prevalence of American music. Of course there were also hamburgers, french (of course) fries and pizza.

Every student came back with favorite sites. For Susie it was the Palace at Chambord, which impressed her with its immensity and beauty. She reports the good fortune of photographing the Mona Lisa because of a strike by museum guards, a spring-fling shopping excursion Au Printemps, dept. store, and pictures taken from atop the Eiffel Tower.

"March 30. Well au revoir. It was a great trip - the best of my life, thank you Mom and Dad!"

Believe it or not Susie didn't even realize that she hadn't seen TV all week until she caught the French version of the Smurfs in the lobby one morning.

C'est vrai. (It's the truth!)

Sue Annis

For Saints and Sinners

by Pastor Lowell Anderson
Assembly of God

Satanic influences, once thought by the average American church goer to only be present in pagan cultures and religions of far-off lands, are now present in every segment of American Society and in every community in our land. Once thought to be related only to superstition, the power of the occult world is demonstrated to be very real, and very evil. I am concerned about the inroads this ungodly influence is making into the homes and into the lives of Christians.

I believe it was while enroute to Charlevoix to interview as a Pastoral candidate for the church last November that I picked up a newspaper in an airline terminal and read the tragic account of twelve year old Steven Erwin, of Lafayette, Colorado who had murdered his older brother Daniel, 16, with a gunshot to the head, then committed suicide. Investigators discovered the incident to be the result of a death pact inspired by the game DUNGEONS AND DRAGONS. The detective's report read, "No doubt Dungeons and Dragons cost them their lives". This is only one of numerous documented cases of murders and suicides related to the game. This game is only one of scores of avenues the deadly power of the occult is finding its way into the homes and lives of people. Christian faith, and common sense, would prompt us to be on guard against involvement with anything that is occult related - games, movies, television programs, music, books and magazines, etc.

While we are concerned about the deadly affects of pollution, famine, nuclear accident, and war, let's heed the warning of Jesus Christ, "And fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both body and soul in hell" (Matthew 10:28).

Jesus has much better things in mind for your life! "The thief cometh not, but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly (John 10:10).

Big Bros., Big Sisters name new director

by PEG OHLE

Lucille Cowles of East Jordan has joined the staff of Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Charlevoix County as Director.

In a sense, Mrs. Cowles is "working her way up" in the organization because she was once a Big Sister. The mother of three grown children and grandmother of eight says she has "always been interested in kids" and feels she has a lot to give.

"Just knowing there are a lot of one-parent families having a hard time made me want to do something," she explains about taking the job.

Big Brothers-Big Sisters matches young boys with Big Brotherss and young girls with Big Sisters for companionship, activities, and guidance one or two or more hours a week. The children are usually from one-parent families and Big Brothers and Big Sisters provide them with an adult attachment on a one-to-one basis.

"We don't want Big Brothers or Big Sisters to spend a lot of money on the kids," Mrs. Cowles says. "They could go fishing or bowling or shopping, and maybe they just visit."

Once a month there is an outing for all Big and Little Brothers and Sisters in the County, even those who are not presently matched. Members of the organization's Board of Directors are also invited to the outing to give them closer contact with the children.

There are presently about 40 matches of Big and Little Brothers and Big and Little Sisters in the County, according to Mrs. Cowles. There is also a waiting list of boys who need a Big Brother. "That is where the need is," Mrs. Cowles added. "We need Big Brothers. It seems easier for women to volunteer as Big Sisters, probably because of their mothering background."

Little Brothers and Little Sisters are usually recommended for the program by school teachers and counselors, social service agencies, and Juvenile Court. Some join because they or their parents have heard about the good works of the organization.

Big Brothers-Big Sisters is funded by the United Way, private donations, and its own fund-raisers. Mrs. Cowles will devote much of her time to speaking engagements telling about its services to children and to the community.

Community leaders who serve on the Big Brothers-Big Sisters Board of Directors are: John Kurtz, chairman, George Ebenhoeh, Sherry Sheldon, Don Kelly, Jack Gebott, Rob Dunne, Gayle Gennett, Debbie VanTreese, and Ed Gregory.

Besides her work with the organization, Mrs. Cowles is a Medical Records consultant for several nursing homes, and in the past has served as director of Medical Records for a group of hospitals, including the Charlevoix Area Hospital. She teaches Sunday School in the Baptist Church in East Jordan, swims, bowls, and paints in water colors and oils.

Mrs. Cowles and her husband, Harold, moved to East Jordan from Williamsburg last October. He is a newspaper advertising salesman as well as a real estate salesman.

Mary Lee Huber to teach art of potpourri at Arts Center

An ancient old world art that originated in Egypt and Babylon is being revived just in time for Mother's Day at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey.

Potpourri, the careful blending of fragrant petals, flowers, leaves, herbs and spices for sachets, pillows and baskets, will be taught by Mary Lee Huber of Charlevoix at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 27, in the art center community room.

Huber, who says she has been gardening "forever", recently began making sachets, potpourri, herbal wreaths, insense, sweet ribbons and pressed flower notecards under the name Wintergreen Harb Gardens. Her aromatic, natural room fresheners are a new addition to the Art Tree, a sales gallery located in the McCune Arts Center.

For her April 27 workshop, Huber will provide all floral and herbal material, fragrance oils, a booklet, and the instruction so participants can complete a lace sachet and a bath potpourri. Registration is $25, and participation is available on a limited basis. Students are asked to bring a large mixing bowl and measuring cups. Reservations for the class are due Friday, April 19, by calling the arts center at 347-4337.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful to meet Saturday

A film on Charlevoix's Operation Petunia produced for use by a South Dakota city planning its own petunia planting project will be the highlight of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's regular meeting at 9 a.m. Saturday, April 15 at 218 Bridge St.

Footage for the film was taken last year by Dale Boss with a camera sent by a Pierre, South Dakota businessman who had been so impressed by the petunias along US 31 in Charlevoix that he is spearheading a drive in his own hometown to mount a similar project.

It uses scenes of Charlevoix interspersed with footage from bleak areas of Pierre to display the pleasing effect that Operation Petunia has had locally.

Further information on this year's petunia planting will be discussed at the meeting.

There wil also be a report by the KCB sign committee which has been studying approaches to removing signs in the community which do not comply with the city's sign ordinance.

This hobby may be fun but it's plenty of work, too

By FRAN MARTIN

A hobby is described as something a person does in his spare time, a favorite pastime. To most people this means something that takes little effort or manual labor.

That description, however, does not apply to what Cecil Drost, retired Penn-Dixie employee and lay minister does. His hobby? Operating a sugar bush by tapping a minimum of 200 trees and 'boiling down' the resulting sap to make approximately 50 gallons of syrup which he ends up giving away.

This requires a great deal of preparation, endless hours of hard manual labor and a close watch on the operation from the time the first tree is tapped until the last bottle of syrup is sealed.

Why did he choose to do this a hobby? "I'd grown up on a farm. I'd worked hard for 28 years at Penn-Dixie (cement company) before retiring in 1978, and when I had all this free time after my retirement, I thought it would be a fun thing to do," Drost explained.

He went on to say that the Church of God has had a campgrounds in Marion township off Loeb Road with many maple trees. He approached the church board about tapping the trees, they agreed and be made plans for the venture.

His wife, Eileen, says he came home one day and asked how she would like to make maple syrup. "I thought it over and it was a good idea and we got started in it," she said.

That was five years ago when he started the operation by tapping 40 trees. As he acquired the equipment required and the operation proved successful, it has been expanded to 200 trees.

"In the beginning we had to wade through the snow and carry all the pails. However, now I use a three-wheeler with a sled to carry barrels in which to gather the sap and it simplifies things. It's a lot of hard work but I love being out of doors and working with what you might call an 'open fire'. The smell of the wood smoke combined with the sweet aroma of the bubbling sap in the big pan makes light.

When the sap is boiled down to the syrup stage, he takes it home where Mrs. Drost strains it three times, boils it again to the final stage, strains it again, the last time through a felt strainer until it's clear, and then bottles it. "It's a lot of work but we both enjoy it. It's something that we can do together and it's lots of fun sharing it with our friends" she says of her part in the operation.

The only help Drost has in the operation is from two boys who live in the neighborhood, David Towsley and Hugh Lambert, Jr. "They come home from school, discard their books and school clothes and head for the sugar bush. They're a great help and we have a lot of fun together." he said.

"When the operation is over for the year, and the equipment cleaned up and stored for another season, then comes the satisfaction of sharing the fruit of your labors with your friends." Drost continued. The church (the Community Church of God) received the first bottles tht are given away in appreciation for use of the trees & the facility for use at their Fellowship Hall where the congregation gathers for family suppers and where the women of the church sponsor luncheons. He and Mrs. Drost then share the syrup with their families and their friends.

"Sure, it's a lot of hard work. But when you are enjoying it as much as we do ... being outside, working together, enjoying what we're doing, we don't look upon it as hard work" Drost explained.

He said the year's operation will require approximately 15 cords of wood. That seems like a lot until you consider that it takes 50 gallons of sap to obtain one gallon of syrup. Then it doesn't seem like so much. "I know we're doing things the old-fashioned way that requires a lot of extra work but we enjoy it so I expect to continue doing it this way. Anyway, we consider it fun and I think that's all that counts", he added.

The Drosts spend the winter months in Florida and return home for the "sap run". "This year we missed the first week when the run was probably at its best but the cold weather we're having now has helped us to compensate for the loss", he said of this year's operation.

Boiling down the sap from maple trees is a demanding operation but Cecil Drost, shown above at his sugar bush, calls it his hobby.

Marketplace A.D. will repeat this summer

by ANNE KELLY

A most successful ecumenical vacation Bible school experience, "Marketplace 29 AD" held last August, will once again be sponsored by the churches of Charlevoix under the auspice of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

The endeavor is currently in the planning stages, with representatives from area churches participating. Projected dates are August 12-15, from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday and 1:30-5:00 on Thursday with a family picnic and special program on that day. The location will once again be on the grounds of the First Baptist Church on M-66 Highway. Children must be 4 years old by September of '85 through 5th graders (this year).

Marketplace 29 AD is an experience of life as it may have been in Biblical times. Participating children become part of a Jewish "family", with its rituals and responsibilities. They will "live" in tents, visit the shops of the marketplace, and draw water at the well. They will learn about Biblical occupations by working as apprentices. They will caravan to the desert to hear the storyteller and will witness events in the life of Jesus as they are enacted in their midst by street players.

Volunteers are needed, from all churches, in many areas of responsibility. Area churches will be distributing information and the names of contact persons soon. Participating churches will be: United Methodist Church, Community Reformed Church, First Baptist Chruch, St. Mary's Catholic Church, Assembly of God Church, First Congregational Church, Christ Episcopal Church, Bethany Lutheran Church and the Community Church of God.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS were recently presented by the First State Bank of Charlevoix to Charlevoix High School seniors Jennifer Joy, left, and Ann Wagner, winners of an essay contest held in cooperation with the Independent Bankers Association of America. Bank President Louis Hollow, who judged the contest is shown making the presentation. Ann won the first place prize of $150. Her essay "Independent Banking at Work in My Community" called attention to the "two local independent banks" and their continued policy that "...local independent banks, as a first priority, serve local business and consumer interests...encourages employment of Charlevoix residents, creates personal income and increases the city's base of real and personal property taxes."

Jennifer received the runner-up award of $75 for her essay in which she says, "Not only is the operation of a bank important, but also its actions which greatly contribute to the success and productivity of a community."

Said Hollow, "First State Bank of Charlevoix has always been proud to encourage the scholarship of the students of Charlevoix public schools."

Volunteers workshop set

The third in a series of art workshops for volunteers of the Crooked Tree Arts Council will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday April 11, at the Virginia McCune Community Arts Center in Petoskey.

Hand-spinners and weavers Sari Ruthven and Catherine Siterlet will demonstrate their art, and present a style show of handwoven clothes and scarves, giving volunteers tips on how to add dash to their wardrobes with art designed for wearing.

Ruthven and Siterlet are among 150 Michigan artists who sell their work through the Arts Center retail shop, the Art Tree.

Vivi Woodcock, another artist represented by the Art Tree, presented the March volunteer meeting, attended by nearly 20 persons. Woodcock gave a demonstration and workshop on silkscreen printing, and volunteers spent the afternoon printing the Crooked Tree logo on gift boxes and bags to be used in the Art Tree sales gallery.

Indian fishing agreement could boost Charlevoix's lake trout fishing

by DOUG TRUAX

The future of the Great Lakes fishery looks considerably brighter as a result of the recent agreement aimed at ending the legal battle over Indian fishing.

That is the opinion of Myrl Keller, head of the Great Lakes Fishery Station in Charlevoix, after reviewing a draft of the agreement.

"I think it is something we can work with in the future," Keller said. On Wednesday U.S. District Judge Richard Enslen signed a consent decree that would end the 15-year legal battle over Indian fishing rights. Parties to the out-of-court settlement include the federal and state government, three Indian groups and four sports fishing groups.

Among the complex provisions of the accord are rules establishing a lake trout refuge in the Beaver Island area and the eventual elimination of large-mesh gill nets by tribal fishermen. Gill nets, which are credited with the indiscriminate killing of young fish and sport fish, would be outlawed in the Charlevoix area of Lake Michigan by 1990. At that time all Indian fishermen would have to convert to trap nets which allow unwanted fish to be released unharmed.

Uncontrolled and unregulated gill net fishing by tribal fishermen since 1971 has led to a situation Keller calls a "free-for-all."

"The agreement has the potential to improve sport fishing in the Charlevoix area," Keller concludes. "It will allow us to make a much, much heavier stocking of lake trout." The waters in a 35-mile radius of Charlevoix are considered to be the prime lake trout spawning grounds and at one time produced a significant sport and commercial fishery.

Overharvesting has plagued the very expensive program to restore lake trout to self-supporting levels.

"Enforcement is the key to this new agreement," Keller cautions. He points out that enforcement will not be easy or cheap. It will require more officers, additional boats, and careful checking of fishermen's catches and sales.

Despite his cautious optimism, Keller sees some shortcomings in the settlement. "I'd like to see gill nets out and selective gear in," he adds.

Myrl Keller

Indian fishermen will not be allowed to take steelhead and brown trout, but could net salmon. Keller doubts that they will harvest salmon to any great extent.

David Dempsey, environmental aide to Governor Blanchard, says that the settlement, while not perfect is a good step toward bringing unregulated gill netting under control in certain areas of the lakes. "It looks excellent to us on paper, but it is not going to be meaningful at all unless it is enforced."

Dempsey says that he is sure the Governor will make the financial commitment to see that the agreement is enforced.

The fate of non-Indian commercial fishermen is still a matter of much conjecture. Keller says that it is likely that if the tribes want all of the allowable fish in the treaty waters that a good many commercial fishermen will be bought out, relocated, or otherwise retired. If that were to happen, Keller says, "I'd feel real bad about it. They have gone through a lot of hell in recent years."

John Cross, Jr. of Charlevoix, who operates Cross Fisheries, preferred not to comment on the agreement at this time. He said that he had not received instructions from the state and had not yet seen details of the settlement.

Bob Davis addresses town meeting

Rep. Davis visits, supports Mesquite

by DOUG TRUAX

U.S. Rep. Robert W. Davis (R-Gaylord) was in Charlevoix Saturday, April 13, to conduct a "town meeting" at Nanny's Old Place. Some 45 Charlevoix area residents attended.

Davis was met immediately with questions concerning the fate of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite.

"There are no plans right now to move the Mesquite out of Charlevoix," he told the crowd in his opening remarks. "It is very important to keep that ship based here."

Davis indicated there were no plans in the 1986 budget either to move the ship, but cautioned that "the Coast Guard could close any station without prior approval of Congress."

Davis is the ranking Republican on the Coast Guard subcommittee in the House of Representatives. The federal Office of Management and Budget has asked that the Coast Guard save $5 million through cost-cutting efforts centered in the Great Lakes. Plans call for the closing of nine Great Lakes Coast Guard stations, Davis said, and the curtailing of four others.

Davis said he proposes either not cutting that much or finding savings in other areas such as capital construction.

"I am optimistic that we can preserve the Coast Guard presence on the Great Lakes," Davis concluded.

Questions and comments from the audience focused on a variety of national concerns including the federal budget deficit, revenue sharing cuts, farm credit problems, the Small Business Administration, and problems at the IRS.

Davis noted that the current effort in Congress is to trim 45-50 billion dollars from the federal deficit.

"I predict that after all the hassle we will come up with a $50 billion cut, but it will be different than the president's plan," he said. "We are going to have to cut the defense budget more than the president wants. I think we will come close to a freeze on 1985 spending."

Davis predicted that there would be cuts in revenue sharing funds next year – an action that was welcomed by some members of the audience. He said, however, that he opposed elimination of the program, preferring instead to see costs frozen or cut back slightly.

On the subject of the government's farm program, Davis said that he "has always been a supporter of milk and other subsidies, because it does keep the price of food down."

WVOY signs off

by DOUG TRUAX

Fans of Charlevoix's "easy listening" station, WVOY, were disappointed to learn this week that the AM station's programming has been discontinued. Gone is WVOY's syndicated "The Music of Your Life" music format.

The AM station is now broadcasting Top 40 programming from WKHQ FM.

"WVOY had some proud moments and memories," station co-owner and president Tim Moore recalled, "it's a little like decommissioning a ship.

"It was the first format station to come to northern Michigan," Moore noted, "and it was very successful at one time." He adds that "the writing was on the wall about four years ago. We thought that big band nostalgia might be enough to bring people back to AM radio. To some extent it did, but not enough."

WVOY, at 1270 on the AM band, went on the air July 20, 1974. It was the AM counterpart to the highly successful WKHQ, 105.9 FM, also directed by Moore. Programming on both the AM and FM channels will be identical, for the most part, but Moore expects to break away from the FM format occasionally for special sports features.

"It is possible that we will get the Chicago Cubs games for AM and we also hope to carry sports from a major Michigan college, some pro football, and perhaps high school football in the fall," Moore adds.

He points out that 91 percent of the listening in northern Michigan is currently FM. "This is the most competitive market in the country, with over 18 stations – 10 of them Class C, high power transmitters.

WKHQ is currently the number one rated station in the north and, according to Moore, "the most successful station in the country in this market."

WVOY represented approximately 10 percent of the station's revenoes and expenses so its loss is not expected to be significant.
